

MOTHER PACKS AWAY THE WINTER THINGS

Chase away the vermin we have the stuff

Before the vermin "take possession" put out into the cracks and crevices poisons to destroy them. They breed very rapidly if given a chance. Come, tell us your troubles, and we shall supply you with just the thing to chase away the bugs and rats. Beware of germ carrying, fever breeding flies. We have fly paper to catch them and fly poison to kill them.

PROSPERITY AND THE DAIRY COW

It has been the privilege of the writer to travel over the state of Illinois quite a little in a business way in recent years and one can not help but notice the evident prosperity in the dairy districts. Wherever the silo and the herds of quiet cows are seen there also are the modern homes, good roads, and motor cars. The silo is the silent sentinel guarding the herds and flocks against hunger and a diet of dry, unpalatable food during the winter. It has been said that "dairy-men are good spenders because they get money every week in the year." This is not often true of farmers who sell their grain and receive their money in a lump sum once each year. It requires skillful management sometimes to make it reach, aside from the depletion of the soil that too often goes with the grain system of farming. We are told by good authority that fertility can be maintained by the grain system but the temptation to sell clover hay and straw is more than most grain farmers can resist. The money that should go for limestone and phosphate rock finds its way into other channels. It can be done, but is it?

The man who feeds cattle for manure deserves more profit than he usually gets, but his fields are silent evidence of the gain that comes indirectly from his system of farming.

As a rule the cattle feeder objects to milking cows, which is one reason he avoids the dairy business. However, the advent of the successful mechanical milker may cause him to make a change. The change from beef to milk production will be accompanied by other changes which will be of advantage to his pocket.

Not long ago a friend of the writer telephoned in regard to buying a cow and one was priced to him at one hundred dollars. On investigating the yearly record of this particular cow, it was learned that she gave just a few cents over one hundred dollars in milk for the year just ended, computing the milk at thirteen cents per gallon, the average price received. The question then arises—What is the value of a dairy cow that produces a gross income of one hundred dollars? The above cow is an average of the herd but according to statistics she is considerably above the average cow kept in the state. It being the first year that a record was kept of her production, no little surprise was occasioned by the result as she was not supposed to be a very good cow.

The ration fed consisted of alfalfa and silage with a little ear corn added, so it can readily be seen that the cost was not great.

It is hardly necessary to mention the importance of a pure-bred dairy sire, as it goes without saying. If a milk producer cannot afford to start with a herd of pure-bred cows, he should buy a pure-bred bull of his favorite breed and at least one heifer that has several performers in her pedigree. In a few years he will have a pure-bred herd at a low cost.

It is a good steer that will sell for one hundred dollars even at the present price, and when he is sold at the above price all the cattle feeder has is one hundred dollars in cash and the manure produced, while the dairyman has the cash and the manure, not to mention the cow and the calf. Hence the prosperity of the dairyman.—Walter H. Rowe in Hoard's Dairyman.

CHEHALEM CENTER.

School closes Friday, with a nice program and an all-day picnic. Come out and join the teachers and scholars in closing this another term of the "good old school days."

Francis Holt has completed his new kitchen, which he has been building on the east side of his residence. There is a nice porch on each side and also a pantry.

Last Friday evening the Dundee young people came over in autos, wagons and carriages, there being something over thirty young folks. They came over to present their play called "The Scientific District School." The play was very much enjoyed by all, there being a full house. The proceeds amounted to about twenty dollars.

May 21 being Miss Florence Leloh's birthday, a number of her school friends spent a very pleasant evening at her home.

F. L. Strait and Mrs. Vergan accompanied the Misses Mable Jacobson, Edna Ralston, Florence Leloh and Margarite Johnson to the McMinnville school contest last Friday.

Tuesday, the 26th, being the twentieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Hendrickson, a number of their immediate friends and neighbors planned a very pleasant surprise for them. They carried over a basket supper and some China ware to celebrate the occasion. They were indeed surprised and all enjoyed the evening very much. Mr. and Mrs. Hendrickson told of the happy event of twenty years ago, there being sixty or more friends present at the wedding, and immediately afterward they went to their new home which was all in readiness for them out in the edge of Portland.

Mrs. S. W. Newhouse visited in Portland over Sunday.

Thirty-six votes were cast out of ninety registered on the list here Friday, going almost even between the Democrats and Republicans, until toward the last the Republicans had a majority.

The W. C. T. U. met at the home of Mary Palmer Johnson on Wednesday of last week. A number of the ladies were in attendance. Good reports were given of the work done in the past three months, also the ones who attended the institute at Carlton last week, gave their report. Plans were made to hold an institute at this place sometime in June. Flower Mission day will be held at the home of Mrs. K. L. Tangen, June 10th.

Mrs. Agee is still very sick, with not much improvement. She has been unable to retain anything on her stomach for over forty days.

EXHIBITION BY FUNDAMENTAL MUSIC TRAINING CLASS

On Monday evening, May 25, at 8 o'clock in the Presbyterian church there will be an exhibition by the Fundamental Music Training Class to mark the completion of the course of forty lessons under the instruction of Miss Jessie Britt. Parents and children and those interested in musical subjects or who contemplate taking up the study of music will find this program of class work interesting and enjoyable, and all such are cordially invited to be present. Admission will be free.

Sure Thing

Teacher—John, can you tell me how iron was first discovered? John—Yes, Miss Jones. Teacher—Well, just tell the class what your information is on that point. John—I heard father say yesterday that they smelt it.

Thoughtful, Too

"Herbert," said a thoughtful mother, "your uncle Ed will be here for dinner today. Go up stairs and wash your face." "Yes, mother," replied the boy, but s'posen he don't come, what then?

Good Seats

With her mother, a little girl of five made her first visit to a matinee. Afterwards father asked mother if the seats were good. "Yes," spoke up the little girl; "they were red plush."
