THURSDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1908.

This number completes the twentieth volume of the Graphic, making a steady run of a fifth of a century without a break.

The vegetarians held a public conference in Portland this week, probably for the purpose of passing resolutions condemning the actions of the late lamented Jack Frost.

A Newberg contractor remarked that he did not know much about politics but he did know the difference between $1.25 a day and $4 a day for work and he would vote for Taft.

Mr. Baker of the Portland city council proposes to pass an ordinance which will allow respectable women to visit saloons. But how is he going to induce them to patronize the saloons unless he can assure them that respectable male customers will be there and none others.

Eliza Harris could easily cross the Ohio with her little pickaninny at the present time without danger to life and limb, since the water at Cincinnati is reported to be down to a 3.9 foot stage, and small boys are wading across into Kentucky. The historic old Ohio is evidently in a badly run down condition.

If you attend the musical recital to be given at Duncan's hall on Friday evening you are assured a fine musical treat, and at the same time you will be assisting the library committee in a worthy effort to raise money for the purchase of more books for the free library.

With just a little attention paid to the two hundred strangers who will be in attendance at the Baptist convention, by way of extending the common courtesies due to visitors, we can easily put words of commendation in their mouths that will be repeated over and over again, and which will prove to be the very best kind of advertising for Newberg. It will be easy. Just try it.

Tuesday's Oregonian told of a farmer, who, while on his way to the city, fell in with a very obliging young stranger who suggested that they take a room together which they did. In the evening they went out and drank copiously together and during the night the trusting farmer awakened to find his friend and his purse containing $600 gone. He no doubt belongs to the class who can't afford to take a newspaper.

The Portland Journal takes the Graphic to task for the statement made that never in the history of the country have wages in all industrial lines been as high as they have been during the present administration, and yet it makes no attempt to furnish argument to refute the statement. Farm products have sold at a big figure and yet it has been a common remark with farmers that owing to the rush of men to the factories, the logging camps and the mills where they have secured work at prices the farmers could not compete with, they have been compelled to take the one course of farming as much land as they could handle themselves and let the remainder go idle. If the Journal can cite any other administration in the history of the country when wage earners along all lines have been paid higher prices, the Graphic is willing to be shown.

If you have not registered do it now and save the trouble of boring your friends on election day by asking them to help you out.

The Polk County Itemizer, a dyed in the wool democratic sheet and a bosom friend of Chamberlain, already concedes the defeat of the latter in his race for the position of senator.

If you registered before the June election you do not need to register again, but if you did not you should register at once in order to avoid vexatious delays on election day. Wednesday of next week is the last day. Do it now.

The "drouth" has been pretty effectually broken and the soft balmy breeze that is now floating this way from the southwest enables one to easily fill his lungs brim full of the life-giving ozone for which the Willamette valley is famous during the winter season. The weather bureau says the rain of Tuesday night was the heaviest we have had since a date in January 1907. The farmer boys will again start the plow and the merry whistle at the same time.

The Normal School question is still a long way from settlement, and that the same old fight will be up at the next session of the legislature is already assured. The Normal School Board has failed to agree on the number of schools to be maintained, the majority favoring three, while two members favor one, or not to exceed two. State Senator J. N. Smith, of Marion county, is said to be preparing a bill abolishing all the Normals and establishing one near Portland. This question with that of the election of a non-partisan United States senator will furnish enough fun for a forty days session.

New National Bison Range in Montana.

The bison range in the Flathead Indian Reservation in Montana, to establish which Congress at its last session appropriated $40,000, has been selected. The location of the range is the one recommended by Prof. Morton J. Elrod, of the University of Montana, after he had carefully examined several parts of the country. It lies directly north of the Jocko river near the towns of Ravalli and Jacko. Approximately 12,800 acres are embraced in the tract, which will be fenced in a substantial manner under the direction of the engineering department of the United States Forest Service.

Of the $40,000 appropriated only $10,000 will be available for fencing the range and constructing the shelter sheds and other buildings necessary for the proper maintenance and care of the bison. The remaining $30,000 will be paid to the owners of the land, many of whom are Indians. Funds for the purchase of bison are being raised under the auspices of the American Bison Society, which was largely instrumental in securing the appropriation.

The first person to spend actual money in the effort to preserve the American bison from total extinction was the late Austin Corbin, who many years ago fenced some 6,000 acres at Blue Mountain Park, New Hampshire, and secured a herd of bison. The Corbin herd became in course of time the inspiration of the national movement which is now furthered by the American Bison Society. This society, of which President Roosevelt is honorary president, and William T. Hornaday, director of the New York Zoological Park, is president, was founded in 1904, and the Montana bison range is directly the result of its efforts.

Details of the management of the herd in the new national bison range will be worked out as soon as the herd is purchased, when the construction work on fences and buildings will also be begun.

Library Benefit.

That every one is interested in the Public Library has been well shown this summer by the way it has been used.

We are wanting to add some more new books, and the Library Association engaged Mrs. Walter Reed for a recital, to be assisted by Mrs. Eva H. Hull and Mr. Alexander Hull.

The Hull's have already won our appreciation and we are always pleased to hear them. And while Mrs. Reed has never been here she is well known to Newberg people and we are assured an excellent entertainment.
