THURSDAY, JULY 14, 1910.

The "Is it hot enough for you" fiend is again at large.

A lone Oregon editor who is zealously fighting prohibition for Oregon said last week that he thinks the proper thing to do is to purify the saloons! And his Satanic Majesty is still chuckling.

Sometimes we are inclined to doubt the personality of the Devil, but when we think how some silly and scandalous stories get into circulation, even in so good a town as Newberg, our doubts are immediately set at rest.

Editor Martin of the Telephone-Register, with tears dripping from his pen, writes to the Republicans of Yamhill about "the hand writing on the wall." In this case however it is a plain case of Daniel doing the shivering at the knees. The lions'll git you, if you don't watch out!

The Salem Journal boastfully refers to the great number of sales of bottled beer made by the Salem brewery for shipment into the dry counties of the state. The information is timely and the Journal will have ample time to see how those same dry counties will go at it to close that source of supply, says the Amity Standard. Oregon dry in 1910.

The Graphic regrets very much to note the bill boards which are being put up over town. Newberg is a progressive little city and we have all been exerting ourselves to make it clean and attractive. The glaring bill board nuisance is decidedly a step in the opposite direction and we don't believe property owners can afford to sell the use of their premises for such a purpose.

The people of Newberg have done nobly in their support of Pacific College and have clearly manifested their interest in the institution. But there are other ways than financial in which that interest and support should be continued. By taking a little pains and thought the people of this vicinity can materially increase the attendance of the college. Be free to speak a good word for our home institution and mention the substantial improvements which are just ahead. If you know of any young people here or elsewhere who might be interested in higher education, give the names to some one connected with the college, preferably to Prof. Reagan, acting president. By such co-operation you will do a favor to the young people, to Pacific College and at the same time will be benefitting Newberg.

Change of Express Rates for Newberg.

The Graphic is in receipt of a communication from the Railroad Commission of Oregon announcing the cut which it has just made in express rates in the state. An idea of the extent of the cut and what it means to Newberg can be had from the following figures, which show the old and the new rate between Newberg and the points mentioned. The figures represent cents per 100 lbs.

News Items of the Northwest.

An annual apple show that will reach big proportions has been determined on for Portland. The first such exhibit will be held in November and it is expected to have the entire state represented in a way never before attempted. The Commercial Club, business men and hotel men's association have all entered heartily into the project at the instance of the Oregon State Horticultural Society, which proposes to celebrate its quarter centennial this Fall by inaugurating a big annual apple fair that is expected to grow with each passing year until it attains proportions where it will attract national interest.

Oregon, in addition to an efficient state militia, is to have an organization of Naval Reserves. Steps have already been taken to form such an organization, which will maintain the same relation to the navy in time of war that the militia does to the army. Ex-navy men and others interested formed a temporary organization at Portland during the past week. This will be made permanent as soon as possible.

Willamette Valley dairymen are to have the chance of listening to one of the greatest experts in dairying in the world, when Professor Bernhard Boegild of the Royal Danish Agricultural College at Copenhagen arrives here July 18. Oregon City, Corvallis, Salem, Albany, Forest Grove and McMinnville will be visited and the Commercial Clubs will entertain the visiting expert. He is studying American dairy conditions and he will no doubt give many hints in his talks that will be of great value to the industry in Oregon.

Preliminaries for the annual livestock show and races at the Country Club grounds next September are now under way and the arrangements indicate this year's show will be more successful than ever. The fair will open on Labor Day and not only Portland people but those of outside points are interested in its success.

A Lake County Announcement.

From the appearance of things, if almost daily buggy rides are any indications, besides three or four visits at the home between drives, there will be a wedding in the near future. Of course no one can guess who we mean?—Silver Lake Leader.

Housewife—Are you willing to chop some wood for your dinner?
Plodding Pete—Sorry, mum, but I am a Pinchot man.

Notice of Final Settlement.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned Cecil J. Hopkins as the administrator of the estate of Cyrus E. Hopkins, deceased, has filed the final account of his administration upon said estate in the County Court of Yamhill County, Oregon, and said Court has appointed the 6th day of September A. D. 1910, at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day at the Court room of said Court in the Court house at McMinnville Yamhill County, Oregon, as the time and the place for the final hearing of said final account and for the final settlement of said estate.

Therefore all persons interested in said estate are hereby notified and required to be and appear at said time and place so appointed for the final hearing of said final account and then and there show cause if any exists why said final account should not be allowed and approved and said estate forever and finally settled and said administrator discharged and his bondmen released and exonerated. Dated this July 14th, A. D. 1910.

CECIL J. HOPKINS,
As administrator of said estate.

FRANK W. FENTON,
Attorney for said estate.

HEROIC TREATMENT.

The Chinese Doctor's Methods Were Severe, but Efficacious.

This is the Chinese medical treatment which a missionary underwent: Having been thrown from his horse and left fainting in the street, he was carried into a house, where a doctor soon visited him. "He made me sit up in bed, placing near me a large basin filled with water, in which he put a thick piece of ice to reduce it to freezing point. Then, stripping me to the waist, he made me stretch my neck over the basin while he continued to pour the water on my neck with a cup. The pain caused by those nerves which take their rise from the 'pia mater' was so great and so insufferable that it seemed to me unequalled, but he said it would stanch the blood and restore me to my senses, which was actually the case, for in a short time my sight became clear and my mind resumed its powers. He next bound my head with a band drawn tight by two men, who held the ends while he struck the intermediate parts vigorously with a piece of wood, which shook my head violently and gave me dreadful pain. This, he said, was to settle the brain, which he supposed had been displaced, and it is true that after the second operation my head felt more free.

"A third operation was now performed, during which he made me, still stripped to the waist, walk in the open air supported by two persons, and while thus walking he unexpectedly threw a basin of freezing cold water over my breast. As this caused me to draw my breath with great vehemence and as my chest had been injured by the fall, it may easily be imagined what were my sufferings under this affliction, but I was consoled by the information that if any rib had been dislocated this sudden and hard breathing would restore it to its natural position. The next proceeding was not less painful and extravagant. The operator made me sit on the ground, and assisted by two men, held a cloth upon my mouth and nose till I was almost suffocated. 'This,' said the Chinese Asculapius, 'by causing a violent heaving of the chest will force back any rib that may have been dislocated.' The wound in my head not being deep, he healed it by stuffing it with burned cotton. He then ordered that I should continue to walk much, supported by two persons; that I should not sit long or be allowed to sleep till 10 o'clock at night, at which time I should eat a little thin rice soup. He assured me that these walks in the open air while fasting would prevent the blood from settling upon the chest, where it might corrupt. These remedies, though barbarous and excruciating, cured me so completely that in seven days I was able to resume my journey."—London Lancet.

Resourceful Pussy.

Short—I thought you were going to drown that cat?

Long—Well, they say a cat has nine lives, but this one has twenty. I think. Why, I actually put that cat into a tub of water and tied a brick round its neck, and what do you think?

Short—Goodness knows.

Long—Well, this morning when I went to look at the tub the cat had swallowed all the water and was sitting on the brick.—Tit-Bits.

Compact Quarters.

It was the tiniest of tiny flats. "Yes, sir," said the maid, "the stork arrived with a fine baby boy." "Great Josephus!" exclaimed Mr. Flatte, who had been away on a trip. "That means more room. Have you hung the broom in the air shaft?"

"Yes, sir."

"And trimmed the leaves of the rubber plant down to one-half their normal size?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then take the pet dog to the fancier's and have his tail cut off. We must economize room some way. Thank goodness it wasn't twins!"—Chicago News.

THE FIRST WOMAN.

An Old Eastern Legend That Tells How She Was Created.

The last section "Of a Finger of the Moon Reddened by the Setting Sun" in the Sanskrit work called the "Surging of the Ocean of Time" contains a legend concerning woman's creation which is commonly credited throughout India and which runs somewhat as follows: At the beginning of time Twashtri, the Vulcan of Hindoo mythology, created the world. But when he wished to create a woman he found he had employed all his materials in the creation of man. There did not remain one solid element. Then Twashtri, perplexed, fell into a profound meditation. He roused himself to do as follows: He took the lightness of the leaf and the glance of the fawn, the gayety of the sun's rays and tears of the mist, the inconstancy of the wind and the timidity of the hare, the vanity of the peacock and the softness of the down on the throat of the swallow, the harshness of the diamond, the sweet flavor of honey, the cruelty of the tiger, the warmth of fire, the chill of snow, the chatter of the jay and the cooing of the turtle-dove. He melted all these and formed a woman. Then he made a present of her to man. Eight days later the man came to Twashtri and said:

"My lord, the creature you gave me poisons my existence. She chatters without rest, she takes all my time, she laments for nothing at all and is always ill." And Twashtri received the woman again. But eight days later the man came again to the god and said:

"My lord, my life is very solitary since I returned this creature. I remember she danced before my singing. I recall how she glanced at me from the corner of her eye, that she played with me, clung to me." And Twashtri returned the woman to him. Three days only passed, and Twashtri saw the man coming to him again.

"My lord," said he, "I do not understand exactly how, but I'm sure the woman causes me more annoyance than pleasure. I beg of you relieve me of her."

But Twashtri cried, "Go your way and do your best!"

And the man cried, "I cannot live with her!"

"Neither can you live without her," replied Twashtri.

And the man went sorrowfully away, murmuring: "Woe is me. I can neither live with her nor without her."

The Filipino Judge.

A former official in the Philippines tells this story of a native judge:

I came home one day just in time to see a thief climbing out the window with the better part of my wardrobe. I gave chase so earnestly that the thief finally dropped the clothes in the street and disappeared. As I gathered up my belongings a native policeman came along and insisted on arresting me. He took me before a Filipino judge, where I told my story very plainly and emphatically.

When I had finished the judge said, "You are dismissed, but you may leave the clothes here."

"But why?" I insisted angrily.

"Because," said he, with sage deliberation, "how can I tell that you speak the truth? When the thief comes back to identify these clothes as the ones he stole you may have them."—Youth's Companion.

Common Taters.

One morning a popular young minister was presenting his view upon an important subject under discussion and insisting that he held certain things to be true, the commentators notwithstanding. He contended, "I hold this to be true even though the commentators disagree with me, and again I say even though the commentators disagree with me." At this point an old lady was seen to leave the church. On his way home from the service the minister was met by this old lady bearing a basket. She stopped and handed it to him, saying, "Dear brother, I heered you say the common taters disagree with you, so I've brought you a basket of Virginia yams."—National Monthly.

Seaweeds.

"There is much that is wonderful to be told about seaweeds," said a naturalist. "Some of them are giants in size. One species, common in the North sea, frequently grows to the length of thirty or forty feet, developing in the shape of a long cord about the size of a quill, attached at one end to the bottom and the rest supported by the water. This is nothing, however, to the prodigious macrocystis, which attains 1,500 feet in length. Another variety found in the tropics reaches a length of twenty-five or thirty feet, with a trunk as thick as a man's thigh."
