Mrs. D. M. Baker visited the first of the week with her son, H. C. Baker.

Mrs. Ora Rogers has been improving the exterior of her home recently.

S. M. Calkins, who is acting as agent for the Pacific Coast Culvert & Flume Company, was with his family the first of the week.

Oliver and Mary Worden and Ila and Noel Hesgard were Sunday guests of the Boyd family.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Anderson and little daughter, Doralie, of Salem, visited with Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Anderson Saturday and Sunday. All took dinner Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Louis Amoth.

That Ribbon Ridge is noted for its prize winners goes without saying, but it is not generally known that Mr. Boyd's old black horse "Nig" is a mind reader. At any rate, this worthy member of the horse tribe found out in some mysterious manner that Laurence was planning to invite several friends to go home with them after church. Old "Nig," not relishing the idea of hauling any extra weight up the hill, resolved to "slip one over" on Laurence. Thus it happened that while the brethren were assisting Brother Crocker in singing the "Doxology" and other soul-stirring hymns, a noise was heard in the tie-shed, and it was afterward learned that old "Nig" had laid down on the tongue of the family "carry-all" with disastrous results. Now, it so happened that Deacon A. C. Seely, who had been left at home to mind the baby, had shunted the job onto the hired man, and at the present time was strolling by the church. He heard the noise, and ascertaining the cause thereof, he at once summoned Laurence from his exalted position in the choir and informed him of the tragic state of affairs. The cold sweat stood on our hero's brow as he surveyed the situation. But Deacon Seely came to his rescue with hammer and saw, and with the supervision of Superintendent Fendall the broken tongue was hastily mended, and by the time the benediction was pronounced everything was in ship-shape. Laurence ushered his friends into the seats and issued the command to proceed. "Nig" laid back his ears as he buckled into the collar, and a look appeared in his off eye which seemed to say, "The next time I'll puncture a tire or tear off a wheel."

WEATHER AND THE SCHOOL.

Cold, Calm and Clear Days Show the Pupils at Their Best.

Teaching children is not the easiest thing in the world. It presents a problem complicated by many and diverse factors. Some of these are only now beginning to be properly appreciated. One such is the influence of weather conditions.

Investigation has shown that the state of the weather has a marked effect both on the children's conduct and on their mental and physical powers.

This was first clearly brought out a few years ago by an American psychologist, Professor E. G. Dexter, whose researches still are among the most exhaustive and informing that have been made in this novel field of inquiry.

Professor Dexter, studying conditions in the schools of cities at sea level, like New York, Boston and Philadelphia, and of others at high altitudes, found that in the former the pupils were best behaved on cold, calm and clear days. Muggy days were productive of the greatest unruliness. A marked tendency to misbehavior was also noted on hot days and on windy ones.

In high altitude schools, such as those of the city of Denver, where mugginess is seldom in evidence, windy days were found to have the most disastrous effect on conduct. Cold, calm and clear days were again the days of best behavior.

With respect to working ability the same results were observed. Both mental and physical tasks were best performed on cold, calm and clear days.—H. Addington Bruce in New York Globe.

Old Lady—Officer, could you see me across the street? Officer—Sure, I've got as good eyesight as any man on the force.—Princeton Tiger.

Treachery, though at first very cautious, in the end betrays itself.—Livy
