Last Monday was soldier day in Newberg. The Fourth United States Field Artillery, mounted, under command of Colonel Dyer, arrived from Vancouver Barracks on Sunday evening and went into camp near the cannery building in the north part of town. They were on their way to the Grand Ronde Indian Agency for a ten days' outing and target practice. There were twelve officers with the command and about two hundred and fifty enlisted men. The artillery and all camp equipment was carried on pack mules and altogether there were about as many animals as men. The men did not appear to mind the rain, as they said they preferred it to dust.

On last Sunday evening with but little warning, except a small cloud that appeared to the south, accompanied with a few flashes of lightning, rain began to fall, which continued almost without cessation during the night. It continued showery throughout Monday and up to Tuesday noon, making a heavy rainfall for this season of the year. In fact it was a soaker and wet the ground to a good depth. It caught hay down all over the valley, much of which will be injured to some extent, the amount of the damage still to be determined by weather conditions yet to follow. Cherries were also pretty badly cracked which will entail a heavy loss to many growers, but the moisture, long over-due, has been very beneficial in many ways, especially to late grain, corn and potatoes and to pastures.

NO DRAGGING OF BUNDLES ON THE NEW CENTURY BINDER It Does Clean Work

A binder that does not cleanly separate the bundles from the untied grain costs a lot of your temper and time. Time is money during harvest. To avoid this loss use the New Century. The above cut tells the story. From the moment the needle appears above the grain until it returns beneath the deck, no grain is fed down by the packers. They serve to keep the grain from pressing against the needle. The revolving discharge arms do not come into contact with the untied grain. For good clean work use the New Century. If you will only let us show you the New Century and thoroughly explain it we'll be satisfied with the result for it will be another sale for us—one more satisfied customer.
