$1.50 Per Year in Advance

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1914

Governor West mixed his logic just a little bit in his speech made here Wednesday. For instance, he poured a few broadsides at Dr. Withycombe as being a man who, as state veterinarian, and later as member of the faculty at O. A. C., had been a feeder at the public crib for many years, while almost in the same breath he commended Senator Chamberlain, whose grip on the public teat has not been loosened since Heck was a pup.

Next week the grade schools, the high school and Pacific College will open for the new year. These schools furnish opportunities for all the boys and girls, the young men and young women of the community, to put in a good year's study in preparation for future life work. Parents should see to it that as far as it is at all possible, their children start in at the opening of school, in order to get an even start with others and thus avoid discouragements and delays that must necessarily follow for those who get in after the work has been outlined and is running along smoothly. In these days, as never before, those who fail to get an education are handicapped and must necessarily take the places at the bottom of the ladder that are left vacant by those who have advanced to take the more desirable positions. Hence the importance of parents making sacrifices, if need be, to give their children the best opportunities possible for getting an education. And for the boys and girls let the old, old story be impressed on them, that those who fail to take advantage of the privileges offered will regret it in after life—a story true, as it ever has been.

The wets are paying for space in the advertising columns of every newspaper in the state of Oregon that will accept it, in the fight they are making in opposition to prohibition. The best evidence that can be produced to show that they realize that there has been a rapid change in sentiment all over the country in relation to the saloon business and that from this time forward it means a struggle for existence. It also shows that they realize that the local newspaper furnishes the best means of reaching the voters of the state.

Some men will assert that the private life of a candidate for office should not be discussed in a campaign; that in case he is a candidate for re-election his career as a public official, what he will be able to do in the future—these alone are the things that should count for or against him. The Graphic believes that the setting up of this sort of a standard has had a very bad effect on the young men of the country in the past. They have seen men elevated to high positions whose private lives would not bear the scrutiny of the clear sunlight for a minute, and seeing that men of this type are given the plaudits of the people, they naturally conclude that a life of virtue and clean living is not at all necessary in order to get to the front in public life. Here in Oregon we have seen much of this sort of work in politics. We have heard much talk of temperance and clean living, and yet time after time a certain man who has a habit of getting beastly drunk—and it is no secret that he has this weakness—has been elevated to the highest positions of public trust that the people of Oregon have in their power to bestow. The habit of imbibing to excess is said to be growing on this man until it is disgusting to his close friends. His name will appear on the ballot at the November election and we notice that one of our exchanges talks for state-wide prohibition in one column and for this particular candidate in another column. It seems to be the same old story with this candidate. In the past he has been able to line up all the "wet" votes, and he has also been known to receive the votes of men who stand at the top in the ranks of the Prohibition party in the state. What a happy condition for a candidate of a minority party who is out for votes.

With the proposed universal eight-hour law in force the thrifty housewife may be able to comply with its provisions without running the chance of being thrown in jail, by looking after the preparation of breakfast herself, calling the hired girl at 8 o'clock, allowing her an hour off at noon and having the evening meal over at 5 o'clock, so that the "help" can retire promptly from the kitchen the minute the cuckoo clock on the wall marks time. The dishes—oh well she and the children can wash them up and sweep the floors, provided the law may be so construed as to allow her to "work" the children. It will all come easy when mother gets accustomed to it, and of course the women will all vote for the law.

The cry all these years has been for an assessment law that would make the burden of taxation as nearly equal on all the people as possible, but now comes the U'Ren crowd with a proposition to make an exemption of $1,500. Taxes are collected for the purpose of defraying necessary expenses of government, and since all property owners receive a share of the benefits, why should any be exempt from paying their share of the taxes? It would simply mean that the fellows who happen to have property to the amount of $1,550 would be compelled to double up and help pay for the benefits the smaller property owner is to receive from the expenditure of tax money. Where is the justice in such a proposition?

WHAT SEVEN MEN SAID.

A group of men casually came together at a dinner party the other evening and one happened to look over the table, which the women had just left, and commented on the little alcohol that had been consumed. And here is what these men said:
The first was a business man of large interests: "I wouldn't think of voting for State prohibition, but let National prohibition come up and it will have my vote in a minute. Drinking has become an economic issue, and I am willing to give up my whisky and soda for the good of the many."
The second was a large employer of men, some eighteen thousand: "I am ready for National prohibition; up to this time it has seemed a far-away ideal to me: now I see it as a pure efficiency measure."
The third was a clear-seeing Irishman: "Alcohol has been the curse of my people. I have stopped taking it, after forty years of occasional drinking, and my vote is ready for National prohibition."

"Go ahead," said the fourth man, a railroad official of high standing. "I am ready for it personally, and so are all the officials of our road."
A physician was the fifth: "Medicine can do without it; science is against it: the old idea of alcohol as a food is exploded. I am all ready for my vote for National prohibition."
It was a club man who spoke next: "When I see drinking among the cadets at our club, and our caddy-master silly with it, I am ready to give up my cocktail and vote against the whole business."
And, last of all, was a wholesale dealer in liquor who started the talk and who finished with his significant statement: "You are right: we are seeing the handwriting on the wall. I said at a meeting of our wholesale liquor dealers the other evening that we didn't have five years of life ahead of us. Strange as it may seem to you I would vote for National prohibition. It's for the best all around."
Not a dissenting voice!—Ladies Home Journal, September.

WITH THE HOUNDS AND THE HARES.
A recent pamphlet issued by the United States Brewers Association has extracts from an address by Mrs. Abigail Scott Duniway against state-wide prohibition and it contains also a fervent eulogy of Mrs. Duniway delivered by Senator Chamberlain in the Senate, March 4, 1914, says the Oregonian. The pamphlet has been distributed throughout Oregon as part of the "wet" propaganda.
The conspicuous use of the Senator's name by the brewery association, in his indorsement of the leading female champion of the "wet" cause, the other day led the Albany Herald to remark:

"The friends of state-wide prohibition assert that this is an indirect indorsement by Senator Chamberlain of the "wet" cause."

The Portland newspaper supporter of Senator Chamberlain—the Evening Journal—is highly incensed at the Herald's interpretation of the brewery circular, and says that "has no more to do with the wet and dry issue in Oregon than a Missouri mule had to do with the Declaration of Independence."

Are we to understand this to be a repudiation of the use by the brewery association of the Chamberlain indorsement of the wet champion?

Or is the same old Chamberlain game to be played of hunting with the dry hounds and running with the wet hares?

CITATION.

In the County Court of the State of Oregon for the County of Yamhill.

In the matter of the Estate of Isaac B. Ramsey, Deceased.
To Joseph W. Ramsey, George W. Rainey, Anna L. Mandling, Benjamin F. Ramsey, Mattie J. Newlin, William F. Ramsey, Julia Ramsey and Helen Bennett, heirs at law of said deceased.
GREETING
In the name of the State of Oregon, you and each of you, are hereby cited and required to appear in the County Court of the State of Oregon, for the County of Yamhill, at the Court room thereof, at McMinnville, in the County of Yamhill and State of Oregon, on Monday the 2nd of November, 1914, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, then and there to show cause, if any exist, why an order of sale of the real property heretofore described should not be made as prayed for in the petition of the administrator of said estate filed in the above named court, and which said real property is described as follows, to-wit:
Situate, lying and being in Yamhill County, State of Oregon, and being a part of the Donation Land Claim of Luke McKern and wife, Claim No. 55, Notifications No. 680, in Township Three South Range Two West of the Willamette Meridian, and particularly described as follows, to-wit: Beginning at an iron rod at the Northeast corner of said claim, thence running South 2 deg. 17' West 4 1/2 chains to a point on the North line of the Jesse Parrish Donation Land Claim, Claim No. 57, Notification No. 140; thence with the center of County road North 72 deg. 11' West 4.78 chains to angle in road; thence North 78 deg. 10' West 2.97 chains to angle in road; thence North 40 deg. 30' West 1.14 chains to a point on the North line of the Luke McKern Donation Land Claim; thence East 9.105 chains to the place of beginning, containing 2.52 acres.
This Citation to be served upon the said Joseph W. Ramsey, Anna L. Mandling, Benjamin F. Ramsey, Mattie J. Newlin, William F. Ramsey, Julia Ramsey, and Helen Bennett, by publication thereof in the Newberg Graphic, for four weeks, by order of Hon. Vase W. Pearce, Judge of said Court, duly made and entered herein on the 16th day of September, 1914.
Witness, the Hon. Vase W. Pearce, Judge of the County Court of the State of Oregon, for Yamhill County, and the seal of said Court hereto affixed this 16th day of September, 1914.
G. W. Jones,
Clerk of the above named Court.
