

College Building Subscription Continues to Grow.

The proposition to raise money by popular subscription for the purpose of erecting a new building for Pacific College, which was launched last week at a mass meeting of the citizens of Newberg, has met with general favor and the list continues to grow.

The weather has been bad during the week which has hindered the canvass being made by the ladies, and yet the total amount subscribed is now above $19,000. Many have been seen who have said they intend to give to the enterprise, but who have not yet decided on the amount, and there are still a large number here in Newberg who have not been canvassed. Little has been done in the country adjacent to town and there yet remains a large amount of work to be performed here at home.

Some have said that the college needs an endowment more than it needs a new building. Those behind this movement know that both are imperative, and they feel that no step has been taken that gives more assurance of an endowment in the near future than this move for a building. A good brick building all paid for will be evidence of permanence and will inspire confidence. The Graphic could name a Newberg citizen who stands ready to give $1000 toward an endowment fund as soon as the building is completed.

With the full amount of $30,000 raised here at home for the new building it will put the college in a position to ask for help for an endowment away from home that will meet with hearty response.

It is highly gratifying to note the universal interest taken by the public in the undertaking, and this alone will cheer the canvassers on to victory. Almost without exception those seen are interested and anxious to see the amount raised, and nearly all are giving something to help it on. It is important that the subscriptions shall be kept growing in order to keep up the interest and those who intend to subscribe should not hold back and make double work for the canvassers.

Nebraska Letter.

EDITOR GRAPHIC: We arrived here at the 8th inst. We had a good trip. The weather was clear and cold with snow on the ground all the way, but less in Nebraska, where it lay mostly in drifts.

Upon our arrival we found mother Callen had passed away on the 6th. She was laid to rest on the 9th. The old home is at last broken up, where for twenty-five years was the meeting place of parents and children and while there is a sense of sadness with parting with our fathers and mothers, yet we have strong consolation in the hope of their coming forth again in the resurrection of the just, to enjoy the fullness of their reward in life everlasting.

Some of the farmers are not through husking their corn, and the cold and wind is much to their disadvantage.

This morning is cold, 10 degrees below, and the wind blows hard from the northwest. This makes us remember Yamhill county, Oregon with pleasure. You are taking no chances in spending your time and money on improving the country for it surely is the place to enjoy life. Many people are looking toward the Willamette valley and I believe the time is not distant when land will all be in demand. The country here does not seem to be improving much of late years, true some of the farmers are making good money but their buildings are not being newly painted and some improvements in many places are in the decline.

I repeat Oregon is all right. Yours truly,
S. P. VAN DYKE.

Miss Amy Heater Deceased.

A message received here, Wednesday morning gave information of the death of Miss Amy Heater, which occurred at the Open Air Sanitarium located on the Willamette river above Portland, Tuesday. The funeral was announced to take place at Sherwood today, Thursday at 11 o'clock, burial to be made in the Pleasant View cemetery.

Although not unexpected, this information brings sorrow to many hearts in Newberg. The deceased was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noah Heater and was twenty-four years of age. She was born on a farm near Springbrook, but practically all her life was spent in Newberg where she was held in high esteem by young and old. She had always been the picture of health up to a few months ago, and when at that time it was announced that she was declining physically, it could scarcely be believed by her friends.

The sorrowing family have the sympathy of a large circle of relatives and friends in this community in their bereavement.

Prospects Good For Oregon Electric.

Our readers will be glad to know that Guy W. Talbot, general manager of the Oregon Electric, who went East recently to confer with the capitalists interested in the road, has returned, and that he reports the prospects favorable for the building of the line from Tigardville to Newberg and beyond this season. He said in an interview on his arrival in Portland:

"It is the policy of the company not to make any promises of extensions until such construction is absolutely certain. I cannot yet make a definite announcement that the Albany and McMinnville lines will be constructed this year, but the prospects for the prosecution of the work are favorable.

"The directors of the company are pleased with the showing that has been made since the Oregon Electric began operations and desire to build the two extensions this year.

"There is more than one route to select from on that portion of the McMinnville line between Newberg and McMinnville. The line may be built through Dundee and LaFayette or it may be constructed to the north of those points. The length of the extension from Tigardville to McMinnville will be 30 miles."

REVIVAL MEETINGS

At the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Revival meetings at the M. E. church begin next Sabbath.

Subject at 11 a. m. "Getting the Stones out of the Way." In this sermon the pastor will relate how he captured a deck of cards from a great American gambler.

At night the theme will be: "The Value of the Testimony of a Spirit Coming from the Other World." Remember there will be preaching every night next week excepting Saturday. Come and bring your friends.

Suggestions From a Country Contributor.

The day the Graphic reaches our home father stops work a little earlier than other evenings. "Any mail?" He always asks that question no matter if the mail is piled up a foot deep on the table. "Just the Graphic and daily," we answer. "Well that's enough," and so it proves to be. "After you've all read it," he comments, "just do it up and send it back home to the folks," which we are glad to do for we are justly proud of our home paper. If they want a right impression of the country they can get it there; a better, safer, advertisement than most of the bombastic, flowery literature gotten up for that especial purpose. A good advertising medium, too, he finds it. The blackboard that did service in that capacity by the mail box has been recalled and rests from its labors in the garret.

"If you want anything sold just advertise in the Graphic," he wisely admonished us when the question of the disposal of some poultry arose the other day.

But as that was hardly in our line and quite beneath his dignity, the "poultry" are dieting on our sweet peas and by way of amusement beheading the snow drops and early crocus buds.

There is much said and written nowadays about intensive farming. Let him who doubts the intensity of farming, take a portion of the upper side of some prehistoric upheaval in its first state of natural simplicity, next door to the wilderness, make a good home and financial success of it, and he will have a feeling of having lived a "strenuous" intensive life, having earned all he gets even at the present high valuation of land.

But there is danger and disappointment ahead for the one who has not a natural ability in that vocation and an unnatural supply of funds at his command with a pretty thorough knowledge of his work. It takes all these to make farming pay nowadays. Brains, brawn and bank notes which many fine farms in this country show and we wonder sometimes whether in ten or fifteen years hence these same farms which have been the pride and back bone of the country, cut up in little handkerchief lots, will have the same financial bearing they now hold. For the capitalist with business methods certainly, but the other man with the small lot, the little family, the installment plan, the rate of interest, the off crop years, even in this land of certainty. Well, we hope the manufacturing interests of the nearby city will grow strong and numerous as they have been doing. That the commuter may find other means to help maybe the "little farm" pay.

A "rose day" for our city how pleased we were to hear it. Even "the commuter's wife" may add a few more roses to her planting on that day. And we do hope while planting they will not forget the depot, the most public place in town, the only portion of the city the traveling public sees, and the least sightly. Father says "the surest way to get a thing done is to tell a woman she can't do that thing." We have so much faith in their ability as to believe in time our depot will be the finest along the line. A fountain somewhere to freshen the dusty traveler, fine shade trees, roses, green grass, beds of geraniums, such a clean beautiful spot that the traveler will want to see more of the place. Then a comfortable, pleasant, public waiting room where those who drive in from a distance may find a place of rest while waiting for father or son to finish business, shoe the horses or get the plow share drawn. This they will have done because it is needed. Emerson said, "he who gives us better homes, better books, better tools—a fairer out look and a wider hope—him will we crown with laurel." There would hardly be laurel sufficient for the demand. There are to be found so many deserving ones here.

A COUNTRY CONTRIBUTOR.

The L. T. L. Medal Contest.

A large congregation assembled at the Methodist church Sunday afternoon to witness the Medal Contest among the boys and girls of the Loyal Temperance Legion, under the direction of Mrs. Mary Scott, the superintendent. The program rendered was excellent and highly appreciated by the audience.

The contestants were Mildred Shirley, Earle Pinney, Mae Whitten, Lorenzo Crumly, Esther Hodson, Deane Wright, and Edna Runde. Every piece was well selected and splendidly rendered. The judges awarded the medal to Mae Whitten.

The degree of excellence attained in the contest revealed careful preparation, patient training, and splendid talent. The freedom of these children upon the platform, the clear enunciation, and forceful expression, would do credit to high school pupils. They all deserved a medal but as only one could have it the decision of the judges met with general approval.

The program was supplemented by songs by the little people, and by the male quartet. Miss Hannon also gave a very touching reading which brought tears to many eyes. Short talks were given by the City Mayor, several of the pastors and Prof. Wiley, who with well chosen words presented the medal.

The emphasis of the meeting was placed more upon the evils of the use of tobacco than upon other forms of intemperance and rightly so. For with boys the cigarette is usually the first step toward inebriety and criminality. All agree that smoking among boys is a great evil, and it is shocking to see girls and women smoking. The question is pertinent, can the boy be blamed for puffing his cigarette when he has constantly before him the example of father and prominent men, daily smoking their cigars and pipes? And why is uncleanness in woman more objectionable than in man?

Let us encourage the W. C. T. U. in their work for temperance and purity, among all classes, a single standard for both sexes, and in their educational and inspirational work among the young.

A NATIONAL TUBERCULOSIS SUNDAY ON APRIL 24th.

Churches Are Being Enlisted in Consumption Crusade.

Announcement of a national tuberculosis Sunday to be held on April 24th in 215,000 churches of the United States was made today by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

Following campaigns against consumption that have been carried on in the churches of hundreds of cities, and sermons on tuberculosis that have been preached before thousands of congregations during the past year, a movement has been started to establish a permanent tuberculosis Sunday, on which it is hoped that every one of the 33,000,000 church-goers in the United States will hear the gospel of health. It is planned to enlist the active co-operation of anti-tuberculosis organizations, labor unions, fraternal organizations, and other bodies together with the churches in the movement. The aid of leading churchmen in many of the principal denominations has already been offered. All of the large inter-denominational bodies, such as the Young Men's Christian Association, the Young Women's Christian Association, the King's Daughters and Sons, and the various young people's societies are also in sympathy with the anti-tuberculosis campaign.

It is planned that on April 24th tuberculosis sermons shall be preached in all the churches of the country. Literature will be distributed to members of the congregations, and in every way an effort will be made to teach that tuberculosis is a dangerous disease and that it can be prevented and cured.

Clergymen who desire to obtain additional information in regard to tuberculosis will be able to secure literature from state and local anti-tuberculosis associations and boards of health, as well as from the National Association.

Don't be too much impressed with what "everybody says." Sometimes this "everybody" is nothing more than some neighborhood gossip.

The greatest blessing in the world is a cheerful, sunny heart.
