Local Events.

Elder G. C. Carl was in town the first of the week.

Dr. Romig and family left for Newport Wednesday morning.

Charley Clemenson has bought the Glass property, located west of the depot, for a home.

H. A. Hinshaw, traveling freight agent for the Southern Pacific was in town Tuesday.

C. J. Edwards left for Long Beach, Washington, Wednesday, expecting to remain a few days with his family.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Tyra Hutchens on Friday of last week a ten pound son—and his name shall be Wendell Herbert.

W. E. Allison and family have gone to Sherman county to visit and look after property interests, expecting to be gone a month or more.

Joseph Wilson, who is engaged in raising pigeons began shipping squabs to the Portland Hotel this week, where he finds a ready market for them.

Jesse G. Hollingsworth, a railroad engineer from Superior, Nebraska, is in town visiting with his brother, Wesley Hollingsworth. He was here two years ago.

D. D. Keeler was down from Salem Saturday attending a meeting of the board of managers of Pacific College and attending the quarterly meeting of Friends church.

John Green informs the Graphic that he has sold out in California and has returned overland to Oregon, with his family. They have located at Peoria, Linn county.

C. F. Moore returned from Newport the first of the week where he has completed a new cottage for a summer home. He found lumber cheaper there than at home this season.

J. H. Douglas and family and Matthew Terrell left for the head waters of the Nestucca, Wednesday evening, where they will cast the fly for the festive trout. They will be gone two weeks or more.

Will Paxon was down from Dayton one day last week visiting with D. J. Gilbert. While here he bought the G. H. Herriett property on south Meridian street and we understand they intend to move to Newberg and occupy the property. Dayton's loss will be our gain.

Dr. A. Mills and family came down from Corvallis last week for a visit with relatives. He has gone, in company with his brother Allen, who is out from Chicago, to Caldwell, Idaho, for a visit with their brother S. A. Mills. They expect to do some hunting for big game before they return.

L. M. Parker was so well pleased with the returns from a patch of blackcap raspberries this season, that he bought a five acre tract of Henry Mills a few days ago, which he will plant in berries, or at least a part of it. It is a part of the original Deskins tract and lays on the south of the Wm. Perkins place. The price paid was $1000.

Station Agent G. W. James, who recently returned to his former post here, says he has a good knowledge of all the towns in the valley and he considers that Newberg is in the lead of all of them. As an evidence of his faith in the future of our town, it may be cited that since his return he has bought the Moomaw property, which is occupied by John Larkin. The price paid was $2600. This piece of property, which is well improved, the buildings being new, he will occupy as a home, and he intends buying other property as an investment.

G. H. Herriett and family went to Newport the first of the week.

Mrs. Estella Venable and little daughter went to Newport Tuesday.

Charley Stevens bought a couple of lots in the west part of town Wednesday.

Allen Smith and son have the contract for building the G. P. Skelton residence.

Philemon Jones, father of Prof. F. K. Jones, is seeing the sights at Newport this week.

Amos Graves, who has been sojourning at Detroit for some time is at home again.

Miss Jennie Hanson, of Portland visited in town last Sunday with Miss Emma Dorrance.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Kirk are down from Seattle visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. G. Kirk.

Mrs. John E. Smith and little grandson, Lester Rees went to Philomath the first of the week for a visit with relatives.

It is expected that Rev. Isom P. Wooton will be here next Sunday to take temporary charge as pastor of Friends church.

O. J. Hodson writes from Argonia, Kansas, to renew his subscription and announces the birth of a daughter, August 2.

Noah Lapp and wife, who returned recently from their trip to Pennsylvania report a very pleasant time with old time friends.

W. W. Hollingsworth is expecting his family to return from Nebraska the latter part of this month. Jo is clerking in a clothing store.

Bert King was up from Portland the first of the week looking after the transfer of his Newberg property which was sold recently to F. M. Haskins.

C. L. Hulin has bought the twenty acre tract located west of town a quarter of a mile, and directly across the road from the Abe Cooke place.

S. E. Watkins, who has the contract for building the Linn Ferguson residence, has a force of men at work and the foundation well under way.

Jas. Buckley has sold his confectionary business to Mr. Honey and will give possession the first of September. It is rumored that Mrs. Honey will have charge of the business.

A bevy of awfully sweet looking young ladies boarded the train for the county seat Tuesday evening, but they prefer that their names shall not be given until after the teachers examination.

The W. J. Stater farm of two hundred acres, located four miles up the valley was sold this week to W. A. Baker for $8000. Mr. Stater was down from McMinnville Wednesday acquainting the new purchaser with the place.

The president of the Weber-Bussell Canning Co. wired the foreman here to add nineteen feet to the length of the building, and there is a likelihood of the cords being further lengthened before the foundation is completed. There will be nothing small about their Newberg plant when it is completed.

Dolan Kenworthy, who has been experiencing a good deal of trouble during the past three months with his internal machinery, has gone to the North Pacific Sanatorium in Portland to have his appendix removed. In his absence his undertaking business will be looked after by Charley Hodson.

It is extremely exasperating to see people take unnecessary and foolhardy risks in crossing the railroad track directly in front of rapidly approaching trains. One day last week a teamster was crossing the track when the coupling of his wagon broke and nearly a half hours time was taken up in righting things before he could go on. It is easy to imagine what would have happened if he had had this break down when crossing in front of a train that could not have been stopped.

Mr. Anonymous.

When the Graphic man was an awkward lad he stood in the reading class, day after day, in the old school house, holding a McGuffey's reader and droning the sentences at the dictation of the teacher. And the teacher, poor soul, the tireless patience she did show in her endeavor to teach us lazy, listless boys, the proper pronunciation of words, modulation and a lot of other things that a teacher must drum at a boy constantly, in season and out of season, in order to make them stick. One of the very necessary rules that we finally treasured up was, that "a period is a full stop." A rule that a lot of people who undertake to furnish copy for a newspaper never learn.

But we started out to say a word about one of the distinguished authors, whose name was appended to a number of the stories we read in the old McGuffey readers. We remember well the names of Patrick Henry, Jane Taylor, Nathaniel P. Willis, Lord Byron, John G. Whittier and others but the one that puzzled us most was the fellow who spelled his name "Anonymous."

That was a jawbreaker for a small boy. And how could he write so much stuff? Why every few days we would laboriously wade through a "piece" and then down at the right hand side of the last paragraph would be found that fellow's name, "Anonymous." It seemed so funny that his parents had forgotten to name him. Just one name he had, "Anonymous," all the same as Jones or Smith and he didn't appear to be a Bible character either. He seemed to have been brought up well and a fellow who had improved his opportunities, for he wrote in a way that appealed to our young minds—let's see didn't he write that touching "piece" entitled "He Never Smiled Again?" Yes, and there was "Harry and His Dog," "Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star" and "We are Seven." We are sure none of the famous authors of today are able to touch our hearts as this writer did, but as we have said the peculiar strangeness of that name "Anonymous" puzzled us. Yes, just about as much as it did to try to figure out in reading, "The bark that held the Prince went down," why it was that a Prince would be foolish enough to try to cross "dark and gloomy waters" on a piece of bark.

The original Mr. Anonymous must have died. To be sure he has some imitators in this day and age, but their writings don't have the old time ring. Our readers have no doubt received letters from some of his distant relatives—the fellows who are so doubtful of what they write that they just sign it "Taxpayer," "Many Citizens," "Idiotic Ike" or "Shallow Brained Simpleton." Mrs. M. E. Scott received a note the other day which she has enjoyed very much and she asked the Graphic to publish it for the benefit of her friends. Here it is.

Newberg, August 9, 07.
Mrs. Mary B. C. Scott,
Madam: Noticing your little story in the Graphic of Newberg, "Leaks and Their Results if mended," we rather like to see instead your talking about the drinking and smoking habit of men (what you by the way as a woman will never understand) you better publish in that paper here something about the faults of your own sex (which surpasses ten times those of men, if drinking and smoking really are faults.)

The next time we men of Newberg wish to see the comparison, how much one could buy or save, if women would spend less in dressing and housekeeping. We hope pretty soon to hear from you.

CUTTING PRICES ON GOOD SHOES

In the face of existing conditions one would naturally look with distrust upon any kind of a cut price proposition in shoes. Shoe materials and labor almost "out of sight" and going higher all the time, and yet we are actually cutting the prices on certain numbers of Oxfords Ties and high top shoes to close out.

While these last you can secure bargains in the shoe line—if you come early.
