The United States National Bank has recently added a savings department to the bank and will be in a position to take care of the savings of customers. Such a department is fast becoming a popular feature of many banks throughout the country, and is proving to be a convenience to the public that is being appreciated.

Rev. John F. Lyons, pastor of the Presbyterian church, has been offered the position of librarian in the Chicago theological seminary where he received his preparation for the ministry, and he has accepted the offer, but is awaiting his formal election by the official board to the position. He says he likes Oregon and is well satisfied with Newberg and his work here, but the offer made him is one that he feels that he could not afford to turn down. Rev. Lyons has a good standing with the members of the local church and he is held in good esteem by those on the outside who have learned to appreciate him as a public spirited citizen and a minister of the gospel.

L. C. Kelsey, the civil engineer who planned the new water works system for the city, was in town Tuesday.

Mrs. Edith Clark Ballou, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Palen Clark, former residents of Newberg, came out from Portland last week for a visit at Samuel Minchin's near Dundee. She was taken sick after her arrival and was bedfast for several days.

The right-of-way man for the Oregon Electric has been working between Newberg and Rex during the week. Some with whom he has to deal are said to be reasonable in their demands while others are inclined to be rather stiff in putting in claims for damages.

Moore Brothers, who are operating a duck farm at Rex, are now shipping fourteen dozen young squawkers a week to Seattle, the price received being 25 cents a pound. They have a contract with the Northern Pacific Railroad Co., and the ducks are sent out to make pot pie for the dining car tables.

Wm. Skelton, the young son of Charley Skelton, who formerly lived on Chehalem Mountain and who was mail carrier on Route 3 for two or three years, was here from Caldwell, Idaho, on a visit the first of the week. He had been away six years and like other people who come back to see Newberg after a lapse of time, he was surprised at the changes made. He said his father had water on his farm and would harvest a good crop this season.

The remains of Erwin Peace, who died at the home of his parents near Monmouth, of tubercular trouble, were brought to Newberg for burial on Friday of last week. The funeral was held at the M. E. church immediately following the arrival of the train. The deceased was an exemplary young man who graduated from the Newberg High School two years ago and afterward worked in the Enterprise office with commendable efficiency. He also worked for the same employer in the office of the News-Reporter in McMinnville after leaving Newberg, where he remained until he was obliged to give up office work on account of the condition of his health.

Mr. Dawson, who recently purchased the Gubser farm in Chehalem Mountain, has been about town during the week arranging for locating his family on the farm. They came from Spokane, where the altitude did not agree with Mrs. Dawson, and they hope the change will prove beneficial. They own a large wheat ranch in Morrow county.

B. G. Mitchell, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Langellier, who has been connected with the Portland Y. M. C. A. for some time, spent last Sunday in Newberg with Mrs. Mitchell and the children, who have been in Newberg for some time. Mr. Mitchell has been given the place of secretary of the Y. M. C. A. at Roslyn, Washington, a coal mining town of some 3,000 inhabitants. He will move to his new location at an early day.

A large crowd was in attendance at the union services held at Friends church last Sunday evening, when Mrs. Edith Hill Booker delivered a splendid temperance address which was well received. The music was lead by a mixed choir made up of singers from the different churches. The Misses Seely gave a vocal duet with guitar accompaniment which was appreciated. At the close, Rev. Chas. O. Whitely read a series of resolutions addressed to Governor West, condemning the saloon that is running on the Marion County side of the river, citing the fact that it was located in an obscure place, away from a public road and asking that he use his influence to have the license revoked. The movement was vigorously supported by a rising vote and the pastors instructed to sign the resolutions.

The Graphic has received a copy of the Myersdale, Pa., Republican, which contains a notice of the death of Mrs. Annie Arnold Keim, the mother of Elder H. H. Keim, of Newberg, who was nearing the completion of her seventy-fifth year. In May, on hearing of the serious illness of his mother, Mr. Keim left here to attend at her bedside and remained until the end came. Being the eldest son, he will continue to remain there for some time in order to settle up the business of the estate. The deceased was the daughter of a minister of the Church of the Brethren. Her husband, who was also a minister in the same church, died more than thirty years ago.

Average Amount of Sleep.

Usually the amount of sleep is in inverse ratio to the strength and development of consciousness. Thus children need more sleep than adults. Some men need very little rest, and the same may be said of women. However, eight hours is the average amount required by the human body to restore its vitality by complete rest. If less is taken one's health is apt to be impaired. A good night's sleep will do more toward building up general health than all the tonics known.—Boston Traveler.

One Woman's Way.

Husband—Why are you buying such an expensive present for Mrs. Shoddy? I thought you told me you hated her.

Wife—So I do, but I know she can't afford to give me a return one as handsome, and it will make her perfectly furious.—Baltimore American.

The Use of Words.

It is amusing to see how often the desire to be "genteel" in speech is a pitfall to the feet of the un-informed. There are persons who think it a mark of refinement to say it has been "proven," instead of it has been "proved," and to use "gotten" in place of "got." One fad is the use of "may" where "can" should be used. "Canning" the "mays" in the manuscripts that come to him is a task that every careful editor has to perform. "Why do you always use 'whilst' in place of 'while'?" asked the city editor of a new reporter. "Because I think it is a nicer word." "All right," said the editor. "I think you'd better work in the janitorial department for a whilst."—Youth's Companion.

Filling the House.

The theatrical man just in off the road was recounting to the New York manager his qualifications for a box office post.

"I don't see that you are any better than a dozen other men I can take my pick from," said the manager. "You say you can sell tickets. So can they. Nobody can sell tickets if people don't come to buy." "No, they can't," said the man, "but I have the knack of seating people so an audience of fifty people will look like 400, and the house will never look empty."

"There's a good deal in that," said the manager, and he gave the man the job.—New York Times.

Careless.

The late General F. D. Grant used often to tell on Memorial day a funny story about Bull Run.

"A soldier," he would begin, "had a scar on his face."

"Where did you get that scar?" they asked him.

"At Bull Run," he replied. "What?" they cried incredulously. "What, shot in the face at Bull Run? How could that be?"

"Well," explained the soldier, "it was like this. After I'd run four or five miles I got kind of careless and looked back."—Washington Star.
