Out of the Ginger Jar.

How much can the pullet? The tomato can but will it? A rat in the trap is worth two in the hair.

At any rate the clam knows enough to shut up.

It is useless to advise an aviator not to "go up in the air," for that is his business.

Home-made things are often the best. Especially is this true of the home-made man.

The man with his all invested in mining stocks is seldom in a position to rest on his ore.

Many a woman sits up late in the nights before Christmas engaged in making a hem for a him.

Too often the profits of farming are less in evidence than the prophets of farming; more's the pity!

If, as alleged, the main business of life is making money, it is amazing the number of people who fail at it.

The farmers of this country are fast reaching the conviction that the parcels post is a good post to hitch to.

The ostrich is only secondarily responsible for the big millinery bills. It does not part with its feathers willingly.

It is reported that in some sections last summer the robins nested on the ground in order to reduce the cost of high living.

Speaking of aids to agriculture, there is the cut-worm which volunteers to cut the farmer's corn long before he is ready to do it himself.

The genius is a man who thinks of something that immediately sets all other men to wondering why they hadn't thought of it themselves.

Before you kick the other fellow for not bringing home the borrowed mail, go down to the barn and see if his borrowed ax stands behind the door.

Things are not always what they seem. When Johnny is met at the door with the injunction to "wipe his feet," what really is meant is that he must clean his shoes.

CHEHALEM LODGE NO. 108 K. OF P. INSTALLED OFFICERS

Dr. John S. Rankin, Deputy Grand Chancellor, installed the following officers on Friday night, January 5.

George C. Ritchey, C. C.; Nelson Brouillette, V. C.; E. O. Van Osdal, Prelate; J. H. Sherlock, M. of W.; V. A. Vincent, K. of R. and S. and M. of F.; Arthur Baird, M. at A.; Kenneth Hanson, I. G.; J. S. Rankin, O. G.

Just Reminded Him.

A colored preacher was vehemently denouncing the sins of his congregation. "Bred'ern an' sistern, Ah warns yo' against de heinous sin o' shootin' craps! Ah charges yo' against de brack rascality o' litten pullets! But, above all else, breddern and sistern, Ah demonishes you' at dis hyer season against de crime o' melon stealin'!" A brother in a back seat made an odd sound with his lips, rose and snapped his fingers. Then he sat down again with an abashed look. "Whuffo, mah frien'," said the preacher sternly, "does yo' r'ar up an' snap yo' fingahs when Ah speaks o' melon stealin'?" "Yo' jes reminds me, pahson," the man in the back seat answered meekly, "wha' Ahlef mah knife." —San Francisco Argonaut.

Jan. 21, "Accepting Invitations," John 2:1-11.

Feb. 4, "Paying Attention," John 4:1-26.

The music for all these evening services will receive special attention.

How It Happened.

WHERE WOMAN PROPOSES.

An Odd Welsh Town Where the Sexes Have Changed Places.

Llangwm, in Pembrokeshire, Wales, is a huddled group of blunt stone cottages upon the luxuriant bank of the river Cleddau and within view of the Atlantic. Were it not for its strange customs and the relations of the sexes Llangwm would not merit special attention. The inhabitants are of Flemish origin. In this community mere man no longer holds sway as head of the household, nor is he compelled to earn his own living.

This is what occurs to him in Llangwm: If a likely youth and if arrived at the age—not necessarily of discretion—and size that enable him to make himself useful about the house in cooking, washing, cleaning, bedmaking and such other duties as usually are discharged by the weaker sex, he is approached by some maiden who has "laid eyes on him"; a few words are spoken, perhaps kisses interchanged, and the bargain is completed. Such embarrassing duties as "asking ma and pa" and those incidents peculiar to courtship in other localities are quite unnecessary at Llangwm. The marriage ceremony is of the simplest character, and no such thing as a honeymoon is allowed. The youth settles himself down to his life job and is happy so long as he does not become entangled with the heads of the other households.

The Llangwm maiden is an expert fisherwoman. She rises early and braves all weathers. She not only catches her fish, but sells it in the neighboring towns. She is usually stronger than the average champion oarsman and can row with almost as much skill.

Of course the wife is the chancellor of the exchequer in this strange community. As she earns the money she naturally feels competent to spend it to the best advantage. Indeed, the husband, known among the fishwives as "my man," is not considered sufficiently elevated to buy his own Sunday clothes. The domestic fisherwoman queen selects such garments as may suit her taste, and from her decision there is no appeal.

In religious matters the Llangwmians are extremely straitlaced. Dancing, card playing, novel reading are absolutely barred. No intoxicating liquor can be obtained in the place, for years ago the inhabitants revolted against the opening of an inn.

In the house conversation is not allowed during meals, and although newspapers are sometimes brought in they are hidden away from Saturday night until Monday morning. The villagers look askance at all strangers picking their way along the narrow street and stigmatize them as foreigners.—Exchange.

The Wise Fox.

The Lion, the Ass and the Fox went hunting together, and it was agreed that whatever was taken should be shared between them. They caught a large fat Stag, which the Lion ordered the Ass to divide. The Ass took a deal of pains to divide the Stag into three pieces, which should be as nearly equal as possible. The Lion, enraged with him for what he considered a want of proper respect to his quality, flew upon him and tore him to pieces. He then called on the Fox to divide. The Fox, nibbling off a small portion for himself, left the rest for the Lion's share. The Lion, highly pleased with this mark of respect, asked the Fox where he had learned such politeness and good breeding. "To tell the truth, sire," replied the Fox, "I was taught it by the Ass that has been dead there." —Aesop.

An M. P. was discussing voting fraud—impersonation and the duplication of votes generally. He instanced one duplicator, an ignorant fellow who had the stolid and unmoved look of an animal.

"When they arrested him he asked what crime lay at his door."

"You are charged," said the policeman, "with having voted twice."

"Charged, am I?" muttered the prisoner. "That's odd. I expected to be paid for it." —London Watch-dog.
