1:15—Address, by President Riley, of the McMinnville College.
2:00—"Picture Study, Common Objects and Story Telling," by Mrs. Alecia Alexander, of Portland Schools.
2:30—Address: Subject Selected—Prof. Schafer, U. of O.
3:00—Address: "School Sanitation," by Calvin S. White, State Health Board.

Evening Program.

7:45—Address: "Service," by State Superintendent J. A. Churchill.
A Musical and Literary Program will be given.
The evening meeting is especially for the public, and everyone is cordially invited to be present.

DUNDEE

Mrs. Alford was called to Salem on Saturday on account of the severe illness of her nephew.

Clark Smith, of Kalispell, Montana, has joined his family in Dundee. They will all spend the summer at their home in the Red Hills.

The property holders on Eleventh street are laying a new plank walk from Main street to Alder street.

At the recent city election Bernhard Groth was elected mayor; T. A. Harper re-elected recorder; and W. J. Gordon, who was filling the unexpired term of A. A. Parrtt, was elected treasurer. Rev. J. G. Alford was re-elected to the city council. Henry Holzmeyer were also elected as councilmen.

"A Family Affair" given at Groth Hall on Saturday evening by a company of young folks from Chehalem Center was well attended. The play was unusually good for an amateur production and was highly appreciated by the audience. The characters were all well portrayed and the fun was continuous. All the players received many compliments from those in attendance and the assurance that should they favor Dundee again with one of their plays they will be heartily welcomed. The young folks will use their share of the proceeds toward a gymnasium at Chehalem Center and the Neighborhood Club will add their share to the auditorium fund.

The regular meeting of the Neighborhood Club was held at the home of Mrs. H. B. Powell on Thursday. There was a large attendance and considerable business of importance was transacted. It was decided to purchase a dozen folding chairs for use at the city hall and elsewhere as the necessity arises, the number of seats at the library being inadequate for the number of young folks who enjoy the use of the room on Tuesday and Friday evenings. The next meeting will be held at the city hall and the members of the club will take that opportunity for contributing to the book donation. A number of books have already been received and more have been promised. A monthly statement of book donations will be published.

CHEHALEM CENTER

Services every Sunday at the church, Rev. John Shires, pastor. All are welcome.

Mr. Ernest Hall, of Alberta, Canada, is visiting his sister, Mrs. L. R. Ralston.

A new arrival, a son, Russell Davis, arrived at the home of Prof. and Mrs. F. L. Strait Sunday, March 8, which accounts for the happy smile which the professor wears.

Last Friday evening the people of the community met and organized a club to plan and build a gymnasium, to be called the Chehalem Center Improvement Club, and elected the following officers: Sylvan Strait, president; S. W. Childers, vice-president; Etta Hess, secretary; S. W. Atkinson, treasurer. The president will name twelve more to act on the board, and their slogan will be "Boost for the Gymnasium."

Archie Pickard has rented his place to Mr. Harrison and will try his luck in Eastern Oregon for awhile.

S. W. Atkinson lost his valuable registered mare Heck by death Thursday. He purchased her some time ago from J. D. Gordon.

K. L. Tangden is quite sick at present.

GERMAN RED TAPE

A Most Irritating Brand Is Used In the Postoffices.

SENDING A PARCEL BY MAIL.

Experiences of an English Tourist Who, With Joyous Confidence, Undertook to Perform What Was Supposed to Be a Perfectly Simple Operation.

In all innocence and lightness of heart I set out one morning to send a small parcel to England from the town in Germany where I was staying. At the postoffice I was confronted by three booking office windows, each having a weird and formidable inscription over it. These inscriptions were not to be comprehended at a glance; so, not wishing to gaze up at them too long, I selected the least crowded window and handed over my parcel. It was promptly returned to me with a curt "Go to the next window!" It was just that window I specially wished to avoid, being the most crowded, but I waited my turn and then made another attempt. The official looked at me sternly.

"Have you the circulars?" he asked.

"No," I replied faintly.

"He handed me three circulars, for which I had to pay a small sum and which I was requested to fill up. Picking up my parcel, I sat down to study those circulars. They were covered with instructions, the language used was so overwhelming that I found it difficult to grasp what I was instructed to do. If my papers were not filled up accurately it was not from untruthfulness, but owing to my limited German vocabulary.

By the time I had described the parcel, the gross weight thereof in grams and kilograms, the gross value thereof in marks and pfennigs and given a detailed description of each article contained therein, with its separate weight and value, I felt like an old inhabitant of that postoffice. I had seen, as it were, generation after generation of stamp purchasers come and go, and still I remained. As to the weights, my idea of kilograms was about on a par with my knowledge of definite integrals. However, I did my best. I guessed at the probable weight of the parcel and divided the articles into it.

At length I came to the end, and feeling like a candidate at an examination, I gathered up my papers and the parcel and went over to the window. After waiting my turn I handed over the papers. The official glanced at them, then at the parcel, and frowned.

"Did you weigh the articles?" he asked sternly.

"Yes-a!" I stammered.

"Then go home and weigh them again. You have put them down at half a ton!"

There was no help for it. With a sigh I gathered up my papers and went back to a secluded corner. After patiently reducing all the weights I again presented the papers. This time they were passed, and I was sent on to the next department, where I had to purchase and fill up another document. I was now getting into form, and this paper was soon dealt with.

Then, with my heart beating fast, I handed over the parcel. It was once more returned to me. The official said he could not take it in that condition—it was insecurely made up.

Now, if there is one thing upon which I pride myself it is upon the neat way in which I turn out a parcel. So, smothering my indignation as well as I could, I assured him that it would be all right, that it was perfectly safe and that there was nothing in it which was breakable. He repeated firmly that it was insecure and that he could not take it. So I sadly collected my papers and the parcel and went home to dinner.

I spent all the afternoon trying to purchase a cardboard box of exactly the right proportions and some waterproof cloth to wrap round it. I next procured a stick of sealing wax and a German seal, and by the time I had finished that parcel looked as if it were prepared to travel to the north pole.

It was now getting toward evening, and I was feeling worried after my day's work, so I bethought my brother—a willing, guileless youth—to take it to the postoffice. He took it so innocently that my conscience reproached me for not having given him a word of warning. He was a long time gone, but that was to be expected. When I saw him come in my heart sank in despair.

"They won't take it like this," he said cheerfully.

I groaned and asked:

"Why not?"

"There's not enough sealing wax on it."

"Not enough sealing wax?" I cried incredulously.

"No. You must put a blob wherever the string crosses and wherever there's a knot."

In desperation I seized the sealing wax and worked away until I had used it to the last speck and the parcel was one intricate mass of string and wax. Then I conveyed it once more to the postoffice. It was now almost closing time, and the officials were in a hurry to get away. I handed over the papers and the parcel without a word.

Two minutes later I walked out of the postoffice with joy in my heart and a smile of satisfaction on my face. I had sent the parcel off.—London Family Herald.

The Famous Aetna Brand of Lime and Sulphur Solution

Read what some of our experts say of the Aetna brand: W. V. Newell, president State Board of Horticulture, says: I have used the Aetna Brand in my orchard for years and I am sure you are making a good article.

A. C. Goodrich, Commissioner First District: I have used and found every barrel full up to test and very free from sediment.

H. C. Atwell, Ex-President State Horticultural Society: I don't think there is a better spray made.

S. J. Galloway, County Fruit Inspector: After severe tests, I find the Aetna Brand O.K. I desire to congratulate you on the superior article of Lime and Sulphur solution, the Aetna Brand; it gives results and universal satisfaction.—Ben S. Worley, Fruit Inspector for Clatsop County, Oregon, and hundreds of others.
