A HARROWING TALE FROM THE FRONTIER.

Two Boys Well Known About Newberg are Lost in the Sagebrush Wilds of Idaho.

The people of the new settlement near Caldwell, Idaho, were recently made to realize some of the sad and pathetic scenes, incident to the settler's life, by the disappearance of two boys who wandered away from their house and became lost in the dense wilderness of sage-brush which covers a great portion of that country.

It was a most pathetic scene. The boys had started across the sagebrush from one house to another about a quarter of a mile away where they were to spend the night. They did not toddle so fast but that they were presently overtaken by the shades of night. On and on they went completely losing their course. After wandering about for a long time they came to a road. Then one went one way and one the other as far as they could hear each other call, then, they would come back and meet again shuddering constantly at the seriousness of their condition—lost, lost in the wild and dense sagebrush of Idaho, where they might at any moment come face to face with a jack-rabbit, while ever and again there came across the hill slopes the cheerless notes of the dog-town owl or the weird and bloodcurdling howl of the hungry coyote.

After a time however marks of civilization appeared. A barbed wire fence caught their attention, or other parts of their apparel. This friendly guide they "stuck to," and following its course presently came upon a dwelling. "Ah!" said one, "this is my home, or it would be if my folks were here." One cry after another roused the jack rabbits for leagues around, but no voice of man or woman gave assurance or hope.

The fence and time went on, so these boys made use of both, until they came to another mansion. Cries for help now brought to the door a tender hearted man who listened to the sad story of the lost boys. No, he did not know of the neighbors whose names they spoke. They must live in another neighborhood altogether. He had lived here for years and had never heard of the people. "Well," said the boys, "if we could only find the home of the Sunday school superintendent we would be all right." "Oh!" said the stranger, "he lives yonder to the east some miles distant." "Yes," said the boys, "but that is not east," "Yes it is," said the stranger. "I have been here long enough to know the directions; when you grow older and are not lost you will know the points of the compass. Now, if you will go toward that light which is the Caldwell light, the first house you come to, about two miles away, will be the Sunday school man's house." With a feeling of great suspicion that the man had started them in the wrong direction, and fearing some evil plot had been planned for them they hesitatingly followed the stranger's directions. Much was their joy when after many weary steps they came in sight of the dear Sunday school superintendent's cottage, and still greater their happiness when, past midnight, toward the morning hours, they cuddled into bed to sleep the sleep of the innocent, lost and found.

Later it has been found that the names of these lads were Alpers and Milo, aged, respectively, fifty and forty years. We understand the latter has asked for a leave of absence from his Idaho claim. Small wonder!

Remarkable Rescue.

That truth is stranger than fiction, has once more been demonstrated in the little town of Fedora, Tennessee, the residence of C. V. Pepper. He writes: "I was in bed, entirely disabled with hemorrhages of the lungs and throat. Doctors failed to help me, and all hope had fled when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery. Then instant relief came. The coughing soon ceased; the bleeding diminished rapidly, and in three weeks I was able to go to work." Guaranteed cure for coughs and colds. 50c and $1 at F. H. Caldwell & Co's drug store. Trial bottle free.
