If you must say mean things about somebody talk about yourself. You will then be sure to be telling the truth.

It is the easiest thing in the world to see the other fellow's faults, while we must look through a powerful magnifying glass to see our own.

"As hot as wool" and many deaths at Kansas City and other points east, while the whole Willamette valley is a good summer resort. Nothing like it.

In order to give valley people a little better excuse for going to the seaside, the weather man moved the peg up to 88 in the shade for a day or two this week.

President Taft is to spend two days in Portland when on his tour the latter part of September and he won't have to be pointed out to the children. There is nothing small about our President.

A fiend came past the office Wednesday and poking his nose in the door said "Is this hot enough for ye," and the mercury had not reached 90. There is hotter weather in store for that fellow.

The announcement of the death of M. D. Wilson, publisher of the Rural Spirit, and the best known horseman in the Northwest is expected at any time. He has been in poor health for two months with heart trouble and all hope for his recovery has been abandoned.

Seattleites are in a great rum-pus over the coming of Taft to that city. The chairman of the program committee has arranged for the distinguished visitor to spend the greater part of his sojourn there with the smart set of the golf club, while there are others who want to use him for show purposes. And the latter will win. They have the true Seattle spirit.

The people of Oregon begin to sit up and take notice, since it is officially announced that J. J. Hill is an interested party in the Deschutes railroad building. This appears to be the realization of the fond hope Oregonians have long nurtured for the invasion of the state by Hill, the great railroad builder, and this is sufficient cause for rejoicing. The latch string has long been out for him.

Back in the old "Hoosier" state when plowing corn in hot weather down in the creek bottoms, we often glanced at the sun along in the shank of the evening and remarked to the other boys that we would "go another round and then turn out." That is what a large number of Newberg people have been doing lately—that is they have been turning toward sea coast points, as a glance at our local page will reveal.

The Hurley brothers, formerly from Polk county, have just issued a special edition of the Oregon Oriano, published at Vale, Malheur county, which will prove to be a good advertising edition for that great inland empire. It is a twenty-four page edition and the many illustrations show up the business interests of Vale to good advantage. The people of that whole district ought to show their appreciation of the efforts of the publishers by buying every extra copy and sending them away to their friends. It will be money well spent.

Newspaper men, as a rule, have but two things to sell—space and subscription—and it would be just as consistent to ask your grocer for a dozen oranges "just to fill up" as to ask the editor for a dozen lines in his paper just to boost your business with the idea you are doing a kindness in helping to "fill up." Try getting a free dinner at a hotel just to fill up.—Myrtle Point Enterprise.

At the State Fair this year which will be held September 13-18 the dairy department will be looked after by Paul V. Maris, one of the deputies to the state dairy commissioner. He will have a display of dairy and creamery products the like of which has never been seen on the fair grounds, and there will be a large display of dairy utensils by various dairy supply houses in the Pacific Northwest.

The resident of Newberg and vicinity who has not had visitors from some other state this season is in a class by himself and must feel neglected and lonesome. The low rates made by the railroads on account of the A. Y. P. is bringing many thousands of people to the great Northwest and a large number of them will eventually locate in Oregon and Washington. We have room for them and will bid them welcome.

Those who have been accustomed to camping at the State Fair will be glad to know that Albert Tozier is again to be the superintendent of the grounds, for this insures the glad hand act, which our friend Tozier knows so well how to extend to all comers. The wonder is that so genial a bachelor has been able to resist the winsome smiles of the many fair Oregon maidens who make yearly pilgrimages to the fair.

President Taft recently signed a proclamation making a National Monument of the Oregon caves in Josephine county. These natural wonders are located in the Siskiyou National Forest about thirty miles south of Grants Pass in Cave Mountain. The caves were discovered in 1874 by Elija Davidson, while bear hunting and have since been explored to a distance of two miles or more. There are many passageways and rooms which have never been opened, and with these distant and unexplored openings the magnitude of the Oregon Caves is practically unknown. The time will come when transportation to the caves will be made easier, and with further explorations and experienced guides, thousands of tourists will visit these natural wonders each year.

The Oregonian of December 10, 1864, under the head of "Freaks of the Draft in Henry County, Indiana," gives the following information which will be of interest to former residents of that county, as well as others: "Wm. Jackson, six miles north of Raysville, has nine sons, six liable to draft and every one of them drew a suit of blue. Jas. Wilburn, near Ogden has six sons, three in the army and three at home. The draft took all three, sending them to the front to join their brothers. Jas. Wagner, Raysville, has three broad shouldered, strapping sons who were in favor of staying at home; the wheel of fortune turned out prizes for each of them. Wm. Mills, of Knightstown had five brothers in the service and one at home. The draft called out the last one. On the road from Coffin's Station to Spiceland, a distance of two and a half miles, every able bodied man except one was drafted." The above was copied from a Lewisville paper.

It is natural for a liar to doubt every statement he hears.

If you want people to like you, you must like them.

Everybody has to exaggerate a little to be interesting.

On Wednesday afternoon the editor of the Graphic had the pleasure of listening to a very entertaining conversation between Thomas Prince, the Dundee walnut grower, and I. N. Campbell, formerly a Hood River apple grower and who still has an interest in an apple orchard, but who is now preparing to set ten acres to walnut trees this fall on his tract located two miles northwest of Newberg. Both are practical horticulturists who not only know how to cultivate and care for trees but who put their knowledge into practice. And yet they have not reached the point where they claim to know all there is to be known about growing trees. In fact they are extremely modest in relating their experiences and in making suggestions, and this is one of the many reasons why it is both interesting and profitable for any one who is interested in horticulture to hear them exchange thoughts.

Stock and Poultry at A. Y. P.

When the Live Stock Show of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition opens on September 27th, the entries will reach at least two thousand head of blooded horses, cattle, swine and sheep. On the first day of August over one thousand head had been entered, and since that date applications are being daily received in number.

Prizes of cash, medals, cups and awards reach a value of $63,500.00, and in addition to those premiums for live stock, the poultry and pigeon department of the show offer many substantial cash and medal prizes. Applications are coming in by the hundred from all parts of the United States and Canada, and the best coops and yards of America will be represented. The cooping and feeding is under the care of Mr. W. J. Spratt, whose experience in this line has been acquired in various poultry shows throughout Europe and the States.

The poultry industry is one of great importance through the western and northern states, and the bringing together at the Exposition of the very best stock found in the world, will be of exceptional value to breeders and fanciers. Mr. William Stonehouse, of Vancouver, B. C., will award prizes in the pigeon and poultry classes, while Messrs. George D. Holden, Owatona, Minn. Sharp Butterfield, Windsor, Canada, F. H. Shellabarger, West Liberty, Iowa, W. C. Ellison, Minneapolis, Minn. Henry Berran, San Jose, Cal., S. T. Campbell, Mansfield, Ohio and Chas. V. Keeler, Winimac, Ind., will act as judges in the Live Stock department.

Additional Locals.

At a special meeting of the city council held on Tuesday night, the report of Surveyor Maloney was read and a blue print of his survey of the Dayton road leading off from First street presented, which made no charge from the grade as now used. The survey was adopted by the council. F. A. Elliott having resigned as councilman from Second ward on account of his absence from town, C. C. Ferguson was elected to fill the vacancy.

Dr. R. W. Harrold returned from Whitman county, Washington the first of the week where he bought a farm of 255 acres at a cost of $14,000. He says it is a fine grain farm well located for shipping advantages, an electric line from Spokane running across one corner of it and a shipping station on a branch of the Northern Pacific being within three-quarters of a mile of it. His sons Ralph and Stanley will go on the farm and enter the arena as wheat barons.

Some men are very choice when it comes to picking out the people they want to be mad at.

Plymouth Binder Twine

SAVES TIME AND GRAIN

Twine is a small item, but good twine saves a lot of expense in harvest time. Every time your machine is stopped the delay costs you money. Time in harvest season is always valuable, and sometimes extremely precious on account of the condition of weather or grain. Be sure you use the best twine,—PLYMOUTH TWINE. Then you will be safe from the annoyances, delays, expenses, which ordinary twine causes. Plymouth Twine works perfectly in every machine. More of it is made and used every year than any other kind, because it is known to be the best and has been for years. Binds more sheaves with less expense, no knots, no breaks, and is guaranteed full length and extra strength. Get Plymouth Twine from the local dealer. Look for the wheat-sheaf tag.

Use Plymouth Twine. It has the same high quality as our twine.
