THURSDAY, AUGUST 2, 1906.

It is surprising to note that the crop of paper railroads in Oregon is steadily increasing.

The liquor forces are ready and willing to spend money, as well as to do a lot of dirty work to break down the strong temperance sentiment that has long prevailed in Newberg. It is a good time to line people up. Which side are you going to take in the fight?

The keepers of low dives are said to be moving out of the dry counties and relocating in wet counties. No town can maintain a "north end" district without saloons. This doubling up of the worst elements of society in the wet counties is liable to cause a turning of the tide two years hence that will enlarge the dry district in Oregon by the addition of several counties.

Those who are inclined to think the Graphic is radical, touching the personal habits of people, should read the following from the Oregonian: "There ought to be no smokers' seats in any street-car. No man has more right to smoke in a street-car than in a public hall, church or theater. Nor indeed should anyone be permitted to smoke on the public street. Indeed, if a man will smoke, he should be obliged to shut himself up in a water closet at home. Even that is hard on his wife or housekeeper."

The Columbia Register man may be put to his wits sometimes, under provocation, to find language to properly express his sentiments, but he seems to have been favored in the following: "Rainer has a bunch of 'cheap skates' who are so contemptibly small that they would require a field glass to look up to a yellow cur. They are the cheap street orators who have no other occupation but to cuss decency in every form. They hold that it is a crime to be decent. They never pay a cent of revenue to the town. They stand around the saloons waiting for free drinks. They have no interest in the bulding up of the town. They are a cancer on morality and uprightness. Were they in almost any other community they would be hanged on general principles."

Attention is called to an announcement to be found in this issue of the Graphic under the head of "Prohibition to prohibit." It may be well for some people to read up on the local option law. It is not alone the man who sells intoxicants that lays himself liable to a heavy fine and imprisonment, but the one who gives it away as well. It is better to be wise than to be counted with the foolish. There is a determination on the part of the temperance loving people of Newberg to see that the law in this part of the county shall be enforced. Hence the announcement is made that a reward of $100 will be paid for information against and conviction of anyone who shall violate the local option law. It is simply a plain business proposition. If anybody wants to take chances on defying the law the opportunity is always at hand. The question is, does it pay? Probably we shall see.

Booze sympathizers who have been making faces at the editor of the Graphic lately on account of the part he took in helping to close up Kinney's resort across the river may as well keep their shirts on. The Graphic has been in the fight against gin shops too long to be frightened by the carplings of the curbstone brigade. The sentiments of the Junction City Times as expressed in the following lines have the right ring: "If a newspaper man knew how many knocks are received behind his back he would adopt another calling, remarked a citizen the other day. The citizen is mistaken. The newspaper man who has the elements that make success to him expects to be maligned by every lawbreaker, swindler, hypocrite and carping critic who loves notoriety, and is ignored, and in fact, by all who do not agree with him on public and private matters. The newspaper man who expects to go through life without being misrepresented and unjustly censured should make arrangements to die young."

The Graphic stands for law enforcement and is ready and willing to devote space in the columns of the paper, and to spend time and money outside the office to see that the good name of Newberg is maintained, but the Graphic does not favor mob law. We are aware that the liquor business makes brutes of men and that those who engage in the traffic have little regard for the rights of the majority. These things make men's blood boil at times and they suggest desperate means for ridding communities of gallon houses and other resorts, but it is better to keep cool and act in accordance with the law. The apathy of well meaning people is often exasperating under these trying circumstances, so prone are we to want the other fellow to show the necessary strength of spinal column, but let's act wisely in all we do. Let the temperance forces of Newberg stand together for the enforcement of the law, by lawful means, and we will continue to have the respect of the public at large. We can't afford to do anything else.

A Free Ferry Again.

An offer is again made for a free ferry that Newberg cannot afford to let go by. The county court of Marion county has made an offer to pay the sum of $350 a year toward helping to maintain a free ferry and it is understood that the same offer will be made by the court in this county. The amount asked for by Mr. Gearin is $900 a year, which, in order to be made up, will require a guarantee of $200 a year from the people of Newberg. With a free ferry, the travel this way will be greatly increased and much trade will be drawn from the Marion county side of the river. It simply opens up a big territory that is tributary to Newberg when the town is made accessible to the people on that side of the river. The people over there want to come here to trade and we must make it easy for them to get here. A committee will wait on the people and ask for subscriptions and they ought to meet with a ready response. The way to get business is to go after it.

Prohibition to Prohibit.

The Graphic is authorized by a committee of responsible citizens to say that a reward of one hundred dollars will be paid to any one who will furnish evidence and convict any person of violating the local option law, in Newberg or the immediate vicinity. This offer to hold good one year from date of August 1, 1906.

CONTROL MUCH TIMBER.

Spaulding Logging Company Acquires Interest in Property of L. Gerlinger and Associates.

The Charles K. Spaulding Logging Company has acquired an interest in the Dallas and Falls City railroad and also in the extensive timber holdings of the railroad company in the mountains west of Falls City. The report of the purchase was confirmed by L. Gerlinger, president of the road, while in Dallas on a business visit Monday.

The transfer of the property mentioned means that the Spaulding Company will no longer be obliged to depend upon river transportation alone in getting logs to market. Hereafter the company will have the advantage of both rail and river communication between its logging camps on the Big Luckiamute river and the sawmill towns of the lower Willamette Valley.

The deal just consummated places the new company in practical control of all of the vast timber region on the headwaters of the two Luckiamute rivers and the extensive territory between the two streams. The 15,000 acres of timber already in the hands of the Spaulding company added to the Gerlinger, Leadbetter & Pittock holdings will make a total of 35,000 acres of timber owned or directly controlled by the Dallas & Falls City Railroad Company.

Mr. Gerlinger says that it is the intention of the company to begin work on the railroad extension as soon as possible. The road is already built into the edge of a fine timber belt, four miles west of Falls City, and the company is planning to push the construction to the summit of the Coast mountains without further delay. Arrangements are already under way to place a surveying crew in the mountains to locate the line to the summit of the divide between the Luckiamute and Siletz rivers.

The new company is composed of some of the wealthiest men in Oregon, and development of the timber resources of Polk county on a scale hitherto undreamed of by any resident of the county may be confidently expected.—Observer.
