$1.50 Per Year in Advance

"Sane Fourth" are becoming so popular that Eugene has decided to have two of them this year, July 3-4.

That fine rain will work wonders in reducing the high cost of living. See the potato vines spread out in response to the overtures of the added moisture.

Swat the fly that has nothing to do but tickle the back of the neck of the victim who must stick to his post of duty, grinding out copy for the people at the case in the back room.

Fire Chief Dave Campbell, who lost his life in the Portland fire last Monday, was known by many people in the Northwest outside of Portland who were shocked on hearing of his untimely death.

W. J. Clarke has sold the Gervais Star to Hugh D. Mars. Mr. Clarke established the Star several years ago with very little capital but by sticking close to business he made money and was able to pull out with considerable surplus. He now has an interest in a job office in Portland.

While our friends in the Atlantic and Mississippi valley states have been roasting with heat during the past month, here in the Willamette valley there has scarcely been a morning or evening during this time but that a fire added comfort to a sitting room. As a summer resort the Willamette valley is hard to excel.

The Graphic has the request to make of the ladies who desire to use space in its columns in the interests of the American Woman's League, to prepare the copy early in the week. The last few hours before going to press can't well be given over to setting lengthy articles that could as well have been brought to the office earlier. Others who desire to be heard through the Graphic will also please note the above request, and as far as possible govern themselves accordingly. By heeding this request the office force will be kept in better humor on press day and vexatious delays in mailing the paper will often be avoided.

MEETING OF GRANGE

The monthly meeting of Walnut Grange No. 455 was held near Dundee on Saturday, June 24th. Single tax was the subject for discussion and while the subject was not by any means exhausted, all gained much information in the time devoted to its consideration. Music and recitations were also enjoyed. The purpose of the newly formed Tax Payers' League of Yamhill county, was explained by Mr. C. A. Berry, of McMinnville, and resolutions endorsing the movement were passed.

It was decided by some of the members who were unable to attend a 4th of July celebration at any distance, and who wished to enjoy an outing on that day, to have a basket picnic to which they would invite any other persons in the community similarly placed to bring their baskets and enjoy the day. The outing will be held at the Stevens farm on the Dundee-Dayton road.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Preaching next Sabbath morning and evening. Morning subject, "Assigning Trouble to the Wrong Cause." Evening topic, "Slaves Under the Stars and Stripes." All are invited.

MRS. R. H. MILLS HOSTESS

The report of the following social events having been misplaced in our office last week, we publish them at this time.

The social whirl of the capital city not being sufficiently strenuous, Mrs. Roy H. Mills came to Newberg and gave a shower at the home of her mother, Mrs. Charles K. Spaulding, Tuesday evening for Miss Eva Miller of this city. In the dining room clusters of red roses and festoons of hearts dotted with cupids made effective decoration for the serving of sandwiches, fruit-salad, strawberry ice, punch and cake. At her departure Miss Miller became the owner of a copious shower of miscellaneous gifts presented by the following guests: Mesdames U. S. G. Miller, Charles K. Spaulding, Elmer Thorne, Lewis Mills, Walter Wilson, Edward Kienle, Pearl Masters, L. Y. Slater and the Misses Grace Wilson, Golda Wilson, Mabel Miller, Vera Stannard, Gwendolen Stannard, Pearl Cobb, Ola Mills, Lucy Mills, Ruth Romig, Katherine Romig, La Verne Miller, Alice Tyndall, Nellie Angus, Nell Reuter, Lillian Reuter, Jessie Gardner, Floris Derby, Edna Hill and Ila Spaulding.

At the noon hour on Tuesday, June 20th at her home, Miss Grace Wilson assisted by Miss Pearl Cobb served a delightful luncheon making Miss Eva Miller guest of honor. At an appropriate time a beautiful hand painted tea set was presented to Miss Miller. Covers were laid for the following ladies: Mrs. Edward Kienle, Mrs. Walter Wilson, Mrs. Roy H. Mills and the Misses Eva Miller, Mabel Miller, Nell Reuter, Lillian Reuter, Alice Tyndall, Pearl Cobb, Grace Wilson and Golda Wilson.

CAPITAL CITY CHERRY FAIR

The Salem Cherry Fair this year will surpass any three-day carnival ever put on in Oregon, and is billed for July 6, 7 and 8. The big civic and industrial parade takes place Thursday, the automobile parade Friday, the comic parade Saturday evening. For each of these hundreds of dollars in prizes are offered, and the baby parade Saturday forenoon has another hundred dollars in prizes for the best babies and the best decorated go-carts, home-made baby trucks and high-toned perambulators. The oriental feature will have a $250 float. The German society will have a $100 float drawn by six white horses. The lodges and state institutions and the Indian school from Chemawa will have special features. Fire department, Salem police, King Bing and Queen Anne, the clowns, the hoboes and the country fiddlers will be there. The Capital City is sending out five thousand cherry postal card invitations extending the hospitality of the Cherry City of the World to their personal friends far and near. It will be a home coming day for all who have ever lived in the city of peace and prosperity. The cherry show proper will be at Marion Square, around which will be grouped the Arnold Carnival attractions. Thursday noon will be the occasion of the Iowa basket picnic, when all Hawkeyes will assemble at their annual reunion.

CHEHALEM CENTER

Alfred Smith and wife, of Georgetown, Illinois, are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Shires, Mrs. Smith being a sister to Mrs. Shires.

Ed. Erickson and his mother returned to Portland Monday evening after making a week's visit with Mr. and Mrs. C. Jacobson.

Quite a number of the ladies of the W. C. T. U. met with Mrs. C. L. Johnson June 14th. Full reports were given in by most of the superintendents, which goes to show the union is not idle. Three dollars and a half were voted for county work. Meeting adjourned to meet next month with Mrs. J. C. Wills.

Miss Nellie Paulsen was greeting old friends at the church last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Adams left Tuesday for Eastern Oregon.

Mr. Paulsen, a nephew of H. C. Paulsen's is spending some time visiting there.

Prayer meeting held this week at the home of Rev. T. E. Hockett.

E. B. Ridgway and Mr. Harrison attended the religious camp meetings at Woodburn week before last.

UNDER FIVE FLAGS.

The 'Old City of Pensacola Has a Unique Claim to Fame.

Pensacola, unique and interesting in many ways, is not more so in any instance than as regards her history. Meaning, according to the Indians, "City of Sorrows," it showed its right to such appellation for the first three centuries, and its early career was not an uncheckered one. But those are days of the far and distant past, and there is nothing now to remind one of the Indian translation.

Pensacola has one distinction which is perhaps unpossessed by any other municipality on earth unless it be some of the towns in those little republics to the south of us where revolutions and governmental changes take place with the regularity of the moon's phases. That is that on thirteen separate and distinct occasions it has passed from the hands of one government to the other, and five different national flags have been unfurled within its confines.

The streets have been in possession of the United States, the Southern Confederacy, Spain, France and Great Britain. Old Fort Pickens was built by the United States about 1835, and Fort McRae was constructed in the period between 1830 and 1840.

In 1559 there took place the first settlement of Pensacola, conducted by Don Tristan de Luna. Charles V. of Spain had listened to the entreaties of the bishop of Cuba and the viceroy of Mexico and had been prevailed upon to attempt a settlement in Florida, whose immense advantages, bestowed by prodigal nature, had even at that date begun to be recognized. De Luna entered the beautiful bay, which he called Santa Maria, and landed. The city was at that time called Puerta de Anehu. At or near the site of the present city was where he established his base of operations, and from here he conducted many explorations into the interior. De Luna soon afterward grew discouraged and returned to his native land, but the date of his original landing, four years previous to the settlement of St. Augustine, gives to Pensacola a legitimate claim as the oldest city in the United States.

In later days the Deep Water City has had an interesting history too. The government of the United States had gone to no inconsiderable expense in building forts around the mouth of the bay, and during the war between the states there was much active fighting here. Within forty-eight hours after Florida seceded from the Union the Confederate forces had possession of the navy yard, Fort Barrancas and Fort McRae on the mainland, but throughout the conflict the Federal held possession of Fort Pickens, on the end of Santa Rosa island, across the bay.

From the navy yard to Fort McRae was made a continuous line of fortifications, nearly five miles in total length and made up of a score of batteries.—Jacksonville Times.

A Fountain Marvel.

One of the natural marvels of France is the fountain or source of the Coulomp, a small river in the department of the Basses-Alpes. Out of a mighty limestone wall about 4,600 feet high springs a fountain of water yielding even in the driest times about 300 gallons a second and forming a full born river, which begins its career with a series of leaps aggregating 100 feet of descent. It is thought that the water must pass under the mountain by subterranean channels at least a mile in length.—Dundee Advertiser.

KITES IN JAPAN

Flying Tests and Battles in the Air Are Holiday Pastimes.

In Japan there is an annual feast day for boys, when each house having male children hangs out strings of paper carp, which, inflated by the breeze, become lifelike monster fish.

"It was on this feast day," says a writer in the Wide World, "that we left Yokohama for Kamakura, once the eastern capital of Japan, now merely a quiet little seaside village."

As it was such an important occasion, the whole world made holiday, some families hurrying to the seashore to fly their enormous humming kites, from which the parents appeared to derive quite as much enjoyment as the children. The loud hum emitted by the soaring kite is caused by a piece of thin bamboo which is stretched tightly across from shoulder to shoulder.

"The taut bamboo filament not only acts as an aeolian harp, but bends the whole kite, so that its surface is concave instead of being, as in our kites, a plane. The noise when some three-score or so of these monsters are in the air at the same time is deafening.

"The Japanese kite has no tail, but is furnished with numerous long streamers. Great competitions are held by the owners of the kites, and occasionally a mimic battle will be fought in the air, the rival factions endeavoring by means of powdered glass, which has been previously worked into a definite length of the kite strings, to saw through a rival's string and so bring the vanquished kite tumbling ignominiously to the ground."

Too Much For the Ghost.

Dr. Thomson when archbishop of York was put into a "haunted room" to spend the night. Next morning his hostess asked eagerly, "Well, did your grace see anything last night?" "Well, yes," replied the archbishop. "At about 12 o'clock I heard a knock at the door." "Oh, that would be the ghost; that is exactly what he does. What did you do?" "I said, 'Come in.'" "And did he?" "Yes; an old, sallow looking man. I got out of bed and went up to him. 'Do you belong to this house?' I asked. He nodded assent. 'Are you a parishioner?' I asked. Again he nodded assent. 'Then,' said I, 'I am anxious to build some new schools. Will you give me a subscription?' And, my dear lady, he immediately vanished, and I saw no more of him."—London Chronicle.
