MEMORIAL DAY IN NEWBERG.

Home Talent Drawn Upon For Successful Program.

Newberg held very successful public exercises Saturday in memory of the Nation's fallen heroes, and there were no brought on stars appearing on the program either. The old adage says, "if you want a thing done well, do it yourself," and the veterans acted on the same this year with good results.

A large audience gathered in the afternoon in Duncan's Opera House and responded heartily to the spirit of the occasion.

The Newberg Band opened up with a medley of patriotic airs, closing the selection with "The Star Spangled Banner." And just here permit us to suggest in passing that it the rest of the audience had appreciated the fitting thing to do, as well as did Rev. Gregory, he wouldn't have been subjected to the embarrassment of standing alone when the martial strains of Francis Scott Keyes' masterpiece was being played. There is no law nor are there any "general orders" calling for this tribute to the Stars and Stripes, but the custom has become so general that good manners alone, to say nothing of the responding thrill of patriotism, demand it. Let the rest of us follow the lead of one who knows, next time.

Post Commander R. B. Linville established his reputation last year as the "orator laureate" of the local post and he again rose to the occasion Saturday. He gave an unusually clear-cut and reasonable view of the position of the veterans—of what they have a right to expect, not as a charity but merely as a recompense, in return for the loss of the best years for the preparation for life, in serving their country. His reference to the quiet return of the soldiers to their homes at the close of the war reminded the writer of a remark he had heard made publicly by a distinguished English historian a few months ago. Shortly after coming to this country he was asked off hand what he considered the greatest single event in American history. "The peaceable and quiet disbandment of the armies at the close of the civil war," was the prompt reply. He continued that never before in history had a great war failed to develop a professional army which had to be maintained and given occupation after the struggle had closed.

Lincoln's immortal Gettysburg address was effectively spoken by Haines Burgess.

The addresses of the day were delivered by Mrs. Millie Brouillette Whitten and Prof. R. W. Kirk, daughter and son respectively of Grand Army veterans, and their efforts left nothing to be desired by imported orators. Not only did they speak fittingly of the services of those who have gone but took advantage of the occasion to send home some timely shots for good citizenship demanded now.

Excellent music was rendered throughout the program. Appropriate vocal duets were sung by Mrs. Jessie Boyes and Mrs. Minerva Brown, and the Misses Doris and Maude Gregory and a vocal solo by Miss Mabel Edwards.

Election Results.

It was not a very hot time we had on election day, from a weather standpoint at least, as a cold breeze sent the chills chasing up and down the backs of voters as they awaited their turn at the voting places. At the voting booths in North Newberg precinct the light was miserably poor, which retarded the task of marking the blanket sheet ballot, and there was no time in the day but that many were waiting their turn. In the other precinct the vote was lighter and conditions in the booths were more favorable, consequently there were not so many delays. A division of both precincts, however, is imperative and the matter should be taken up before the presidential election in the fall.

Both republican candidates for congress are elected by heavy majorities as well as the other republican candidates on the state ticket with the exception of H. M. Cake, candidate for senator, who has been defeated by Chamberlain. The legislature will be republican by a large majority, but it is too early to figure on the much mooted Statement No. 1 make-up in that body.

Woman suffrage was defeated; the university appropriation was sustained; increased pay for members of the legislature was lost, as was also the single tax measure. The prohibition result will be found summed up in another column.

In Yamhill county Bones, the republican, and Corrigan, the democrat, were elected to the legislature, while Beals beat Laughlin for joint representative. The republicans elected the rest of the county ticket with the exception of the office of recorder which went to Maloney by a bare majority of possibly nine votes.

In the two home precincts Cake had a majority of 153; equal suffrage carried by 39; Single tax was defeated by 182; the Reddy bill was defeated by 301, and the majority for a dry county was 359.

Newberg High School Wins Ball Game.

On last Thursday afternoon, the day of the W. O. W. picnic, a big and enthusiastic crowd of fans watched a good exhibition of the American game on the College field. The contestants were the Newberg and LaFayette High Schools. Earlier in the season the visitors had nosed out a victory against the Newberg slab artists by the narrow margin of one notch in the tally stick and this fact lent interest to the skirmish. Both teams were in picnic form but Higgins' wing proved too much for the LaFayette lads who got the "too bad" end of a 17 to 4 score.

The players and their positions were as follows for the most part, though there was a good deal of switching around of the performers on the part of the visitors:

NEWBERG	LA FAYETTE

The Mountaineer's Oxen.

The following was handed in by a local pastor of one of the churches represented in the story as being good enough to be repeated:

A lecturer, riding down one of the rough mountain roads of Kentucky, observed a farmer plowing the rugged hillsides with four oxen, to which he was shouting vociferously, "Hi, thar! you Methodis'—Baptis' Cambellite—Presbyterian, g'lang thar!"

Much astonished he called the mountaineer to the fence and inquired, "Why do you call your oxen by such peculiar names?"

"Why, stranger," said the mountaineer, "them was the fittenest names I c'd git. This yer Methodis', now, is a good critter an' a willin worker, but ever' onst in a while he has to jump up and down and bawl. That ar Baptis' is a pow'ful strong beast, but whenever he comes to a pool o' water he allers wants to lay down in it. That ar Cambellite is an A-number-one feller, an' does an honest day's work, but he's the stubbornest, contraiest critter that ever lived. An' this Presbiterian, he's the stiddiest one in the hull lot. I can depend on him to keep them all together but he is so stuck on hisself that all the rest on 'em jes' naterally despises him."
