GET ON OUR

ROLL OF HONOR.

Along in the spring a public meeting was held in Newberg in the interests of Yamhill County Development League work. At that time the purposes and plans of the League for work were rather fully outlined and explained. They need not be discussed in detail here. At that meeting subscriptions were taken at so much per month for the year, for the double purpose of aiding the County organization in advertising Yamhill County in general, and furnishing means of exploiting the resources of our town and Chehalem Valley. At the same time a committee was appointed to solicit for further subscriptions among our business men and citizens generally.

But the matter was allowed to rest after that meeting, the subscriptions which were already made not even being collected, for the reason principally that there seemed to be no one who could spare the time to shoulder the responsibility of pushing and directing the work in this vicinity. People have naturally been wondering whether anything was being done or whether the whole thing had died aborning. But there is sufficient evidence given in another column of this issue that the county work has been progressing all the time and that the interests of our own immediate neighborhood are receiving due attention. Heavy expenses have been incurred by the county organization in getting out adequate advertising material, the bills for some of which are now due. Newberg has guaranteed a certain amount toward this expense and we can not afford not to make good. And our own local advertising needs call for further funds.

The writer was recently elected as secretary of the Newberg Commercial Club, with instructions to take up the matter where it was laid down and push it aggressively during the summer months. To begin with the subscriptions which have been made have been almost entirely collected up to date, and some in advance. It has indeed been gratifying to note the hearty spirit with which they have been paid, the subscribers being once assured that the work of development is to be pushed with vigor.

But the list of subscribers is not half as big as it should be. With very little exception, those who have subscribed have done so very liberally, the amounts ranging from one dollar to ten dollars per month. On this list are to be found day laborers while on the other hand some of the leading business institutions of the town are not represented at all. This is not said by way of criticism for the matter has simply not been presented to some. The fact is merely stated to pave the way for securing additional pledges.

The next thing to do then is to secure new subscribers and this work will be taken up by the secretary with the co-operation of the committee above referred to, the members of which are C. A. Hodson, C. B. Wilson, H. R. Morris, Jesse Edwards and John Larkin.

Here is an excellent test of real enterprise and public spirit. Everybody acknowledges the pressing need of the work outlined as well as the necessity of funds for carrying it on. But to sacrifice a little, to go down in your own jeans or to open your own till for this purpose is another proposition with some who are ready for the willing horse to do all the pulling. All will profit from the results of the advertising and development work and all should be willing to share in the expense.

Yes, it takes a public spirited man, and also a mighty good business man, to sow a few dollars when the returns are to be reaped some time in the future. But let's prove that this is just the kind of men we have here—the kind which insures a rosy future to a town or community. When the secretary or the committee approaches you on the proposition, meet them with a smile—and a subscription. Or better still, show your interest by doing the approaching yourself with a voluntary offering. By all means get on our roll of honor.

ECHO ANSWERS, "WHY?"

Why is it that every republican in the land has been shouting himself hoarse for Roosevelt, and affirming that if he was nominated that they would vote for him and that no man in the nation on an opposing ticket could beat him, and at the same time feel down in the mouth because Taft was nominated?

Why is it that the supporters of Roosevelt do not speedily rally to the support of Taft since he is Roosevelt's choice; and in Roosevelt's support of him for the nomination, has practically declared to the nation that he will continue to carry out his policies and abide by his principles and make good?

President Roosevelt knows Taft infinitely better than any one else; and that they have met in private council chambers many times to go over the ground of the future policy of the party, goes without saying. And yet the people are not willing to accept him as one who will carry the Roosevelt administration to a more consummate climax.

This is no time for the republicans to begin the defeat of their candidate with pessimistic prophecies.

The fact that Governor Chamberlain carried the state of Oregon in the senatorial contest is not the slightest token that every democrat forever hereafter is to be elected.

If you are a republican, talk nothing but victory for your candidate. Why shout for Roosevelt and knock Taft?—Hood River News-Letter.

But really, while there is or has been a tendency in that direction, we don't believe the case is as bad as made out above. The people like Roosevelt for what he has himself done, but have been a little chary of accepting Taft, largely for the reason that he has been urged more because Roosevelt has decided upon the Ohioan as his successor, than because of Taft's own peculiar fitness for the position. This has weakened Taft so far, and we believe Roosevelt has made a mistake in his headstrong policy of forcing Taft as the republican nominee. The American voter is very easily, too easily, led, but he won't be forced.

But Mr. Taft is now the nominee and the people have begun scrutinizing the man himself—what he has done and what he is capable of doing. And this is just what is going to elect Mr. Taft triumphantly.

For reasons implied above, one year ago the Graphic was not enthusiastic over the Ohio man. It didn't know much about him, except in a general way, beyond the fact that he was in favor with the Big Stick. During the past year the writer has been intimately associated with Prof. Bernard Moses of California, who, it will be remembered, was a member of the Philippine Commission, of which Mr. Taft was the head, which so successfully established civil government in the Philippines. Prof. Moses is constitutionally a conservative man and above all, is no hero worshipper. But in speaking of Taft as he knew him and his work for three years in the Islands he couldn't suppress his enthusiasm. For the ability to grasp a situation quickly and be master of it, he says he has never seen his equal. He thinks, too, that he has the greatest judicial mind of any man in the country.

And this testimony is based not on hearsay evidence but on personal observation of the man during the working out of one of the most perplexing problems, or better, problems that American political genius has had to face.

In short, we learned enough about this man Taft from one who was in a position to know him best, to make us sincerely for Taft. No one in the United States has our colonial problem so well in hand—and this is now one of our big questions. He understands the big job down on the Panama canal. He has likewise been carefully trained in our domestic problems. These things the people will soon understand and will be as strong for Taft as they have been for Roosevelt.

The premium list of the Oregon State Fair for 1908 is at hand, with general announcements, and it is a foretoken of an unusually successful fair. The sum of $10,000 is to be distributed as premiums on live stock, and agricultural and manufactured products. In fact it is promised that this year's fair will surpass its predecessors. Many new exhibitors are securing space and numerous herds have been purchased and shipped into Oregon during this year which will be exhibited. New buildings and improvements are being added to the grounds and many new features will be apparent to visitors. The date—September 14th to 19th.

Secretary W. L. Crissey of the Oregon State Dairy Association has ready for circulation the report of that body for the past year. It is very much the most comprehensive report which has appeared concerning any dairy meeting on the Pacific Coast, and Mr. Crissey will furnish a copy to anyone interested, upon request. Oregon has grown wonderfully in fruit, agriculture and general industries, but dairying holds the record for greatest increase, dairy products having risen from a value of $5,000,000 annually five years ago to $17,000,000 in 1907.

The editors of Washington and Oregon are scheduled to attend a get-together meeting at Vancouver, July 16th, 17th and 18th. In his invitation to the pencil shooters, E. E. Beard, chairman of the Washington Executive Committee, says very correctly: "The man that has his business so well organized and systematized that it will run three days without him is a big man. If you haven't this organization you'd better shut up shop and come out among those who 'know how' and get a few pointers for your own benefit."

Have you sufficient interest, either in our county and valley or in your friends, to see that the latter get some advertising matter descriptive of the former? Then leave a list of their names with the secretary of the Commercial Club at the Graphic office.

From a Friend in McMinnville.

TO THE GRAPHIC:
Let me say a few words in defense of a stranger in your part of the county, Mrs. M. P. Willis Baker. I have known her for a great many years and she is held in the highest esteem by all who personally know her and it was only after having suffered from abuse from a brutal husband that she called on the law for protection and assistance. She is in poor health, being almost a nervous wreck and not able to defend herself or do any hard work, and is still suffering from injuries inflicted by Baker. If Baker will bring a legal marriage certificate showing that he was married to the mother of his child he will get great credit for it. His course should prove a good warning to women not to marry away from home.
