THURSDAY, MAY 18, 1916

The man without a party will be mighty lonesome tomorrow.

The "sign" is about right for planting corn for exhibition purposes at the corn fair.

And will the gas discovered recently at McMinnville peter out after the primary is over? This is a burning question.

C. B. Moores has made a whirlwind campaign for the nomination for secretary of state and the last lap is getting mighty interesting.

If you want to see Hughes nominated for president see to it that you vote at the primary tomorrow for the men to go to the national convention as delegates who are for Hughes.

The campaign between McArthur and Littlefield for the nomination for congress in the third district is waxing so warm that Lafferty has scarcely been able to get a look-in.

When two or more men insist on riding a donkey at the same time all but one of them must necessarily ride behind—this for the consolation of the fellows who will be in the class with the "also rans" after tomorrow's primary.

With Cummins, of Carlton, Henry, of McMinnville, and Rowell, of Sheridan, all out for the office of commissioner on the republican ticket, it looks like the party was sure to have a competent man to offer for this important position.

The most colossal exhibition of gall ever witnessed in national politics is that of Theodore Roosevelt, a man who has twice been honored by the republican party with the presidency, now begging the party for the nomination, especially after having sulked four years ago when he failed to land the nomination.

Without casting any stones at the opposing candidates, the Graphic is free to say that we believe the voters will make no mistake in supporting H. G. Crocker for the legislature and Jesse Edwards for the senate. If nominated and elected they will make able and efficient representatives.

Every voter whose registration enables him to vote at the primary election should go to the polls tomorrow and express his choice of candidates. This is just as important, and even more so, than voting at the regular election in November. Tomorrow is the day to select candidates for the various offices. Candidates are put to considerable expense under the primary law in making an effective campaign, and those who are worthy are entitled to the support of well meaning people. Those who are not worthy should be defeated; in either case you should take part in the primary. If you have not posted yourself regarding all the candidates, do the next best thing—make inquiry of some one in whom you have confidence.

HOW GROWERS MAY CO-OPERATE

The following suggestions on co-operation made by the Canadian Horticulturist will no doubt be of interest to a number of our readers:

"If the farmers in your neighborhood want to co-operate in the shipping of their produce, never ship with them, but immediately notify the largest speculators what is going on, so that they may buy your produce at a little better price and enough of your neighbor's stock to make co-operative shipping impossible. By doing this you will be doing your community a good turn, because the speculator is usually one of your citizens, and you must assist him in building up his business. Anyway, the extra money that your neighbors would get by co-operative shipping might cause them some embarrassment.

"If this plan does not commend itself to you, then agree to ship with your neighbors; but at the last moment sell to the old-time speculator for a little more money than you think you will get co-operatively, and in that way prove to the community that co-operation is all a humbug, and that it pays well to be a traitor.

"If the co-operative organization happens to sustain some loss on one of their shipments, due to unusual circumstances or conditions, even if absolutely unavoidable, get all the information possible and make it your special business to see every one you can and tell them all you can about it.

"In this connection very telling work can be done by careful exaggeration, double or treble the quantity of goods concerned, paint it very black, make it very much worse than it actually is, because the fact that there may be a little truth in it may enable you to carry that class of campaign a very long way successfully. Pretend to sympathize with the co-operators and pretend that you could have handled the business better; that will make them dissatisfied.

"Incidentally you should be careful not to mention that you have yourself met with much worse luck on various occasions in the past. This method of procedure has much to recommend it. Your neighbors will consider you very much interested in their welfare, and therefore a real good fellow."

CHEHALEM CENTER

L. R. Ralston converted his hop field into a prune orchard. The trees are looking fine.

Wm. Bottom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bottom, of Newberg, are making the family a visit.

Last Wednesday the W. C. T. U. ladies met as appointed at the home of Mrs. Etta Shire. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Lena Moorehouse.

Newberg and vicinity should be, by voting time, entirely converted to temperance principles and national prohibition, owing to the numerous medal contests, being held.

May 3 a class of the younger children gave a contest in the afternoon at the school house. The children all did exceptionally well, Hilma Hendrickson receiving the silver medal.

Bob Archer, of Portland, is making his long time friend, Archie Pickard, a visit. Mr. Archer is a crack rifleman and he and Mr. Pickard are vieing with each other as to the sport of marksmanship.

J. W. Painton, whom a number will remember as having lived on the mountain side, motored with his family all the way from California. They are now residing at Woodburn. The family recently made a visit at the home of D. P. Strait.

Last Saturday evening Miss Mildred Wills accompanied her class to Rex, Miss Ina Ridgway being the winner of the silver medal. This Saturday evening this same class of young people will repeat their contest at Springbrook auditorium.

Miss Christine Meyer was out home on her usual week end visit accompanied by her classmate, Miss Molley Killner, of Portland.

The young ladies made Dr. and Mrs. Logan a visit as Miss Killner was an old-time acquaintance when they were residents of New York.

This Thursday brings to a close a very successful term of the school. The school board has been very fortunate in retaining F. L. Strait and Mrs. Elizabeth Meyer the coming year as instructors. All patrons and friends of the school should be present Thursday evening. The school will produce the cantata "The Carnival of the Flowers" and it will be well worth hearing.

A class of matron ladies from Dundee accompanied by Ellis Pickett appeared at the church Tuesday evening. Each one merited a medal, but only one was awarded, that to Mrs. J. J. Altord. The Misses Thun sang very beautifully three numbers. Miss A. Bingham also entertained in her usually pleasing manner by giving, Riley's "Raggedy Man" and "I Want to Go Back to Gibson Corners," also "The Smile."

SPRINGBROOK

Dr. Claude A. Lewis spent the week end at home.

Mrs. T. H. Fearey returned home Saturday evening from a short stay in Portland.

Fred Kincaid and family motored to McMinnville Sunday for a visit with relatives there.

Saturday evening, May 20, Chehalem Center will bring eight speakers to Springbrook for the W. C. T. U. Silver Medal Contest.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Phillips over the week end were Dale Finnigan and his sister, Miss Mary Finnigan, both of Portland.

The first shipment of strawberries was made Monday morning by Z. Mills and J. O. Hoots and sold for $3.50 on the Portland market.

Mrs. E. M. Parry is taking a much needed rest from her duties as nurse and is visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Montgomery. Miss Howland, another Portland nurse, spent Sunday with them.

Mr. Frederick P. Clark, of Rochester, N. Y., is a guest at the home of his son, Willis K. Clark. Mr. Clark arrived at Meadowvale Farm Monday evening and will remain during the summer.

Delegates to the County Conventions of the Parent-Teacher Association and the Rural Improvement Club held at McMinnville Saturday were the Mesdames J. H. Rees, F. Carliak and Grant Heater.

School is over. Vacation for the primary department began Friday noon, May 12, and Miss Ramsey entertained her pupils with a picnic dinner and an ice cream feed. Mr. Langworthy's grades were in session until Wednesday, May 17, making up three days missed during the winter term.

REX

Mrs. A. H. Dean and Mrs. Vera Nelson spent the week end visiting and shopping in Portland.

Alfred Doree who has been working over in Eastern Oregon, is home convalescing from a broken arm.

Mrs. C. H. Lewis has been in Portland for a few days receiving medical attention. She is better at this writing.

O. R. Winters, one of the leading poultry men of Oregon, shipped a crate of his prize winning S. C. Minorcas to Lynn, Massachusetts, last week.

John Jones, professor in the Texas Agricultural College and who has been doing some investigation work in Oregon in that capacity, spent Sunday with his father, C. H. Jones.

The warehouse of the Chehalem Valley Milling Co. which has been leased by Jones Bros. for their loganberry and cider plant, is being remodeled and put into shape under the supervision of A. H. Dean, and will be ready to handle loganberries as soon as the crop is ready.

The Ladies' Aid had their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Perry Miller where all enjoyed the hospitality of the hostess the entire day. A most instructive session was held and many helpful suggestions offered by the members. Mrs. N. L. Wiley will entertain the society in June.

The silver medal contest held at the church Friday evening served as a drawing card for a large number, a generous contribution from Chehalem Center adding to the audience. The five talented young people that entered into the contest showed their oratorical ability to the fullest extent and it was extremely hard for the judges to give the medal to the most deserving one.

BRITISH RECORD OFFICE

It Has Twenty-five Miles of Shelves Packed With Documents.

Unknown to the millions who pass through the city of London every week, a work of unparalleled magnitude at what is known as the public record office in Chancery lane has been going on for a number of years. In this office there are twenty-five miles of shelves, all full of historical material, going back through the centuries as far as "Domesday Book."

It costs over £20,000 ($130,000) a year to keep up the record office, the keeper of the records being the master of the rolls. The office was established by the public records act in 1838, and the records were taken there from the Tower, the Chapter House, Westminster, the Rolls chapel and elsewhere. Ever since that time the office has been constantly receiving accretions from the law courts, the government departments and various other quarters.

All sorts of records are kept, legal, historical, genealogical, statistical, and so varied are the contents of the office that antiquarian research of almost every kind can be made. There you will find the records of the star chamber and the old wars and liveries. State papers, domestic, colonial and foreign, formerly preserved in the state paper office in Whitehall, are also to be seen there. Usually fifty or sixty students are seen working in the record office every day, and at any time there is the fascinating thought that one of them may make some interesting discovery.—London Tit-Bits.

FULTON'S SUBMARINE.

The Nautilus and Its Then Daring Feats in French Waters.

That Robert Fulton set more store by his submarine plans than any of his other projects or achievements in ship designing is recalled by Farnham Bishop's "Story of the Submarine." It was in Paris, where Fulton had received from Napoleon an advance of 10,000 francs to build a submarine, that his Nautilus was brought to completion.

"On her first trial, on the Seine at Paris, in May, 1801," writes Mr. Bishop, "the Nautilus remained submerged for twenty minutes with Fulton and one other man on board and a lighted candle for them to navigate by. This consumed too much air, however, so a small glass window was placed in the conning tower and gave light enough instead. Four men were then able to remain under for an hour."

"After that Fulton made the first compressed air tank, a copper globe containing a cubic foot of compressed air, by drawing on which the submarine's crew could stay under for six hours. This was in the harbor of Brest, where the Nautilus had been taken overland."

"A trial attack was made on an old hulk, which was successfully blown up. The submarine also proved its ability either to furl its sails and dive quickly out of sight or to cruise for a considerable distance on the surface. Once it sailed for seventy miles down the English channel."

Use of Pious Language.

The almost total abstinence from using "pious" language in ordinary business and social intercourse in America may be considered commendable in some ways, but I consider it a surrender of the soul to the body, a subordination of the spirit of the things which are eternal to the spirit of the things which are temporal. In my judgment the superior culture of the west, instead of limiting the vocabulary of religion to the one hour of formal worship on Sunday and scrupulously shunning it during the remainder of the week, should make its use on a much higher plane than the orient has yet discovered, coextensive with all the activities of life.—Abraham Mitre Bihbany in Atlantic Monthly.

Conquered the Orchestra.

In his early days Herr Arthur Nikisch, the famous conductor, was appointed to conduct a performance of "Tannhauser" at the Leipzig opera. He was but a young chorist master at the time, and the orchestra absolutely refused to play under so youthful a conductor. They were only induced to do so when a director said that if they were of the same mind after the overture had been played they could then and there hand in their resignations. The overture was a veritable triumph for Nikisch, and with profuse apologies the orchestra offered him their congratulations.—London Tit-Bits.

The Tenrec.

One of the strangest animals known to zoologists is the tenrec, an insect eating animal found only in the island of Madagascar. It is supposed to represent a very ancient type of animal which is now almost extinct. Madagascar, once a part of the mainland of the African continent, was separated therefrom at a very remote period in the past. As a result a fauna peculiar to the island has been developed.

A Real Dilemma.

"What's a dilemma?" asked one small boy. "Well," replied the other, "it's something like this: If your father says he'll punish you if you don't let your mother cut your hair, that's a dilemma."

Poor Start.

Fond Aunt—Tell me, William, did you start in well at Harvard? William—No, auntie; I was suffering from a slight cold.—Harvard Lampoon.

A brave soul is a thing which all men serve.—Alex. Smith.

As Many Know.

"Can I sell you any thermometers today?" "No, nor any other day. There is a little person in the kitchen who attends to all that sort of thing. She makes it hot or cold as it suits her."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Had His Preference.

Hospitable Farmer—Now, stranger, sit right down to the table. You are welcome to your dinner, but you'll have to eat what the rest of us do. Stranger—Thanks, but I—er—if it's all the same to you I'll eat what the rest of you don't.

Make the best of life; make the most of it. Make the best of it the most of it.—Youth's Companion.

Mate to Come.

Maud—So Helen and Jack have made up their quarrel, have they? Ethel—Yes, but only temporarily. They are going to be married soon.

One Way to Do It.

Crawford—I hear he's economizing. Crabshaw—Yes; he doesn't buy anything now unless he can get it on credit.—Life.
