SI DRAFT GOES TO THE CITY

You know I've come to the conclusion that a man will live a little longer and enjoy life a little better if he takes a little time off once and a while from his regular daily "Menu" and takes on something a little different, so I made up my mind as I hadn't been to Portland for nigh on to 20 years that I'd just spend a little money with the P. E. & E. and takes a little run down to the city. I got down town here a little too early for the 9 o'clock train so I went up to 'The Big Hdwe. Store' and told the boys good-bye and tried to make 'em believe that I was goin' down to buy some machinery for my farm, but I guess they weren't worried much about it 'cause most all of us fellers have found out that Larkin-Prince sell us farm machinery just as cheap as we can buy it in Portland, and they save us the freight and the trouble of setting the stuff up ready to operate, and no good up-to-date farmer doubts the quality of the John Deere implements that the boys sell.

Well, I went down to the depot and gave Geo. James $5.00 and told him to check me to Portland and return, and he gave me a ticket and handed me back some change and I went and sat down to wait for the train. I hadn't no more than got set down when here came a feller rushin' in with his arms full of sack twine that he had bought up at 'The Big Hdwe. Store' and he thought he was goin' to get left, but he didn't, and we both got aboard together when the train pulled up. We got to talking and he was tellin' me that he had just bought a new John Deere buggy of Larkin-Prince and that one of his neighbors bought one of those Monarch Malleable ranges there last week and he said that he believed that Larkin-Prince Hdwe. Co., were operating their business on the right principle, having one price for everybody all the time on the same kind of goods and taking the whole line strait through you could do fully as well if not better than you could in the city, but bein' as I was not goin' to the city to buy goods and as I had found the same out for myself by experience, and as I was out for pleasure instead of business, I changed the topic of conversation and I sez that's right old man them fellers at Larkin-Prince will do the square thing with you all the time and there's no better place on earth to trade, but listen here to this article in the morning paper: "Put paris green on your worry-bugs, Blow flea powder on your fear insects, deposit a few poisoned biscuits where your remorse-rats can get them. Kill off everything that holds you back. Fumigate your whole darn frame with Sheep-Dip. Clean house. Start fresh. Think, and think a lot of yourself. If you don't deserve this self-respect buy a lot more poison." Well now that's pretty good and if a lot of the people on earth would follow some of those suggestions we'd all be better off. The next thing I knew the brakeman grabbed on to that little string in the top of the car and I heard a little noise like we might have a puncture, and the train stopped at a little jerk-water place along the line and nobody got off or on and I inquired what was the matter, and the conductor said, "Oh we just stopped to throw off a bag of Plymouth twine that Larkin-Prince Hdwe. Co., of Newberg, was sendin' down here to one of their customers." Well, I pricked up my ears and I sez to the feller settin' beside me that I didn't know them fellers done business way down here and he says "Oh yes, just last week they shipped a gasoline engine to one of my neighbors way down the line here."

At the next station my friend got off and I was left to ride alone into the city and I was thinkin' the rest of the way in, it surely must pay to trade at Larkin-Prince Hdwe. Co., or else these fellers so far off wouldn't take the trouble to go way up there to trade, but when I stopped to think that everybody along the line didn't sell John Deere goods, Acme Quality paints, Stiletto tools and cutlery, Monarch and DeLuxe ranges and a lot more good trademarked standard lines of merchandise that I might mention, I could readily see the reason, because they know that goods of this class are marketed through the hands of the most up-to-date merchants in the country and it surely pays big to buy the lines of goods that have won a good reputation by their superior quality and merit. (Si Draft's trip to the city continued next week.)

BRIEF NEWS OF OREGON

Grants Pass fruit growers will market produce through Grants Pass Fruit association.

Safe crackers blew the safe of Aaron Fox at Troutdale, securing nearly $2000 in money and jewelry.

The senate conference committee agreed to recommend $85,000 for Crater Lake. Senator Chamberlain had asked $150,000.

Earl McCoy was sentenced to the penitentiary at Oregon City for assault with intent to rob F. M. Woodcock of Portland.

Joseph Buettgenbach died at Eugene, carrying to the grave secrets of health for which he had refused large sums of money.

The president has appointed Fred D. Fisher of Oregon consul general at Mukden to be consul general at Tien Tsin.

The secretary of agriculture informs Senators Chamberlain and Lane the department is investigating clover pests in the Willamette valley recently complained of.

From Lakeview comes the report that a tract of Weyerhaeuser's finest range, containing 17,000 acres, and located at Foster flat and Yamey Mountain, has been leased through Curtis & Utley to William O'Keefe.

Acting Secretary of War Breckenridge has assured Senator Lane that there will be no unnecessary delay in acting on the new deed to the Oregon City locks after it has been received.

Bend's new cooperative creamery is now an established fact. After months of work, some discouragements, many delays and most of the vicissitudes to which such projects are subjected, the new institution is in operation.

Farmers of the Blalock section have organized a company for operating a public warehouse at that place. Those interested include J. A. Smith, George Van Gassbeck, Wash McKinney, R. S. McKinney, J. W. Long, Frank Baker, and others.

Replying to appeals from fishing interests for reinstatement of the appropriation for protection of Alaska fisheries, Senator Chamberlain and Senator Lane say the conference committee has agreed on $50,000, which is considered sufficient for beginning this work.

Representative Hawley had printed in the congressional record in connection with the statement regarding the fraudulent selling of so-called locations on forfeited railroad lands in Oregon, reports from the Portland press covering the trials for the information of congressmen who are receiving inquiries about the lands.

After a conference with State Health Officer White, State Superintendent of Public Instruction Churchill announced that soon one boy in every public school would be wearing a badge not unlike that of the average policeman. He will be the deputy health officer of the school and his duties will consist of looking after the sanitary conditions of the school he attends.

Lakeview advices are that five carloads of ore from the property of the Modoc mines company, at High Grade are about to be dispatched to as many smelters. This is the first concrete evidence of the recent strike made by Manager N. E. Guyot, and it is of such significance as the whole mining world will await with interest the news of the returns per ton.

Plans to place the entire main line of the Southern Pacific in Oregon, and possibly the electric lines, under the block system are announced by William Nichols, chairman of the examining board of the Southern Pacific company. The company now has 115 miles out of its 341 miles of main line in Oregon under the block signal system, but it is scattered, having been installed where the safety devices have been most needed.

By practically a unanimous vote at the annual meeting of the Hood River Apple Growers' Association, the members of the organization adopted by-laws that will revolutionize the methods by which the affairs of the local selling agency, an affiliated concern of the North Pacific Fruit Distributors, have been administered. The vote was a culmination of action taken at a meeting in the latter part of May, when the by-laws were proposed. Since that time the new rules and regulations have been studied and discussed at different meetings by the growers, who adopted them.

Revealing a material falling off in national bank deposits and a large gain in state bank deposits, a statement issued by State Bank Superintendent Sargent of the condition of the banks of Oregon June 30, while indicating a decreased volume of trade as compared with the same period of last year, reflects sound financial conditions. Mr. Sargent is unable to account for the decrease of national bank deposits unless it is due to the nation-wide lull in business, and with that decrease he is also unable to account for the increase of almost $2,000,000 in deposits in state banks.

RESPONSIBILITY

Responsible banking is the policy under which this bank has been managed since the day of its organization. That this policy is appreciated, is indicated by the constant and gratifying growth in business.

We desire to continue adding new accounts of individuals desiring the most efficient service and responsible banking.
