THURSDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1908.

In just four cities in Oregon, Portland, Astoria, Eugene and Newberg, Russell H. Conwell, the great lecturer will speak this season. You will want to hear him.

As a matter of self protection a newspaper must know the author of all matter offered for publication. Two articles have been received this week which we have been unable to use on account of the failure of the writers to give their names.

This fine weather is just the kind for cleaning up the old rubbish that has been cast aside, in replacing old walks with good, hard cement. If piled up under shelter while it is dry it makes good firewood, but it looks bad scattered promiscuously along the streets.

High class entertainment will be furnished by the lyceum course during the winter months at a nominal price, but liberal patronage must be given in the purchase of season tickets in order to make the course self supporting. Make up your mind at once to purchase tickets without solicitation and in this way lend encouragement and support to those who are backing the undertaking.

A Newberg lady on her return from a Willamette valley town was heard making comparisons regarding the tidy appearance of towns and the one visited came in for considerable unfavorable comment. This should be taken as a pointer. Strangers are coming into Newberg every day and in a couple of weeks two hundred delegates will be here in attendance at the state convention of the Baptist church. It will be worth while to do a little cleaning up about town in order to court favorable comment.

We have a man here in Oregon who hopes to be elected to the senate of the United States at the coming session of the legislature, who can scarcely attend a public gathering of any kind without getting so gloriously drunk that he must be led away by a friend on either side to bolster him up, and it looks like he might be successful in his aspirations, and yet twenty-one counties in the state have been voted for the other side.

A number of people who have recently come from the middle western states and some from farther east, have been interrogated regarding the political outlook and so far they have all said that while there is not as much enthusiasm on either side as has usually prevailed in a presidential campaign, the outlook seems favorable for Taft's election.

Fred L. Ames, who visited a number of the states while on a trip from which he recently returned, and who was in Denver during the week of the Democratic National Convention and also was in Lincoln when the committee was there to notify Bryan of his nomination, thinks Taft will win. Since his return home he has had a letter from a brother-in-law who lives in Denver and who is a Bryan man, and he says that while he considers the fight a close one he believes the odds are in favor of the republican ticket.

Every number booked for the lyceum course is a good one and the lecture, "Acres of Diamonds," by Russell H. Conwell, the brilliant preacher, author and orator of Philadelphia will alone be worth the price of a season ticket for the whole course.

Never in all the history of the country have wages in all industrial lines been as high as they have been during the present administration, and yet we hear it stated that labor unions are favoring Bryan's election. It will be remembered that during the Harrison administration many of the day laborers concluded they wanted a change and they got it.

At the June election Yamhill county was voted dry by a majority of 862 votes, while at the same election a strong temperance man and the best all round man from the standpoint of qualifications for the office of any of the candidates, was turned down and a man elected to the legislature in his stead who was and now is committed to vote for a man for United States senator who is the most notorious drunkard in Oregon politics today. Another misfit in Oregon politics.

Taft is steadily gaining in strength as the campaign progresses and it looks now like Bryan would from this time on be a loser. In both the other campaigns he made for the presidency he was stronger during the first two months following his nomination than he was during the closing weeks, and indications at the present time point to a similar outcome. This one thing is evident. Bryan has not been able to arouse his followers to that pitch of enthusiastic support so noticeable in his other efforts, but just how much this means it is difficult to tell, since there is lack of the old time fervor on both sides.

If brother Moorhead of the Junction City Times is not a member of the school board in his district he ought "fer-to" be. Witness what he says: "There ought to be a law to require every school teacher below the sixth grade to spend a few minutes each day pounding into the heads of the pupils the use of the words 'did' 'done' 'saw' 'seen' 'came' 'went' and 'gone.' Ninety per cent of the bad English hangs around the words mentioned, and there is so much carelessness in the schools and in the home that the evil is of greater importance than correct dress. The finest raiment, cut after the latest fashion, cannot offset the expression 'I have went.'"

The Poultry Yard.

Prepare the hens now for fall and winter laying. Scrape up a good lot of road dust for the stock this winter. Do not tease the gander. There is no more dangerous fowl in the poultry world than an old gander, especially during breeding season.

If the fowl's legs are scaly, try the remedy of coating them with gas-tar. Allow it to remain until it is worn off, when the scales as a rule will follow. Sow all duck yards at once as empty, to rye. This will not only make an excellent green food, cut up in inch lengths, but the rye crop will disinfect the soil.

As a rule a woman makes a success of poultry culture because she is careful, watchful and mindful of all the small details—the little leaks that often sink the ship.

September is a good time to purchase new blood in the way of cockerels or pullets as a much better bargain can be secured now than later on when the demand is greater.

Now is a good time to white-wash the interior of the houses, and there is no better season than now to repair the roofs and fix up things in general in anticipation of a long and hard winter.

Even the air of the hen house must be kept clean—clean by the entrance of the pure fresh air and the searching sunshine. Have the house so arranged that it can have an open front during the day time.

The molting season is here. Hens that are molting now will be through about December, and can be relied upon to furnish a good supply of eggs during the following three months when prices are at the top notch.—September Farm Journal.

They talk about a woman's sphere As though it had a limit; There's not a place in earth or heaven, There's not a task to mankind given, There's not a blessing or a woe, There's not a whisper, yes or no, There's not a life or not a birth, That has a feather's weight of worth Without a woman in it.
