The cigarette fiend and the stink bug meet on a common level.

It is a fact as stated in an exchange that lemon juice is better for stout people than any anti-fat medicine ever made up. We have used it with good results for several years.

When you see a small boy with his hands clasped across his equator and intense pain written on his face, just pass it up to dog days, the smimin' hole and green apples and let it go at that. He will recover.

The best crop is being harvested in the Willamette valley that we have had for years. There is work for everybody at good wages and the wail of the calamity howler is hushed by the hum of the sawmills and factories.

Wednesday of this week was opening day for killing big game. Watch the dispatches for the fellow who "thought it was a deer." For several seasons he has been about the best shot of any fellow who has gone into the underbrush and he has seldom failed to bring down his man.

The state fair which meets the first week in September is being well advertised and an effort is being put forth to make of it a successful fair. This is an all round good crop year and there is certainly enough stuff in the country to make an excellent showing in the agricultural department.

Occasionally we hear of people who say they "wouldn't think of subscribing for the Graphic" and yet they will walk a half mile on a hot day to borrow a copy of the paper of a neighbor in order to get to read it. Well it is worth something to hear that they want to know what the Graphic says and it is exceedingly kind in their neighbors to lend them a good family newspaper. Such high class reading matter will in time help them to overcome their prejudices.

An editor may go on for years trying to live a decent and helpful life, and may say hundreds of pleasant things about people who meet him in a friendly way daily, and they accept it as all right, but if he happens to print something they misunderstand or something that does not agree with their views, some of them feel justified in abusing him privately or publicly worse than they do any enemy they may have. The intention and the hundred good things said are as nought compared with the one grievance.—Forest Grove Times.

Carl L. Albrecht and Peter Loggie of North Bend, were in town Monday as representatives of the Chamber of Commerce of their city. Congress is going to be asked to make a liberal appropriation for the improvement of the harbor at Coos Bay and these gentlemen are making a tour of the state, getting the endorsements of boards of trade, bankers and business men generally to present, along with their memorial. They are going at it in a business like way and they ought to succeed. Coos Bay is already a fine harbor and congress owes it to Oregon to appropriate a sufficient amount of money to increase the depth of water on the bar.

The stragglers are coming home from the beaches in little groups and it is evident from what they say that those of us who have been compelled to remain at home have wasted a good deal of sympathy on ourselves, for they tell us that the sea breezes have been so cold that they nearly froze to death and the change to the valley is so great that they swelter with heat since their return. In the face of "the returns" we join with the jingler who said: "The butcher thinks the baker has an easy time through life; The baker thinks the doctor's path is ever free from strife; And to us all this truth comes home as through this life we bob— It's the other fellow every time that has the easy job."

This is the molting season for birds and the music of the feathered songsters is heard but little these dog days. In the early morning hours however the faithful "Bob White" whistles his merry tune to cheer the farmer boy on his way, just the same as the few remaining members of the church choir who have not gone away on a summer vacation, bestir themselves on Sundays and chant the old familiar hymns to depleted and drowsy congregations. Honors are about even and be it remembered that the good book says that their is a crown laid up for the faithful.

In almost every community there is a class of people who want full liberty to curse and dam churches and church influences, they want to engage in everything that has a tendency to break down the Christian Sabbath and in fact they insist on throwing their whole influence by word and deed in the way of every effort that is put forth to raise the moral standard of the community. And yet if they could see the day when the doors of the churches should be closed; when everybody, including preachers went to Sunday ball games and yelled like Comanches and bet on the game; when everybody including the women drank beer "when they felt like it;" when it was a common thing to hear people curse and dam everything good and praise everything of and evil and immoral tendency; yes if these fellows could see such a change brought about that conditions would harmonize with their present desires, judging them by what they say and by their actions, it is safe to say that they would be filled with utter disgust at their surroundings, that they would say that it was too tough for them and they would pack their grips and flee from such cursed conditions. It is simply a case where a few fellows in a community want to reserve to themselves the right to raise a little hell on earth all to themselves, but they insist on pushing themselves in among people who are striving to make moral conditions better, in order that they may not get too near the "dead line." Does anybody believe that these are overdrawn conclusions?

City Ordinance on Drunkenness

Since it appears that the suggestions made last week by the Graphic regarding drunkenness hit in several tender spots, we deem it the proper thing to call the attention of the people to the city ordinance touching drunkenness. Here it is in two sections:

I. That it shall be unlawful for any person to be found within the corporate limits of the town of Newberg, in a state of intoxication, in any highway, thoroughfare, or other public place, and every person so offending, shall upon conviction, forfeit and pay to said town of Newberg, not less than five, nor more than twenty dollars, for each and every such offense.

II. Every person who shall be found drunk or intoxicated, in or on any private lot, house or place, without the consent of the occupant of the same, shall be deemed guilty of a breach of this ordinance, and whenever any such person or persons shall be arrested by any of the officers of the town of Newberg, whilst intoxicated, the said person or persons so arrested, shall be committed to the town jail, there to remain until he or they shall become sober, when it shall be the duty of such officer to convey such person or persons before the recorder's court, to be dealt with according to law, and the ordinances of the town.

Since the law is very plain on the question why should anyone find fault with the Graphic for favoring the enforcement of it?
