

COAST PATHFINDERS REACH NEWBERG ON LONG TOUR

Famous Globe-Girdling Auto
Now Tracing El Camino
Real.

Pacific Highway, From Santa
Thomas Mission, Mexico, to Vancouver, B. C., is Being
Mapped by Dr. C. G.
Percival, Editor of Health Magazine.

Dr. Charles C. Percival, editor of Health Magazine of New York City, and George D. Brown, of Detroit, in the famous globe-girdling Abbott-Detroit "Bulldog" automobile, which is path-finding a new route for the proposed Pacific international highway, from Tia Juana, Mexico, to Vancouver, British Columbia, arrived in Newberg from San Francisco Sunday noon with a total mileage to date of 32485. Dr. Percival has been traveling since last July and has been in 48 states and 3-4 around the border of the United States, and spent three weeks in Mexico during the recent rebellion. The present run is being made under the auspices of the El Camino Real Association and Pacific Motoring, the oldest motor magazine on the Pacific Coast, and the idea is to perpetuate El Camino Real or the King's highway, the old road built over 100 years ago by the mission priests, and which for nearly a century was the old road on the Pacific Coast and the 21 missions extending from Santa Thomas mission in Mexico, 121 miles below San Diego, California, to San Francisco, the old place where the wayfarer could find rest and refreshment.

Dr. Percival and Mr. Brown contemplate visiting Alaska and will try to drive as far north as parallel 64 and thus obtain the honor of having been the first automobilists to penetrate the Arctic circle and get near the north pole.

For this trip the Abbott will be equipped with front runners in place of wheels and special spiked tires on the rear wheels will give traction over the snow and ice of the Arctic circle. From Alaska the trip will continue back to Seattle and across Canada to Montreal and New York City, thus completing the first automobile trip around the borders of the United States and into every state. From New York the trip will go to the Isthmus of Panama and then to the Sandwich Islands, Japan, China, the Philippines, Australia, New Zealand, Africa, Asia and Europe, it being the intention of Dr. Percival to make a complete trip of the entire world, which will, it is figured, take at least two more years. The idea is to make the entire trip, which is scheduled to cover 100,000 miles, with the same automobile, which will be turned over at the completion of automobile engineers to be appointed by the American Automobile Association, who will tear it down and render an exhaustive report, which will, it is hoped, prove of great value to the industry at large.

Plural and Singular.

We'll begin with a box, and the plural is boxes.

But the plural of ox should be oxen, not oxes.

Then one fowl is goose, but two are called geese.

Yet the plural of mouse should never be meese;

You may find a lone mouse or a whole lot of mice.

But the plural of house is houses, not hicc.

If the plural of man is always called men,

Why shouldn't the plural of pan be called pen?

The cow in the plural may be cows or kine,

But a bow if repeated is never called bine.

And the plural of vow is vows, not vine,

And if I speak of a foot and you show me your feet,

And I give you a boot, would a pair be called beet?

If one is a tooth, and a whole set are teeth,

Why shouldn't the plural of booth be called beeth?

If the singular's this and the plural is these,

Then one may be that, and three would be those,

Yet hat in the plural would never be hose,

And the plural of cat is cats, not cose.

We speak of a brother and also of brethren,

But though we say mother we never say methren,

Then masculine pronouns are he, his, and him.

But imagine the feminine, she, this, and shim.

So the English, I think, you all will agree,

Is the most wonderful language you ever did see.—Penny Pictorial.

Helen: "Why, he yawned three times while I was talking to him!"

Myrtle: "Perhaps he wasn't yawning. He may have been trying to say something!"—Modern Society.

Alarmed Motorist (after collision): "Are you hurt?"

Butcher's Boy: "Where's my kidneys?"—Punch.

Doctor: "Do you have a stuffed feeling after eating?"

Patient: "Do I? I feel like a Philadelphia ballot box!"—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

"We must go to some quiet, inexpensive place next summer," said the man who worries.

"Great heavens!" exclaimed his wife. "Don't talk so gressomely! You know that there are no longer any quiet or inexpensive places except cemeteries."—Washington Star.

"She is very liberal in her charities," said one woman.

"Yes," answered the other; "liberal, but not always practical. For instance, she wanted to send alarm clocks to Africa to aid sufferers from the sleeping-sickness."—Washington Star.

Origin of "Attorney."

In the time of our Saxon ancestors the freemen in every shire met twice a year under the presidency of the shire reeve, or sheriff, and this meeting was called the sheriff's torn. By degrees the freemen declined giving their personal attendance, and a freeman who did attend carried with him the proxies of such of his friends as could not appear. He who actually went to the sheriff's torn was said, according to the old Saxon, to go "at the torn," and hence came the word attorney, which signified one who went to the torn for others, carrying with him a power to act or vote for those who employed him. The distinction between attorney and solicitor arises from the latter practicing in a court of equity and the former only in a court of law.—St. James' Gazette.

The Explanation.

He was a raw recruit, just enrolled in a crack cavalry regiment and paying his first visit to the riding school.

"Ere's yer 'orse," said the instructor.

The recruit advanced, took the bridle gingerly and examined his mount with great care.

"What's it got this strap round it for?" he asked, pointing to the girth.

"Well," explained the instructor solemnly, "you see, all our horses 'ave a keen sense of humor, an' as they sometimes 'ave sudden fits of laughter when they see the recruits we put bands round 'em to keep 'em from burstin' their sides!"—London Tit-Bits.
