THURSDAY, APRIL 11, 1907.

Yes, it "costs a heap" these days to build, but better do it anyway. It's apt to cost more next year.

The way to "clean up" the town is to set apart a special day for the work and make it a special order of business on that day.

A Portland paper is undertaking a campaign to locate the handsomest woman in Oregon. Most newspapers have troubles enough thrust upon them without finding it necessary to go out of the way hunting for it in this manner.

After shaping the destinies of the Yamhill Reporter, later the News Reporter, for the past eight years, D. I. Asbury has sold the paper to C. C. Hammerly of Oakesdale, Washington. Success to Mr. Hammerly, and he has a good opportunity of achieving it.

Thus suggests the Dalles Optimist: At the next session of the legislature we propose that a law be passed giving each member a repeating rifle and 9,000 rounds of ammunition—and power to use them on all who say "the worst legislature we ever had." There have been others!

Foraker and Taft are going after each other, or rather after Ohio's endorsement, with a strenuous zeal which would indicate that a little skirmish in the buckeye state is all that is necessary to decide upon the next president. Possibly they take themselves and their scrap a little too seriously. The Graphic wouldn't vote for either one of them.

The chief of police of Seattle had the courage, the other day, to attribute publicly the epidemic of crime among the children of the windy Sound city to the fact that Seattle mothers are too busy with club life and social functions to take care of their children. Of course he at once became the storm center of a bitter attack by the accused, but that's what a man generally gets for telling an unpalatable truth, especially if it's needed.

A few Oregon papers have been trying to let on that it was such a delightful surprise (!) to learn that Fulton would allow himself to become a candidate for another term in the United States Senate. Was anyone threatened with nervous prostration lest on his own motion the state would be bereft of the illustrious services of the sonorous voiced orator of Clatsop? Not if they are well acquainted with Charlie Fulton and his ilk of politicians.

When any matter of public interest is up for consideration there is the man who is enthusiastic in the affirmative, and there is generally the man who is "ferminist" and says so. These two characters are easily located. But there is another fellow, who "really, hadn't given the matter any thought" and he is the dead weight in a community. Give us boosters, and plenty of them, and we can worry along with an occasional knocker, but heaven save us from the indifferent man.

Who would look for knockers among real estate men? The Graphic has heard of at least one in Newberg who seems to delight in prophesying failure for projected improvements and in forecasting anything but sunshine and prosperity for Newberg and its citizens. Perhaps business isn't very good with him. But why should it be? Who wants to do business with a chronic kicker? We have but this suggestion to make the man. His departure as soon as convenient, or sooner, will probably cause no more of a ripple than did his arrival in the not far distant past.

It was deucedly awkward for Mr. Bryce to say in the "American Commonwealth" that we never elect great men to the presidency.—Eugene Register.

But the great Englishman never said any such a thing in his masterful "American Commonwealth" or elsewhere. He did raise the inquiry why we often elect inferior men but paid such tribute to some of our illustrious presidents as could hardly be improved upon by a Fourth of July spell binder. In fact Mr. Bryce is a pretty good American if he is representing a king at Washington.

The Oregon Development League urges that every resident of Oregon should at once make it his or her personal duty to write a letter to some acquaintance, relative, or friend, or better still to some old home paper, advising that the colonist rates will expire April 30th. There is no time to lose. These are one-way rates and good to almost any point in Oregon, for $25—to points east of Umatilla, $22.50. This rate includes the entire Missouri valley, Minnesota and the Dakotas, and is available to fifteen millions of people; from Chicago, $33, and from St. Louis $30 or $2.50 less than these figures to points east of Umatilla.

It has been suggested that every girl can learn twelve things before she is twelve. Not every one can learn to play or paint or sing well enough to give pleasure to her friends, but there are accomplishments that are within the reach of all. Shut the door, and do it softly. Keep your own room in tasteful order. Have an hour for rising and rise at that time. Learn to make bread as well as cake. Never let a button stay off twenty-four hours. Always know where your things are. Never let a day pass without doing something to make somebody comfortable. Never come to breakfast without a collar. Never go about with your shoes unbuttoned. Speak clearly enough for everybody to understand. Always be kind. Never fuss or fret. And in the meantime a little practicing along this line by the boys will not be amiss at all.

All at once the newspapers over the state are knocking J. C. Cooper's proposition to take the Oregon girls to Jamestown, posing as Oregon Minnehahas, and are saying all manner of unkind things. They seem to think that the state would be poorly represented and illy advertised thereby. Nonsense! Why, bless your hearts, brothers, the collection of girls which Cooper could make from Oregon's best would take the effete East by storm, no matter how they were rigged out. And it's when the girls would start homeward that the country would experience its first real car shortage! The surprising thing to us is to see the Oregon pencil pushers, with their reputation for gallantry and loyalty to Oregon products, posing as sour-visaged, carping critics and misanthropes. We're ashamed of the whole outfit. Here's to Cooper and his Oregon Juanitas!

We believe the Oregon Grange is inconsistent in its action in fathering the movement toward invoking the referendum against the appropriation for the State University. If the Grangers are sincere in wishing to save the tax payers' money why don't they endeavor to get the frills cut out of the institution at Corvallis and make it a farmers' college in fact as well as in name? What has the drugstore business, electrical and civil engineering, military science and various forms of technical education got to do with an agricultural college anyhow? The Graphic has never been over generous in spirit with the state institutions, but it does believe that it is a mistake thus to endeavor to hinder the development of the State University. Oregon should make a good institution of the school at Eugene. Every state should have one good university here in the West where we have such magnificent distances. The program which the Graphic has to suggest is that the accessories of the State Agricultural(?) College be transferred to Eugene. Then there might be some hope of building up an agricultural college which would begin to rank with those of some of our sister states. Further, cut out the so-called state normals and give a good strong normal course at the state university. A pile of money would thus be saved the state and the efficiency of the work done would be far greater. It is certainly beginning at the wrong end to begin hammering at the State University.

YAMHILL NOT USED TO FOLLOWING.

In this controversy between Yamhill and Hood River as to the relative worth of their apples, the Optimist leans toward Hood River all the time. And why? Because Hood River has not only set the pace for Yamhill, but by better methods has actually made thousands of dollars for the Yamhill growers. We may not at all times agree with the Hood River people on such minor issues as politics often bring up but when it comes to raising apples, packing them, shipping them and getting a prize for them, why then we are for Hood River all the time. And the loyal citizens of that town deserve all they are getting and more. And in place of decrying and belittling them Yamhill ought to thank them—and be satisfied to follow them.

We pass up the above to Mr. Lowndale, of La Fayette, for adequate comment. The Graphic could say a few things, as it doesn't often lack words in defense of Old Yamhill, but it feels its limitations in the presence of the versatile Mr. Lowndale, king of Yamhill apple growers. The inference that Mr. Lowndale is beholden to Hood River for his success is as good a joke as Editor Bennett ever got off in his Rabbitville dope.
