The Tillamook Headlight says: "It is pretty bad form for young women to be smoking cigarettes on the streets with young men." In the eyes of some people it is pretty bad form for young men to be smoking cigarettes on the streets with young women, but of course it depends on the point of view.

When Billy Sullivan of White Sox fame comes to Newberg to locate permanently and have the care of his hundred acre apple orchard, he need not necessarily be in the lonesome list. For instance we can show him Postmaster Wilson or Dock Larkin, either of whom will gladly go without an evening meal and warm up for a half night's fandom talk on short notice.

The Weston Leader says Weston has better schools and more business since the Normal School closed than before. The Normal was supported by state funds and possibly Weston had been content to depend on this, the same as some county seat towns drift along and grow hoary with age, the citizens showing a woeful lack of public spirit, as they rest content in the possession of the perquisites coming from the county business. A good shaking up from the Rip-Van-Winkle sleep does such a town good, and it appears that Weston is experiencing an awakening and her citizens are now out hustling for business and are getting it.

The Eugene Register in an editorial on the subject of capital punishment closes the article with the following: "So long as we have capital punishment in this state, let it be enforced without variance, but some day we will dispense with it and life sentence will take its place. We have outlived the demand for blood-stained laws." The punishment of criminals by the state is not inflicted with the idea of wreaking vengeance on the individual for crime committed, but rather with a view of lessening crime, and thereby giving better protection to society. Many people, however, believe that hanging criminals lessens crime very little if any, and they are borne out in this belief by those who have made a careful study of the subject. We believe that the Register is right in the suggestion that the day is coming when life imprisonment will be substituted for capital punishment. Several years ago capital punishment was abolished in the state of Iowa, but later on the law was changed and capital punishment was again put on the statutes, but it is said that there has not been a hanging in Iowa under the law up to the present time, as judges and jurors have stood for life imprisonment instead.

A gentlemen came bustling into the Graphic office one day recently and hurriedly expressed impatience over what he termed the slow ways of the west. We only smiled at his sally but we remembered an experience we had a couple of years ago in a "back east" town of about the size of Newberg, and located in the state from which our visitor came. Having a desire to take a bath we stepped into a barber shop on a side street and asked the man who was swiping a customers face with a coat of lather if we could have access to his bath tub. The fellow looked up in amazement and exclaimed "bath tub! don't know as there is such a thing in this here town." Of course we got out as gracefully as we could but we still have a vision of the wondering stare of that barber and his one customer. We remembered of course on second thought that years before it had been the custom of the people in that section to do their bathing in the White Lick streams during the summer season, nature furnishing the "tub" and the necessary warmth, and we really owed those two fellows an apology for giving them such a shock by suggesting the necessity of a bath in the winter season. This, mind you, took place in the effete "east" where they do things.

Representative Hawley Coming.

Representative W. C. Hawley will spend Thanksgiving day in Newberg, and will be a guest of Prof. W. W. Wiley. He will arrive in the city Thursday morning and remain until Friday morning. The Commercial Club is arranging for a public reception in his honor to be held at the Commercial Club rooms on Thursday evening. A committee consisting of Mayor Edwards, Postmaster Wilson and Prof. Wiley have the matter in charge. All our people are invited to attend the reception and meet Mr. Hawley.
