When members of a family quarrel a lot of truth shows up in the conversation. The world would be better with less theory and more demonstration.

The Feminine Observer.

The hail-stones-as-big-as-hens-eggs literature has begun circulating.

Success spells failure for some and failure spells success for others.

It is easier to make both ends meet than it is to weld them together.

It is libel to tell a lie on a man; it is only painful to tell the truth.

Nothing will mend the widow's broken heart but repairing.

Experience comes high but people will invest in automobiles.

Luxuries are the things we want when we haven't got the price.

Tact is being sure not to look solemn when your rich uncle makes an awful flat joke.

Beauty is only skin deep; well, many a mau has lost his heart forever in a dimple.

The street corner loafer is a living insult to every woman who passes him.

A Surprise Wedding.

Last evening a merry party of Royal Neighbors and Modern Woodmen surprised Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Herriott at their home on Meridian street, the occasion being the thirteenth anniversary of their marriage. The couple were remarried by a new and novel ceremony (which, however, we expect will stand law) the "priest" presenting each with a R. N. A. emblem pin. After congratulations, ice cream and cake were served, and games indulged in, and as the wee sma' hour was approaching, the guests departed for their several homes, wishing the happy couple many returns of their wedding anniversary.
