YOUNG PEOPLE'S UNION NOTES

One or two of our reporters must have become snow-bound on the way to headquarters this week. We're looking for sunshine next week and everybody will have something to say. The young folks of the Christian church report that the topic of "Why Join the Church?" of last Sunday evening proved of unusual interest and profit to them, as we are sure it did to all the other societies who discussed it. One apt illustration used in their meeting was in the comparison of the Christian to an ordinary old brick. Take this brick and place it in a wall of a building with other bricks and you increase its value materially, and it fills a very important place and is of great service to the wall of which it is a part, while out of the wall it is just a brick and of no particular value or service to anything or anybody.

So with the man who is trying to be a Christian out of the church. It may be possible to be a Christian and not be identified with any church but like the brick we must be united with others to be of the greatest service and help to make up a strong wall of defense for Christ and his church.

Mr. Z. Martin will lead the service next Sunday evening and monthly business meeting will be held at the church Friday evening at 7:30.

Miss Ethel Morris will have charge of the meeting at the Presbyterian church next Sunday evening and the topic will be "How to Work with Others."

Our friends in the country have their meetings snow or no snow, rain or sunshine and next Sunday evening John Shires will have charge at Chehalem Center church, and there will be a monthly business meeting on Friday evening of this week at A. V. Hepdrickson's home. Springbrook society reports good attendance and splendid meetings. Stella Hubbard leads next Sunday evening. Special music at this service. Miss Helen Stannard will lead the meeting at the Baptist church and there should be a large attendance at this service to manifest interest in the special revival services being conducted by Rev. Henry W. Davis, of Eugene. Mr. Davis will conduct a special service for young people on Friday evening of this week at 7:30 to which you are invited.

If you are not a worker in any of the societies of our union, you are like the brick, you are not doing the service and are very cordially invited to line up for service and attend the regular meetings of any of the societies of our local Christian Young People's Union.

Next Sunday the Friends society, with Robt. Dann as leader takes up the first of a series of Peace topics as prepared by the Church Peace Union. The topics to be considered are all based on scripture and are very broad taking up numerous phases of the subject. This subject is one in which all are interested and Mr. Dann will be glad to give further particulars regarding the course to anyone desirous of more information.

TUALATIN GOLF LINKS

The Tualatin Country club has closed a deal for the purchase of 132 acres of land at Tualatin for a golf links. This land has been occupied by the club for some time under lease with the privilege of purchase. The land was owned by Alex Sweek, and it is said the purchase was made for about $26,000.

Cecil H. Bauer is president of the club and I. L. White is secretary.—News Note In Journal.

Two or three years ago it was reported that the club, which is made up of Portland Jews, had paid more than double that sum for the tract and that a sum about equal in amount had been spent on the links, but this later report sounds more reasonable.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

A subscriber writing from Springbrook says: This community has been shocked as never before by the way some colts have been treated. They have been left in a pasture all fall, and a short time ago one of them died and another one was hauled home on a sled, there being nothing left of it but skin and bones and just lite enough left in it so it could look up into its master's face. Another one is still in the pasture in all this snow and rain.

How anyone can treat a dumb animal that way, from a financial standpoint, much less from humane and christian view, is hard for the people of Springbrook to understand.

We hear the expressions "I never heard of the like. If religion will let a man do such a thing, I do not want it. We're running a Libby prison right here in Springbrook." "A merciful man is merciful to his beast." A Subscriber.

CUPID AT MOORE'S HOME

Mrs. J. H. Moores entertained at a delightful six o'clock dinner Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Edythe Brunquist at which time the engagement of Miss Brunquist to Mr. Charles Edwin Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Hill of Springfield, Mass., was announced. Miss Brunquist and Mr. Hill were classmates at O. A. C., graduating in the class of 1914. She is an instructor in the Domestic Science Department of the Newberg H. S. while he holds a government position at the experiment station at Moscow, Oregon.

At a prettily appointed table, candle lighted and decorated in the colors red and white, the following guests were seated: Misses Edna Converse, Isabella Menzies, Mable Rush, Ruth Corbett, Ruth and Katherine Romig, Alice Rees, Ethel Morris, Beryl Camp, Esther Hollingsworth, Mildred Benson and Mrs. W. S. Parker.

During the dinner Miss Dorothy Cox played a number of beautiful selections on the piano. Mrs. Moore was assisted in serving by the Misses Alice Green and Agnes Honey.

JOINT INSTALLATION

About 125 members and friends of Shiloh Post G. A. R. and W. R. C. met January 6, in I. O. O. F. Hall and after partaking of a bounteous dinner took part in joint installation ceremonies.

Dept. Commander Harding assisted by Comrade Hinderstott, of Portland, installed the following officers of the G. A. R.

Post Commander, H. R. Stevens; S. V. Com., Henry Hopkins; J. V. Com., A. J. Palmer; Adjutant, B. F. Langworthy; Surgeon, Wm. Clemmens; Chaplain, Ezra Hayes; Quartermaster, W. H. FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Extracts From Article in Oregon Voter From Pen of A. L. Mills, Banker.

The courage and character of the early settlers in Oregon is evidenced by the motto of the old Territorial seal, "Alis volat propriis"—"She flies with her own wings."

But though it is well to keep ever before us the principle of self-reliance, as declared by the early pioneers who endured countless hardships while they waded across the plains in their ox-driven caravans, in order to settle this great Oregon country of ours, nevertheless, we cannot properly develop this great heritage they left us by ourselves and within ourselves. We must have capital, and capital in no small amounts to supplement our own efforts in developing our natural resources and within the borders of our State there is but little idle capital, common opinion to the contrary notwithstanding.

It is a common error, repeated daily, that Portland is a very rich city and could, if its wealthy citizens so desired, finance within itself the development of our agricultural mineral and other resources.

Rich Portland is in its great buildings, its mills and factories, its wholesale houses and stores, but of investment capital it has but little.

Its wealth is in dead capital, not in funds lying idle in the banks awaiting profitable investment.

It may be of passing interest to you to know that in the First National Bank there are some 26,000 accounts, and yet I cannot recall a single individual who has as much as $25,000 to the credit of his private account.

Of the $18,000,000 on deposit, roughly $5,000,000 are savings deposits, $4,000,000 belong to out of town banks, another million are public funds, and the balance are the working balances of our great commercial houses.

What is true of the First National is equally true of the other Portland banks.

The total deposits of the banks are perhaps $70,000,000, yet would any of you approve of the officers of those banks taking these trust funds of women, children, guardians, etc., and investing them in half baked schemes that are problematical in their outcome?

If so, our ideas of the duty a banker owes his depositors are as far apart as the north and south poles; and yet you hear it often said:

"Look at the money in the banks. Why isn't it used for the development of Oregon's resources?"

Only this week I received a chunk of rock—an ore sample I suppose—with a letter saying it was hoped I would keep it on my desk as a reminder that Portland was asleep while Oregon's mineral resources lay undeveloped.

Portland has but little, very little, investment capital, and though we must all do what we can within ourselves nevertheless we must look abroad, to the East, for the great sums that are necessary to develop our resources.

When the great outside world, the financial world if you please, sees that we are bending our every effort to develop Oregon and that we are not spending our time going up and down the State ranting and raving against corporations, railroads, predatory wealth, and the like, then we shall obtain the necessary assistance for our meritorious endeavors.

Capital is always seeking good investments, but capital is timid, and you cannot compel it to come to Oregon by placing hostile legislation on the statute books; and there are those of means who fear Oregon's theories of government.

CLOSE CALL FOR HUNTERS

J. W. Connell and Harry Westcott had a close call early Sunday morning when the boat in which they were rowing on Wapato lake sprung a leak and sank in water which reached to the necks of both. By wading about 150 yards they reached a spot where a more secure foothold was secured, although the water was not more shallow.

Here they remained and called for assistance. Their cries were heard and two boats were secured and they were rescued. Both were nearly exhausted by their stay of nearly an hour in the icy water, but they were taken to a near-by farm house and put to bed and recovered within a few hours. The difficulties of rescue were enhanced by the strong wind blowing at the time which whipped the lake into waves which broke over the men's heads as they stood in the water. This and the fact that only the heads showed above the water made it difficult for the rescuers to discover from whence the cries came. Both gentlemen are members of the gun club which has leased the lake and had gone there for a day's shooting. The upset occurred at daylight as they were starting out to set their decoys. Guns and everything else in the boat sank to the bottom and were not recovered.—Hillshoro Independent.

The hold-over councilmen are L. S. Ous, first ward; John Hutzen, second ward; Frank Zumwalt, third ward.

WELLS ENTERTAINERS

On Friday night of next week, January 21, the fourth number of the lyceum course will be given by the Wells Entertainers.

The character of the entertainment they will give is outlined in the following press notice from Scotland, South Dakota, where they were on the Chautauqua program:

"The program consisted of solos, duets, costume songs, readings and short sketches, in which they showed themselves not only musical artists, but also talented actors. The selections were clever, new and of great variety. One fact which made them popular with the audience was the pleasant and generous manner in which they responded to encores.

"The afternoon prelude was a collection of short musical numbers, and the humorous sketch "Drifting" was very entertaining."

Seats will be on sale at Kienle's Music Store. Reserved seats 50 cents, general admission 25 cents.

ELECTION OF FIREMEN

At the annual election of the fire department C. H. Coe was elected chief and Arthur Bashaw, assistant chief.

It might be of some interest to the people of Newberg to know how much the firemen make.

For the year, 1915, there were 10 fires and the city paid the department $251.50. There were 177 firemen at all ten fires.

Making a total of each member receiving $1.42 a year.

Stockholders' Meeting

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Newberg Telephone Company will be held in the Commercial Club room at 7:30 on Monday evening, January 17th.

MISS IDA M. WOODS
Re-elected City Recorder of Newberg

THE CITY ELECTION

Very truthfully can it be said that the city election "passed off quietly" on Monday. There being but one ticket in the field the stay-at-home voters being largely in the majority. The vote cast was only about 200.

Jesse Edwards for mayor, Miss Ida M. Woods for recorder and W. H. Woodworth for treasurer were each elected to succeed themselves. Councilman for first ward, T. H. Gardner; second ward, Thomas Rood, elected to succeed himself; third ward, Joe B. Hollingsworth.

T. H. Gardner, not having real estate in his own name inside the corporate limits, will not qualify, and consequently the council will appoint some one to fill the place.

The hold-over councilmen are L. S. Ous, first ward; John Hutzen, second ward; Frank Zumwalt, third ward.
