Deafness is Ofttimes an Embarrasement, as Ehud Will Aver.

The young minister temporarily officiating at Hankins Falls for the summer met Ehud Leffingwell as he was walking to church on Sunday

"How do, Mr. Leffingwell?" he cried cheerfully. "Going to church this beautiful morning?

"Hay?" asked Ehud, who was pretty hard of hearing. "Hay?" "Are - you - coming - to church?" roared the minister.

"Nuh," Ehud responded. "Lookin' fer my caow. She must 'a' got out of the barn las' night. Unhooked the hasp, I cal'late, an' jest

"Come - on - to-church," the minister shouted cordially, "and after preaching I'll tell the congregation, and they'll help you. You'll get your cow much quicker."
"B'jocks! I'll go ye," said Ehud heartily, and he fell into step with the young minister. At the church door he was overcome by modesty and, declaring that he didn't have his Sunday go to meetin' clothes on, insisted upon sitting in one of the most distant pews.

He didn't hear the sermon at all, but he could tell when it was over by seeing the young minister fold up his manuscript and put it away. This done, the young man began to make announcements. Ehud raised his right hand in a great leathery scoop behind his ear, but still he heard nothing.

"My dear friends," said the minister, "it affords me great pleasure to tell you that on Tuesday evening next at the hour of 6 o'clock there will be celebrated at the home of the bride's parents the wedding of Mr. Edward Stoutenboro, one of our most esteemed and promising young men, and that charming, estimable young lady—as beautiful as she is good—Miss Mehitable Dodsworth.

As the minister ceased everybody was astonished to see Ehud Leffingwell arise in his pew.

Set In Her Ways.

Sweet Mary Jane sat fourteen days and wouldn't deign to rise, although her folks tried every way to make her realize that it was quite unladylike to sit all day and night and never change her attitude or rouse her appetite. They coaxed and teased and threatened her, and still she would not stand, and when they tried to raise her up she bit them on the hand. They didn't want to do her harm or call in the police, and yet they sorrowed at the thought of Mary Jane's disease. But Mary Jane knew what was best. She wiser was than men. She sat until she'd had her set, for Mary was a hen .- St. Louis Repub-

Low Forms of Life.

The readiness with which low forms of life accommodate themselves to altered environment shows that they are capable of being trained or educated to a certain extent. Stahl has shown that a certain plasmodium flees when sprinkled with salt, but if the salt be added to the medium gradually the organism accommodates itself to the new medium. Purposeful action is manifested by plants as well as by animals and by both unicellular and multicellular. - Ex-

Egg Cutlets.

Boil six eggs hard and make a white sauce as follows: Melt one tablespoonful of butter and stir two tablespoonfuls of flour in the melted butter, then pour one pint of milk and stir while cooking, and cook until it thickens. Then chop the eggs as fine as peas. Pour the white sauce over them, add a few eracker crumbs and salt and pepper. Then mold in the shape of an egg and roll in cracker crumbs and fry in butter .- National Food Mag-

THINGS WOMEN HATE.

Words of Wisdom a Female Would Tell Man.

For better or for worse, no man ever yet understood a woman or ever will. Men may know this, but they do not realize it or they never would imagine that they could improve a woman by telling her about shortcomings.

A woman hates to be corrected by a man. O man! Thoughtless, thankless, inconsistent man! This world would be a happier place if you ceased to go about trying to make women more sensible.

The sensible woman gives man his due. She admits he is stronger -stronger physically, stronger in mind. The very sensible woman admits that he should use his heaven sent power. Man should be the wise lord of woman. He should be her steps. Men object to the mare who is the better horse. But women hate to be forced to be chiefly responsible for pulling the cart of Woman, I say—and I do not speak as a fool—likes well enough to be lorded. What she hates is weakness in a man. She hates lack of decision. Finding it, she develops into a bully. Then, if only the poor, henpecked husband knew it. there is nothing in the world more ardently desired by the pecking hen than that the worm should turn and force her to give in.

And now I have some eight or nine other wise words to speak to you, O humorless man! And I say to you that women like men who do things. Unless you should make a false deduction I will put is?" it this way, A woman hates a man who does nothing.

It is given to all men to do. A woman seldom has compunction in taking the money that a man has Mrs. Blythe, who had stepped out inherited and will share with her, into the hall to take a voice in the but the man who cannot make discussion. money and can do nothing but part with it she holds in low esteem. It is another example of the lacking humor of men that they should laugh at women who fight for the shouted, "that her eyes ain't mates, hair of a Kubelik or kiss the ground trod upon by a conqueror.

O man-selfish, egotistical, swaggering being-listen again, and get understanding! Woman loves you in the nearest drug store. twenty-three he thought fate and knows that you cannot love her was making a special effort to keep as she loves, and she likes you to enjoy yourself and be happy.

She hates you to forget to say, as you were wont to say, how well At forty he believed he would her dress becomes ber, how charmhave been a great man if his chil- ing she is looking tonight. She hates you to forget her wedding day-she can never forget it. She hates you to interfere with the baby, because you know nothing about it. She hates to be left behind to mope when you go off on your holi-

And she hates the way you worship your pipe. It is not fair that men should have always the consolation of their pipes and wom-en only the consolation of their tears. Tobacco is fragrant, but tears are bitter.-London Express.

For Family Reasons.

It is characteristic of philosophers and scholars that once their mind is made up it is almost impossible to change it. They do not want it changed. The late Charles story illustrating this point. Mallock, the philosopher, once met Thomas Carlyle.

Mallock was a wiseman, but he and Carlyle differed in their views, and therefore Carlyle dubbed Mallock's opinions false and pernicious. When Mallock called on Carlyle he talked in his fluent way for two straight hours. Then he rose to go. At the door Carlyle, who had smoked the whole time in grim silence, took his pipe from his mouth and said mildly:

"Weel, goodby, Mr. Mallock. I've received ye kindly because I knew yer mither, but I never want to set eyes on ye again."

So He Had Heard.

During a history recitation in a Washington public school the eacher put the question: "When was Rome built?"

The first to answer was a youngster near the front, and his response was, "At night."

"At night!" repeated the astonished instructor. "How in the world did you get such an idea as that?"

"Why, I've often heard my dad say that Rome wasn't built in a day," said the boy. - Harper's Weekly.

Unusual, but Right. "Curtis," said the teacher, "suppose I had two squash pies and cut one into six pieces and the other into twelve pieces. Which pie would you rather have a piece of?"

"The one divided into twelve pieces," answered Curtis. "I don't like squash pie."—Chicago News.

SAVING THE WATER.

of Neighborly Trouble and Little Thanks For It. Mrs. Peabody had just laid down for her afternoon nap when a man from the water department came along and notified her that the water in that neighborhood would be cut off at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. Peabody said, "Oh, thank you!" and hurried in to prepare for the coming water famine. She filled the bathtub, the washtubs, the teakettle, the dishpan and three pitchers with that indispensable liquid. Then, having performed her duty to her own household, she turned her attention to her neighbors'

"My goodness!" said Mrs. Pea "There are those poor Mantells across the hall. They are all out. They won't know anything about the stoppage of the water supply, and consequently they won't have a drop of water for goodness knows how long." Mrs. Peabody, being by that time alive with sympathy, summoned the janitor.

"William," she said, "have you a sey for Mrs. Mantell's door?" "Naw," said William. "Ah did have one, but Mees Mantell she tak eet away. I gas she tank me steal sometang." "Well," exclaimed Mrs. Peabody somewhat warmly, "she'll be sorry after this that she let her unchariand bully her and overmaster her table suspicions run away with her common sense. When she get home tonight she won't find a dr of water in the house. Somebody ought to find her and advise her to come right home and fill the tubs and things. I wonder where she

"I know where she is," volunteered Mrs. Blythe. "She is making a speech at the mothers' meeting at Lyric hall."

"Thank you," said Mrs. Peabody We must notify her. I shall tele phone her immediately.'

Ten minutes later Mrs. Peabody was wrestling with the telephone said. "Oh, thank goodness, I have found you at last! This is Mrs. Peabody. Say, Mrs. Mantell, you are wanted at home at once. Some thing awful! No, oh, no, it isn't thieves, but nobody else can get into the flat, and it is very important that you come home just as soon as you can get here."

Mrs. Mantell made as good time on her home trip as even Mrs. Peabody could wish. "What-is-it?" . she gasped when she met Mrs. Peabody at the foot of the stairs. "Is anybody"-"Oh, dear, no, nothing like that," said Mrs. Peabody reassuringly, "but the water is going to be shut off at 3 o'clock, and I thought if you were not here to attend to it"-

Mrs. Mantell cut off further explanation with a look almost vindictive enough to shut off Mrs. Peabody berself for all time.

"Thank you," she said icily. "My husband is employed in the water department. He told me this morn-Eliot Norton, in his lectures on the I filled everything about the house history of art, is credited with a before I went to the meeting."-New York Herald.

Hot Water on a Fire.

"Queer things happen at fires, said a Cleveland man. "The other day the lace curtains caught on fire in an east side home, and there was some panic while the fire lasted, you bet. Everybody called for the imported cook out in the kitchen to hustle in with a dishpan or two of water. But she didn't arrive on the scene until somebody had pulled down the curtains and trampled out the flames.

"'Why didn't you hurry?' they asked her reproachfully.

"'Hurry,' she repeated. 'Wasn't I hurryin' as fast as I could. I had hot water in the dishpan when you hollered at me, and I had to throw out that and get some cold water. You didn't want me to come in and throw hot water on the fire and make it worse, did you?"-Washington Herald.

When Gambling Is Not Vice.

Wife (handing husband morning paper)-I see that several gambling lens were raided yesterday and a large quantity of gambling appliances seized.

Husband-I am glad of it. The police should wipe out those places at once. Those gamblers are a bad lot. Ha! I'm in luck. Those mining stocks have gone up and I come out something like three hundred ahead by yesterday's transactions. Good spec that. My dear, you shall have the new dress you want.
