

PACIFIC COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT

Five Graduates from College and Eight Complete Academy Course—Miss Nell Reuter Wins $25 Prize and Miss Florence Rees Wins Penn Scholarship.

The old gold and navy blue has been in evidence in Newberg during the week, this being commencement time at Pacific College.

Baccalaureate services were held at Friends church on Sunday morning, Pres. Levi T. Pennington speaking from the text, "Your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions." He said in part:

It is natural for the old men to live in the past. It is fortunate when an old man still keeps his face to the future, as are some of the old men who, by their devotion and sacrifice, have made this occasion possible. But how ever much an old man may face the future, he will dream of the past.

And of what a past do the old men of today dream! A nation transformed, a world more changed within the memory of the old man of today than by all the changes that Methuselah saw in his life of nearly ten centuries. The Civil war, reconstruction, mighty business changes, religious awakenings, the frontier moving ever westward, the struggles of the early day in this part of the land—of these and a host of other things the old man dreams.

But the young man sees visions. His life is yet before him, and according to his vision and his fidelity to it will his life be a success or a failure, a blessing or a curse, a triumph or a calamity.

Every young person should get a vision of his own best self, physical, intellectual and spiritual. And as the sculptor sees his vision and embodies it in the marble, so by right living, physical, intellectual and spiritual, should the young man be true to his "after-self," to the man he may be in the days to come.

Every young man and woman should get a vision of the world, with its great problems still unsolved. The problems of social, industrial, economic justice is a big one. The problem of intemperance is a big one. There are plenty of gigantic problems awaiting solution, clamoring for solution. There are plenty of places for the service of humanity.

Every young person should get a vision of the greatest work in the world, world-evangelization. Culture is good, but does not go far enough to reach men's supreme need. Sociology is good, but you cannot socialize and soap-and-water a man into the image of God. The gospel of Jesus Christ must be brought to bear on the hearts of men. The evangelization of the world is the business of the church, her imperative duty. And every young man should get a vision of his share in that work of world evangelism, the greatest work ever undertaken by man.

And it is a work too great for man unless God helps. It is the vision of the Christ and that alone which will empower for the work that God would have done. Let us keep the Christ of Jerusalem and Jericho, of Galilee and Gilead, of Nazareth and Newberg before our eyes. And may our glorious visions, under His blessing, become living realities as we obey Him." Music for the occasion was furnished by the music department of the college, under the direction of Mrs. Hull.

CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATIONS

In the evening Rev. Charles Replogle, pastor of Friends church at Everett, Washington, made a felicitous talk to the assembled members of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. of the college, which was well received.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT

Monday evening was given to the program presented by Mrs. Hull and Prof. Hull of the Music Department, assisted by Miss Katherine Romig, soprano; Miss Dorothy Hull, pianist; and Prof. Hawkins, reader. There was almost a capacity audience at the concert, who enjoyed the excellent program to the full. The same grade of music that the music department has consistently presented for the last several years was again in evidence.

The last part of the program was devoted to the cantata by the college chorus—Woodman's "Way of Penitence." In this difficult and beautiful music the work of these young singers—for the most part untrained voices—was simply remarkable. In their precision and sustained volume of tone they really left little to be desired. A great deal of favorable comment has been heard for their part in the concert.

ACADEMY CLASS

On Tuesday afternoon the graduating exercises of the academy class were held, the program being as follows:

Invocation.....Rev. C. N. Replogle

The scholarship in the college department for next year was awarded to Paul A. Mills, he having maintained the highest class standing during the year.

The class roll follows: Lisle Hubbard, Delbert Replogle, Clarence A. Jones, Myrtle J. Mills, Ruth Ana Crozer, Alta L. Gumm, Paul A. Mills, Leo B. Kyes.

ALUMI PUBLIC

On Tuesday night the alumni association fully demonstrated to the public that the members have the ability to "come back," when occasion demands, by giving a little play taken from "Sevenoaks," one of the popular books written by the well known author, J. G. Holland.

The stars were, J. Carl Nelson who took the part of "Robert Belcher;" C. J. Hoskins, "Jim Fenton;" Miss Jessie Britt, "Keziah Butterworth;" Master George Morse, "Harry Benedict." Others who took part in the play were, Miss Nellie Paulsen, C. B. Wilson, Curtis Parker, Harvey Wright, Mrs. R. W. Lewis, Miss Lena Spangle, Miss Myrtle Gause, Russell W. Lewis, D. D. Coulson, Calvin Blair, Nathan Cook, A. C. Stanbrough and Leonard George.

Considering the fact that those taking part have been so scattered that it has been difficult for them to rehearse, all did remarkably well in carrying their parts, and Miss Britt never failed to bring down the house when she appeared. Her impersonations of "Miss Butterworth" could hardly be improved upon. "Belcher" and "Jim Fenton" also made good in every act.

Had the last two acts been reversed, thus making the wedding scene the final climax it would have added strength to the play, but as it was it was a most pleasing evening's entertainment which was highly appreciated by the large audience present, as was attested by the hearty applause given.

SENIOR GRADUATING EXERCISES

On Wednesday morning a large company gathered at the auditorium to witness the graduating exercises of the senior class, which was composed of Chris Smith, Ross Newby, Claude Lewis, Victor Rees and Miss Florence Rees. The front of the stage was banked with roses and carnations given as presents to the different members of the class, making a very pretty effect.

Mrs. Evelyn Hurley Denny, who is always popular with Newberg audiences, was in good voice and, with Mr. Hull at the piano, gave three vocal numbers, to the delight of the audience.

The address to the class was given by Dr. Sylvester Newlin, of Pasadena, California, this being his first appearance before a Newberg audience. He had his hearers with him from the start, and was given the closest attention throughout his masterful address which was full of suggestions so helpful to young students, and delivered in such a plain, matter-of-fact way that every point made was met with hearty response by his hearers. Time and space forbids such a full summing up of the address as it merited.

The Florence Brown Rowe memorial prize of $25 was awarded to Miss Nell Reuter, she having maintained the highest standing in the Junior class during the year. The Penn College scholarship was awarded to Miss Florence Rees, she standing highest in her grades among the seniors during the year.

The announcement of the graduation of Elmer Buehler from the music department was also announced.

Following is the program as rendered:

The annual alumni banquet given Wednesday evening closed the exercises of the week.

DISTRESSING FATALITY

Fred C. Randall Loses Life at His Home in West Chehalum.

A distressing fatality occurred in West Chehalum on Tuesday, as a result of Fred C. Randall inhaling noxious gases in a well which he was digging. A powder blast had been fired in the well and some time afterward Mr. Randall was let down by his son to begin work on the excavation, when he was apparently overcome by gases and fell face downward in a small amount of water that had collected at the bottom.

Some delay was occasioned in getting him out but he was found to be alive although he was unconscious from water strangulation and from the effect of the gases. Dr. Doolittle was hastily called, who worked with the unfortunate man for four hours, at the end of which time he died. At times it appeared that he would recover but a weak heart, from which he had been a sufferer, finally failed to respond.

The deceased came here from Brownell, Kansas, a year ago and bought the Thomas Sallee farm, some eight miles northwest of Newberg which has since been his home. He leaves a wife and four children.

Mrs. Randall will leave today, Thursday, with the remains, for their former home in Kansas.

NEWBERG IN HOLIDAY ATTIRE

Roses and Dimpled Darling Babies in Evidence Everywhere—
A Large Crowd and Everybody Out for a Good Time

Last Saturday was Rose Day in Newberg and ask who you may and they will tell you it was one of the most pleasing and satisfactory public events that Newberg has pulled off in many a day. The weather was ideal, the gentle southwest breeze that came in from over the father of waters tempering the atmosphere just enough to make it pleasant anywhere in the sunshine, and everybody must have gotten the week's work well off their hands in anticipation of the day's doings, for at an early hour they began coming and by ten o'clock First street was lined with a gay and happy throng, made up of young and old who were out for a good time, and they certainly had it.

It was the best natured crowd we have seen in many a day. If there was a cross word spoken we failed to hear it. Even the fond mothers whose dimpled darlings failed to get a prize proved to be game losers, and the Portland ball twirlers who were battled all over the field by the St. Paul team went away smiling. It was a day in the year when all laid aside care and restraint and made the most of the holiday, and it paid. The ladies who shouldered the greater part of the work and responsibility in preparing for and carrying out the events of the day, took an invoice of tired limbs after it was all over and resolved that they would not undertake quite so much another year, but they will.

At an early hour Shiloh Post, G. A. R. pitched a tent on First street near the Graphic office, where, with martial music, they furnished entertainment for the crowd until the time for the street parade at 10:30. Old time army guns and the necessary cartridge boxes and canteens were stacked in front of the tent for inspection by the younger generation. The tent was headquarters for the old boys during the day and here their regular meeting was held.

The street parade was made up of ladies and gentlemen on horseback, gaily decorated buggies, carriages and automobiles, all making a splendid showing. But the baby show—this is where Newberg shines, and who ever saw such an array of decorated baby carriages carrying so many pretty babies, every one of which was entitled to a gold medal. The judges thought so too, no doubt, but they had to single out a few from the number on which to tie the ribbons and that is where the trying task came in. Some of the little ones held on to the bottle throughout the parade, some were fast asleep before it was half over, while others finished with a smile. It was a great showing of little Oregonians, which may be put down as Newberg's best crop.

Forty-four babies formed in line at First and Meridian streets, being led in the line of march by the mounted marshals of the day and the Newberg band. The parade halted in front of the city hall where awards were made as follows:

Under one year—First, Sibyl Lou King, ring, given by Chas. A. Morris. Second, Ardise Noble, ring, by S. W. Potter. Two-year-old—First, Thera La Plante, sweater, by Hodson Bros. Second, Wilma Hoffman, dress pattern, by J. C. Porter. Three-year-old—First, Harrie McDonald, shoes, by W. B. Fine. Second, Catherine Parker, hat, by C. C. Store. Fattest baby—Thelma Noble, brush and comb set, given by Lynn B. Ferguson. Twins—Blanch and Beulah Baker, hosiery, by W. S. Parker. Best decorated buggy—First, Marguerite Evans, express wagon, by Christenson & Larkin. Second—Dorothy Woods, mush and milk set, by Fairstore.

The judges were picked up just before the parade and were Mr. Wallace and Mr. Patterson from Portland and Mrs. L. W. Furnas, all being strangers to the mothers. The committee in charge was composed of the following ladies: Mrs. L. M. Parker, Mrs. Geo. Kelty, Mrs. John Larkin, Mrs. W. S. Parker, and Mrs. J. D. Gordon.

Just preceding the ball games in the afternoon, a company of thirty-two young ladies, under the direction of Miss Jessie Britt, gave a beautiful rose drill. This was repeated on First street in the evening accompanied by the band, and every one who witnessed it spoke in highest praise of the drill.

STREET PARADE.

In the street parade the ladies on horseback were: Mrs. Wesley Boyes, Mrs. L. E. Brown, Mrs. Clyde Hale, the Misses Ila Spaulding and Mildred Ferguson. C. W. McLain sulky, first prize; in single buggies, Mr. Matthews, Percy Johnson, Miss Florence McGuire, Miss Grace Oliver, Mrs. H. R. Morris, Mrs. Wm. Langton, Mrs. Ralph Davidson, Mrs. B. E. Evans, A. Bowman. Miss Oliver took first prize and Mrs. Morris second.

In autos there were Sam McVey, Dr. T. W. Hester, Wm. Thomas, W. S. Stull, Richard Williams for L. E. Baughman, Lloyd Edwards, Jesse Edwards, Harry Gordon, E. Goff and S. A. Mills, the prizes going to the last three in the order named. Dr. and Mrs. Larkin very kindly lent their automobile for the use of the kindergarten, and thus gave the children and Mrs. Hurlston a lovely time in the parade, the little ones gaining lots of smiling attention by their happy little faces. The judges were Mrs. M. McDonald, Mrs. Clarence Butt and F. A. Morris.

The grand marshals were: W. H. Nelson, G. L. Kelty, Will Bond, Horace Nelson and L. B. Ferguson.

There were nineteen entries made in the rose show. The judges were Thos. E. Miles, John Gower and Mrs. W. E. Wight, who made awards as follows:
