DUNDEE

For a community that is normally quiet an unusual amount of commotion is felt in this vicinity due to the closing of the hop season, beginning of prune time, myriads of yellow jackets that have to be dodged, the new steam-dipper at the drier of the Dundee Fruit and Walnut Co., the installation of electric lights in several homes and driers, grocery delivery wagons which make the Red Hill folk feel coddled, and twin calves at Otterbrook.

Mr. and Mrs. Richards and son, Charles Richards, of The Dalles, are visiting Mrs. Richard's daughter, Mrs. Frank T. Keyes.

Wm. Bickel, of Portland, came up from Portland Monday to superintend the harvesting of his prunes.

Clark Noble and F. E. Nelson, of Portland, spent Sunday in the Red Hills looking over their orchards.

Miss Cornelia J. Spencer who has spent most of her vacation in Portland, returned to her home, Glenfell, on Saturday.

William Kiefenberg, of Portland, will be a guest of his uncle, Theodore W. Spencer until after prune time.

Fred Herring who has spent several weeks in Portland, came home the first of the week.

Miss Anna L. Christopher made a business trip to Portland last week.

Some of the Dundee ladies attended the millinery openings at Newberg on Friday and Saturday.

Miss White, of Portland, is a guest of Miss Eva J. Christie at Tuckwillow.

Hart Robison and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Robison.

The next meeting of the Neighborhood Circle will be held on Thursday, October 9th.

DON'TS FOR POULTRYMEN

Don't allow vermin among the little chicks.

Don't allow chicks to become chilled.

Don't feed unbalanced rations.

Don't neglect to feed an abundance of green stuff.

Don't neglect to cull continually.

Don't feed spoiled grain.

Don't hatch chicks late if you expect fall and winter layers.

Don't hatch more chicks than you can care for.

Don't set dirty or old eggs.

Don't allow sitting hens on the layers' nests.

Don't allow the male birds to run with the hens after the hatching season is over.

Don't allow too many females with the male bird during the mating season.

Don't expect results without work.—Lillian Blanchard, Instructor in Poultry Industry.

Co-Operation.

"Say, Doc," said the brawny scrubwoman, "yer gettin' a perty good thing out o' tendin' that rich Smith boy, ain't yer?"

"Well, said the doctor, "I get a pretty good fee, yes. Why?"

Well, Doc, I 'opes yer won't fergit that my Willie threw the brick that 'it 'im."

The Feminine Throw.

While two young girls were drinking tea a young man passed. When she saw him the first girl blushed, displayed a beautiful ring on her white hand, and murmured:

"Jack and I are to be married Easter week."

"But," said the other girl, "I thought you had thrown Jack over?"

"Oh, so I did!" the first replied.

"But you know how a girl throws."

ARISTOCRATIC BOVINES

BOUGHT BY J. J. HILL

John C. Shaw is in receipt of a letter from his brother, Thomas Shaw, who is now in Europe purchasing thorough-bred cattle for James J. Hill, giving the information that many aristocratic bovines will be added to Mr. Hill's herd. The very best which can be found across the water are being selected, and the question of price is not entering into the matter to any great extent, as $2,000 has been paid for a bull, and others are being bought at correspondingly high prices.

The letter states that twenty-eight short horns and twelve Ayrshires have been purchased, and that the writer has visited many lands before buying the short horns, as he was determined to get only the best. He continues: "I am positive that we have bought the best herd of short horns that ever left England. The average price for them was $600, and for the Ayrshires, $350. One of the bulls cost $2,000, and was a 4-year-old at that. No one can tell me dual purpose cattle cannot be bred. The highest priced cattle in England are the dual short horns. Many give 10,000 pounds of milk per year, and at the same time produce the best of beef steers. I have secured twenty-two Oxfords and twenty-two Shropshire sheep, and Mr. Hill has cabled me to get three Angus bulls, and I am starting tonight for Aberdeen, Scotland, to get them."

Before returning, Mr. Shaw will visit Holland for the purpose of obtaining a herd of Holsteins, and from there will go to France to buy French dairy cattle, a breed little known in this country.

Mr. Shaw was for several years head of the agricultural college at Guelph, Ontario, and was afterward an instructor in the University of Minnesota. He is the author of fifteen works on agriculture, many of them being used as text books in the different colleges, and is designated by James J. Hill as one of the best—if not the best—agriculturalist in America.

Breaking It Gently.

The evening callers were chatting gaily with the Kinterbys, when a patter of little feet was heard from the stairs.

"Hush!" said Mrs. Kinterby, softly. "The children are going to deliver their 'good night' message. It always gives me a feeling of reverence to hear them—they are so much nearer the Creator than we are and they speak the love that is in their little hearts never so fully as when the dark has come. Listen!"

There was a moment of tense silence. Then—

"Mamma," came the message in a shrill whisper, "Willie found a bed bug!"

Agin the Recall.

Mike—And do yez believe in the recall of judges, Pat?
 Pat—That I do not. The last time I was up before His Honor he sez: "I recall that face. Sixty days." I'm agin the recall of judges.

Mother—Don't cry, dear. Which one of the twins hit you?
 Dear—The one with the black eye.

A MILITARY MARVEL.

Rally of the Confederates After the Petersburg Mine Exploded.

It was on July 30, 1864, that Grant exploded the mine which blew up the center of Lee's lines at Petersburg.

From a hidden ravine in front of Petersburg a mine was dug underneath the strongest of the Confederate forts. The construction of the mine was suggested by Colonel Pleasants of the Forty-eighth Pennsylvania and was prepared by his men, who were mostly coal miners from the anthracite regions of the Keystone State.

He excavated a nearly horizontal shaft about 500 feet in length, at the end of which and sixteen feet below the surface of the earth a large chamber was excavated. In this chamber were four magazines containing in the aggregate some six tons of powder, up to which ran the fuse.

Just at dawn on July 30 the mighty blast of 12,000 pounds of powder was fired. The big guns in the fort, its garrison of 300 men and huge masses of earth were thrown high in the air, leaving a great hole (known as the crater) where a moment before the center of Lee's lines had been.

When the great black smoke cone was belched into the heavens the Union artillery opened fire along the entire line, while an assaulting column rushed toward the place where the fort had stood, but which was now the great hole in the ground made by the exploded mine.

Down into the crater scrambled the men in blue (mostly negroes), and out of the crater the better part of them never came. The men in gray, rallying from the confusion, concentrated from every side and poured shot and shell upon the struggling mass of men huddled in the crater. The Federal loss was between 4,000 and 5,000.

The recovery of the Confederates after their center had been blown high into the air by the great explosion will ever remain as one of the most amazing instances of self possession known to military history.—Rev. T. B. Gregory in New York American.

The Snake and the Umbrella.

"I spent a pleasant hour with a traveler," said the truthful man, "who told a lot of snake stories. I remember the last of them. It was about a man who took a nap in the woods, laying his umbrella on a rock beside him.

"After awhile it began to rain, and the man awoke. He was all wet. He took hold of his umbrella and opened it hurriedly. It seemed rather stiff in going up, and there was a ripping, tearing sound. Then a live blacksnake fell to the ground, split in two from his head to its tail.

"You see, it had swallowed the umbrella all but the handle, and the man did not notice what had happened till, putting the umbrella up, he halved the snake from stem to stern."

The Cure.

"You look glum," said the husband of one clever woman to the man who had married her companion.

"So would you if your wife studied geology and filled the house with stones until there wasn't a place left for you to sit."

"Don't worry about that," was the cheerful reply. "Turn your wife's thoughts to astronomy. That will suit her just as well, and she can't collect specimens."—London Express.
