Heney uses a drag net that has some awfully big holes in it. Witness the fact that Puter and a horde of others crawled through without so much as a mark about the gills.

Statement No. 1 appears to be the most potent factor at this the opening of the political campaign in Oregon, and so far no single candidate has been able to attract to himself half as much public notice as this little joker has coming its way.

Great interest is being taken in the proposed rose festival to be held in Portland next June, and this without doubt will be the greatest event of the kind ever held in the Northwest. Every town in the surrounding territory should manifest an interest in the event and lend a hand toward making it a great success.

Senator Fulton is expected by his friends to come home to take the stump in his own behalf to refute the damaging charges made by Heney, and the latter has stated that he has more to hand out later. Both are hard hitters and if they get well warmed up it may be expected that the campaign will assume something of what was once known as the "Oregon style" of warfare among politicians and newspaper men during the palmy days of Senator Nesmith and W. L. Adams. Further developments will be watched with a good deal of interest.

Some people appear to have very little conception of the cost of publishing a newspaper. Some days ago a lady subscriber expressed surprise at being charged for extra copies of the Graphic, saying, "land sakes, back east they would give subscribers a half dozen extra copies of a paper if they wanted them." A subscriber who pays the price of a year's subscription is supposed to get fifty-two papers in the run of the year, but it may easily be seen that if he demands a half dozen copies extra a few times he will get his paper for half price. "Back east," publishers of newspapers may be able to get white paper, ink and all necessary help free, but "out west" we take notice that it takes cash to get all these very necessary things that go to make up a newspaper, from week to week, and while in the past many extra copies of the Graphic have been given away, we have reached the conclusion that when we have something people want there is no good reason why we should not get what it is worth in return for it.

Dr. J. W. Strange, proprietor of the Spokesman, published at Roseburg, died at his home in that city on last Sunday. Back in the Eighties he was a well known personage about Salem during the time of legislative sessions, holding the position of chief clerk of the senate during the stormy times when senatorial deadlocks were the main feature of the sessions. His splendid voice was put to a severe test on more than one occasion when roll call on the vote for United States senator began at noon on the closing day and lasted until midnight, but he proved himself equal to the task, always reeling off the names of the ninety members to the end without a falter. He leaves a widow and one son.

A postal card bearing the Newberg postmark was received at the Graphic office on Wednesday asking this question, "What is a man to do who is out of work in a financial crisis and is starving?" We were not aware that a financial crisis was on in Oregon and we are quite sure that none about Newberg are going hungry, but the matter was submitted to C. B. Wilson, who was present when the card was received, and he said if the fellow was worthy and he would come around he would give him something to eat. This disposes of this momentous question and a possible resort to arms has been averted, thanks to the kind offices of C. B., at a time when careful forethought and an exercise of well directed diplomacy might have been a necessity at the office of the Graphic bureau of information—but don't watch the back door at the Wilson residence. It might be embarrassing you know.

JUST LIKE HOFER.

So far as the work of the recent State Press Association was concerned, nothing was accomplished for the good of the newspapers. No ideas were advanced as to better editorial management, better business methods, or better ethical standards.

The foregoing paragraph is from the pen of Colonel Hofer, of the Salem Journal, and is being copied by papers whose editors did not attend the meeting and therefore know nothing of what was done. Friend Hofer himself did not show up until just at the closing hour, having been unavoidably detained in Corvallis. Coming into the meeting just before the hour of adjournment, and having had no part in the business discussions of the day and a half preceding, it ill becomes him to speak slightly of the work accomplished by the Association. Over one hundred active newspaper publishers attended the Portland meeting, and almost without exception they expressed themselves as feeling highly gratified by the steps taken to place the interior press of Oregon on a higher and better basis. It is hardly probable that all these men were wrong, and the eleventh-hour Salem editor right.—Dallas Observer.

It must be remembered that Hofer's strong card is talking, and as usual he don't know what he is talking about. As is stated by the Observer, he only got into the closing session of the meeting, but he jumped into the discussion from the start and talked more than anybody else. The three points he mentions were covered in the earlier sessions and he is only making a rump of himself by butting in with his criticisms.

A Special Word.

Unless the delicate, exactly adjusted parts of a watch are kept clean and lubricated, they are certain to become worn to a greater or less extent and the movement will surely lose its accuracy. Tiny particles of grit are bound to work into the best protected movement; the oil will become gummy in time and these combined will serve to cut and grind the pivots and cause friction.

Every watch should be thoroughly cleaned and oiled at least once in eighteen months, and if yours has not been cleaned within that time, it should have immediate attention.

We will clean your watch precisely as it would be done in the best watch factories—take the movement entirely apart, clean each wheel, cog and pivot separately, assemble and regulate it—and when you get it back you may depend upon it being in "perfect shape."

WATCH YOURSELF GO BY.

Just stand aside and watch yourself go by; Think of yourself as he instead of I. Note closely, as in other men you note, The bag-kneed trousers and the seedy coat. Pick flaws; find fault; forget the man is you; And strive to make the estimate ring true. Confront yourself and watch you in the eye— Just stand aside and watch yourself go by.

Interpret all your motives just as though You looked on one whose aims you did not know. Let undisguised contempt surge through you when You see you shrink, O commonest of men! Despise your cowardice, condemn whate'er You note of falseness in you anywhere. Defend not one defect that shames your eye— Just stand aside and watch yourself go by.

And then, with eyes unveiled to what you loathe— To sins that with sweet charity you'd clothe— Back to your self-walled tenement you'll go, With tolerance for all who dwell below. The faults of others then will dwarf and shrink, Love's chain grow stronger, as one mighty link— When you, with "he" as substitute for "I," Have stood aside and watched yourself go by.

—Strickland W. Gilliland in Success.
