$1.50 Per Year in Advance

THURSDAY, APRIL 29, 1915

With posing before cameras and getting first page notice in the big dailies the Colonel is himself again. Happy man, Teddy, when in the limelight before the public.

Newberg had a clean-up day early in the season but we won't lose anything by falling in with Governor Withycombe's call for clean-up and paint-up week, May 4 to 11.

Strawberry shipping will begin the first of next week. Complaint is being made that the continued dry weather is cutting the crop short. One Springbrook grower says he is losing twenty-five dollars a day for the want of rain.

Tom Richardson, of booster fame, has gone to Houston, Texas, to labor in the interest of an open sea from that city to the Gulf of Mexico at the usual price per boost. It can't be possible that the outlook for a dry Oregon had terrors for our Tom that carried him away.

An English university professor proposes that the allies take Constantinople and turn it over to the United States. It is a generous proposal, but we have one still more generous to make to the allies. It is that they quit scrapping about Constantinople and let us make them a present of the Philippines.—Yakima, Wash. Republic.

Very well put we should say, this from the Oregonian: "Colonel Roosevelt's testimony confirms the popular belief that he has a remarkably well-disciplined conscience. This docile monitor has always directed the Colonel to do exactly what his interests required. The conflict between interest and duty that moralists say so much about never has bothered him. Happy the man to whom the right is always what he wants."

The new editor of the Sherwood Journal is innocently amusing himself and doing no harm to anybody by agitating the formation of a new county by slicing territory from Washington, Yamhill and Clackamas. A number of our exchanges have commented on his effort, but nobody here has given the matter more than passing notice. The Telephone Register has made a study of the map and tells how it could be done, but spoils it all by saying Newberg has an ambition to be the hub of a new county, when the editor knows that Newberg has fully demonstrated that a good town can be built up without depending on county seat prestige and feeding from the public crib.

If you have had a falling out with a neighbor and are contemplating going to law to get satisfaction it may be profitable to you to read the following from the pen of Walt Mason:

"Old Wax and I lived side by side and never had a row, until one day he lammed the hide of my old brindle cow. He said she chewed a suit of clothes that hung upon a line and, well, I biffed him on the nose and he soaked me on mine. We owned our homes, were out of debt—had money in the bank—the day he hit my brindle pet and I gave him that spank. Awhile we stood around and cussed and wagged the fluent jaw, until, surcharged with deep disgust, we turned and went to law. Oh, that was bum and beast sport, the lawyers, smooth and deft, conveyed the case from court to court and taxed us right and left. Now at the poor farm Wax and I put in our fading years; I lean on him and heave a sigh and he bursts into tears. Sometimes we wander down the road where once we did our biz; a lawyer lives in my abode, another lives in his. Then to the poor farm back we go and seek our couch of straw, and dream of joys we once did know before we went to law."

THE OREGON BUILDING AT SAN FRANCISCO.

At the Panama Pacific Exposition the Oregon Building appears to be getting its share of attention, even from Bostonians. A recent issue of the Youth's Companion contains a picture of the building, in connection with which this is said:

One of the most interesting buildings at the San Francisco exposition is that erected by the State of Oregon. It commands admiration for its strength, simplicity, and beauty. The wide porticoes that surround the building are supported by forty-eight columns that are simply mammoth trunks of the Douglas fir—from the forests of Oregon. They are from four and one-half to eight feet in diameter. The bark has been left on, and it produces a very attractive effect, which is carried out by the rough-surfaced, brown-stained boards of which the building is constructed.

These forty-eight majestic columns represent the forty-eight states of the Union, and symbolize, moreover, the sturdy citizenship of Oregon, whose people come from all sections of the United States.

Each of those columns contains enough lumber to build a good-sized dwelling house; they weigh forty thousand to fifty thousand pounds.

The flagpole for the building is the tallest in the world—251 feet high. It was hewn from a tree 347 feet high, and weighs 93,600 pounds. There are more than thirty thousand feet of lumber—enough to frame and board in five eight-room houses—in this giant flagpole. It is more than three hundred years old, and it cost over five thousand dollars to transport it and set it in place.

The flag that flies from the pole is thirty-six by forty-nine feet.

WEST CHEHALEM

Miss Eda Nelson made a trip to Portland last Tuesday.

Harvey Anderson and family and Lewis Amoth were entertained last Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Shaw.

Mrs. Swan Benson spent the early part of the week in Portland.

Mrs. Lundstrum, of Newberg, and Mrs. Tangen, of Chehalis, Center, attended the Ladies' Aid the past week.

Berlin Davis and family, of Portland; Mr. Asquith, of Sherwood, and Dr. A. M. Davis, of Newberg, were Sunday guests of Mrs. Joanna Davis.

B. F. Yergen and family were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Baker last Sunday.

Swan Benson was home a part of last week.

Last Thursday a number of men gathered on the school grounds for the purpose of making an improvement of the same. They were invited to take dinner with the ladies' aid who met at the church on the same day.

There were forty men and women present. The ladies of West Chehalis are noted for their bounteous spreads but this one can beat them all.

The play "The Heart of a Hero" which took place last Friday evening was quite a success. This play was under the direction of Miss Ella Macy and much credit should be given to her. The cast of characters are as follows: Gilbert Westover, Esq., Fred Blanchard; Seth Marlow, Oliver Worden; Clarence Denton, Lawrence Boyd; Arnold Payne, Chester Noble; Cyrus Bodpin, Kenneth Fendall; Robert, Clifford Calkins; Caroline Westover, Bessie Waide; Salina, Florence Noble; Tillie Sloan, Theresa Boyd; Em, Florence Calkins.

Mrs. Campbell, of North Dakota, is visiting a week or two with Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Heggard.

A musical will be given Wednesday evening, May 5, at Evening Young School House Dist. No. 10 under the direction of Miss Crystal Smith. Music will be given by Miss Maud Gregory, of Newberg; Lois Fendall, Clara Calkins, quartets by boys and girls and the band boys. Proceeds for the piano fund. Admission adults 15c; children 10c. Everyone come.

SPRINGBROOK

Roy Shires and Vivian Hadley were Rex visitors Tuesday afternoon.

Little Russell Heater continues to improve slowly, and is thought to be out of danger unless adverse complications set in.

L. W. Nordyke was in Portland Saturday forenoon.

C. E. Newhouse will be on the road in the interests of the Springbrook Strawberry Growers' Union, overseeing the selling of the product. The Union deals directly with retailers, to the benefit of both consumer and producer. Frank Carlisle will have charge of this end of the business. He hopes to send a crate, April 30, and shipping will start in earnest next Monday.

Claude Lewis, who is attending medical school in Portland when her daughter, Mrs. Maggie Brickell, invited in a number of her friends, it being her sixteenth birthday. Those pres-
