My Lady's Lid.

My seat!
Where did she get that hat?
Who ever did
Invent a lady's lid
Like that?
Who had the nerve to roll it out
And stretch it more and more,
From centerpiece to rim, until
It spread from shore to shore.
And likewise lifts its summit up,
On birds' and other wings,
Above the earth until it scrapes
The clouds and other things?
Who added to the wondrous width
Of brim so that the space
Could easily accommodate
An automobile race?
Say, who done that?
Who built her hat?
Who made it something never seen
On earth or in the sky,
A flat of wide extended plain,
A mountain towering high?
Cut wider doors for her to get
Inside of any place,
And put the ceiling on the roof
To give her nodding space.
Push up the clouds to let her stand
Erect upon the ground,
And shove the wide horizon back
To let her turn around.
Oh, wondrously witching, woozy hat
That flattens out and towers--
Who ever saw a thing like that--
A pancake piled with flowers?
A hat contagious--spreading? Yes,
That names the Merry Wid.
And she who fails to catch it should
Slip out and change her lid.
Gee Whiz!
What a wonder woman is!
And my seat!
Where DID she get that hat?
--Exchange.

Millinery and Madness.

Millinery has a different effect upon different people. While its cost may in a few instances drive some husbands mad, it seldom, if ever happens that a woman regains her reason through the means of a new hat.

Recently a gentleman whose wife was confined to a sanitarium because of a severe case of melancholia, and who the physicians declared was incurable, regained her reason in this way, says the Millinery Trade Review. Her husband called to take her home and observing that she was rather shabbily dressed, started out, with the assistance of a nurse, to secure a new hat and coat, that she might appear somewhat up to date. The poor woman was somewhat indifferent as to the appearance of the coat, but when the hat was placed upon her head she instinctively glanced at a mirror to see if her hat was on straight. She was delighted, and, weeping tears of joy, flung herself into her husband's arms exclaiming: "I'm well again, I'm well again."

Something in her head "had snapped" and she was soon herself again. The moral of this case is that many a man's wife would be kept out of the sanitarium if they would let something in their wives' heads "snap" instead of snapping their pocket-books when asked for money for a new hat.

P. S.--We hereby certify that the above is "pure reading matter," inserted without the connivance of the local lid dealers.

$150 for Best Article.

Unity Items.

The school of District No. 23 closed Friday, June 12, with a successful picnic that was held on the site of the old school building.

The morning was spent in visiting, playing games and auto riding. Dr. H. C. Dixon, of Grants Pass, was there with his fine machine and all of the children and most of the older people were favored with a spin.

At noon every one sat down to the tables which were filled to overflowing with all manner of good things to eat.

Dinner over, the company was called to order by the teacher, J. J. Ellyson, and a good program given by the pupils. This was followed by short talks from the patrons of the school.

At 4:30 everyone went to the tables again, and for an hour ice cream and cake was found to receive its share of attention, after which we adjourned, having spent a most delightful day.

ONE WHO WAS THERE.

Moonlight Benefit Picnic.

E. J. Arnold, proprietor of the steam swing and outdoor moving picture show which has been operating in Newberg for the past two weeks, has interested himself in the Newberg Band boys and has offered to give them a lift. With their co-operation he has arranged to give them a big benefit Saturday evening of this week, leading features of which will be moonlight moving pictures, ice cream served by the boys on the lawn, and of course, the round and round about on the steam swing. The boys are expecting a big attendance from the country as well as from town and have promised to have hitching racks provided for teams. It should be an evening of much enjoyment and the boys deserve the encouragement of a big attendance.
