PICKPOCKETS.

Tricks of Their Trade and How They May Be Avoided.

A veteran pickpocket who was recently arrested gave a description of the methods of his craft and told how a person may prevent his pocket being picked.

"A common fallacy is that pickpockets slip up to a man, insert their hands in his pockets, seize whatever they can and run," he said. "A man with a thousand dollars in his pocket is safe if he keeps out of a crowd. No matter how slick a pickpocket is, he will never attempt to rob a person until the victim's attention is drawn so strongly toward something else that he won't feel the hand in his pocket."

"The commonest method of preparing the victim is to have one of the pickpockets 'accidentally' drop a handful of small change on the ground. There is no person living who would not be absorbed at once. While the lead man is gathering his money and jostling about one of the others gets the victim's purse."

"Carry your money loose in your pocket. Pocketbooks are the only things pickpockets will take. They won't take the chance for a dollar or two."

"Never carry paper bills. If the government would stop issuing paper money the pickpockets would go out of business."

"Never become disconcerted in a crowd. If any one drops a package or any money in a crowd or especially when several persons are boarding a car, let him pick it up."

"Don't hurry to board a street car. Let the crowd get on first and you will have plenty of car fare where the ones who wanted to be sure of seats may not."

"If you are attracted by a crowd stand on the outskirts."

"Never exhibit money on the street, and, above all things, never leave a bank with a roll of bills still in your hands. Pickpockets wonder why persons are such fools as to put money into their pockets on the street."—San Antonio Express.

A Triple Coincidence.

A correspondent of the London Standard relates the following triple coincidence, taken from an old manuscript diary, dated 1842, in which a relative quotes from an "old journal." "In the year 1664, on Dec. 5, a boat on the Menai (Menai strait, in north Wales) crossing that strait, over which a bridge has since been built, with eighty-one passengers, was upset, and only one passenger, named Hugh Williams, was saved. On the same date, in the year 1785, was upset another boat, containing about sixty passengers, of whom all perished excepting one, whose name was Hugh Williams. On Aug. 5, 1820, a third boat met with the same disaster, with twenty-five passengers only, and all perished with the exception of one, whose name was Hugh Williams."

A Queer Insect.

The "walking sticks," "walking leaves," etc., are among the most curious forms of insects inhabiting tropical America. They belong to the great family of phasmidae and are as odd specimens of animated nature as one could well imagine. The type of the family is an elongated creature with a cylindrical brown body, looking exactly like a small limb or twig with the bark on. Some of the branches of this numerous family live in the torrid portions of Africa, where they attain enormous sizes. Vane, the great traveler, said he had seen them so large that "they had the general appearance of great, animated clubs moving up and down the branches and trunks of the gigantic tropical trees."

Meaning of C. O. D.

A Harvard senior ordered a couple of suits of clothes from his tailor and, as his allowance was about gone, had them sent to his room C. O. D. When the expressman arrived he managed to obtain the clothes by clever diplomacy without paying the C. O. D. He promised to see the tailor later. A week went by and the tailor became anxious and called upon the young man.

"What do you mean," he said, "by telling me to send suits C. O. D. and then not paying my bill? Don't you know what C. O. D. means?"

"Sure," replied the collegian; "it means call on dad."—Boston Traveler.

Palindromes.

The palindrome, or sentence which reads alike forward or backward, has exercised the ingenuity of many minds since Adam said to Eve, "Madam, I'm Adam." One which an exchange attributes to Boito, the composer, is a characterization of two of Shakespeare's heroes in Italian: "Ebro e Otel, ma Amleto e orbe" (Drunken is Othello, but Hamlet is mad).

DRUDGERY OF MUSIC.

Joachim Practiced One Composition For Over Sixty Years.

When an interviewer, who had put to Kubelik a question as to the number of hours a day he practiced, was answered, "Practically all my waking hours," it is probable that the interrogator, as well as others who heard the reply, thought the response a bit of artistic exaggeration. Yet there is much evidence to sustain Kubelik's assertion.

Paganini, the greatest of all violinists, was compelled by an avaricious father to practice twelve or fourteen hours each day. So wearied did Paganini become of his drudgery that for several years he actually laid aside the instrument over which he had such consummate control and devoted himself to agricultural pursuits. This period of musical disgust soon passed, however, and the violinist again turned to his hard work, and to such good purpose that there was nothing written for the violin, no matter what its technical difficulties might be, that he was not able to play. Late in his life Paganini gave over his practicing, for the reason, it is said, that he then played only his own compositions.

A saying of Rubinstein's indicates concisely the importance of unwearying practice, "Should I not practice for a day I know it, should I miss two days my friends know it, and should I miss three days even the public knows it."

Joachim, another violinist, during his student days was an inmate of the house of his master, and it was largely due to the inexorable demands to practice that the teacher laid on him that Joachim was enabled to attain his proud position. The room wherein the pupil practiced was without any window, but had a glass panel in the door. If the sound of Joachim's violin ceased for a moment during the hours set apart for practice, then could be seen the scowling face of the instructor peering through the panel. Joachim practiced one composition—the difficult Beethoven concerto—for over sixty years.

Mendelssohn has left an interesting observation touching his arduous hours of practice. Speaking of certain recitals he was giving on the organ, he said: "I became so interested in my work that whole days passed like hours. I practiced pedal passages to such an extent that the act of walking along the street actually transformed itself into a fugue, so automatic had my movements become."

With regard to his practicing Paderewski entertains some odd notions, one of which is a penchant for a nocturnal running of the scales. The great Pole has been known to spend the whole night in achieving perfection in one or two runs of a composition he is studying.

Paderewski has said that the greatest foe a musician has to fight is the feeling of satiety that is sure to oppress him should his work be not well apportioned. Each season the Pole finds that he must acquire some twenty to thirty new compositions. So hard does he work at these that at the conclusion of his short tour he cannot endure to hear a single bar of any of them. Like many other musicians, he is saved from inaction only by the acquirement of novelties. — New York Tribune.
