THURSDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1916

Possibly you have heard of one Christopher Columbus. Yes, well he is having his day and the banks are closed.

Under "civil service" examination the Telephone-Register, "Independent," would pass these days as a pretty fair democratic Wilson sheet.

There is a big demand for Hughes buttons in Newberg, the same as there will be a demand for Hughes, the candidate, on election day, November 7.

It looks now like the brewers' amendment would be beaten so badly on November 7 that Col. C. E. S. Wood and others who are handling the campaign for it would require "nursing mothers" to care for them, following the nervous shock.

There are those who, when they locate in a new place, lose little time in finding the local newspaper office and subscribing for the paper, remarking that they want to keep informed relative to community affairs, and then there are others who, when approached and asked to subscribe, respond with a "nope, don't care anything for a local paper, take more papers now than I can read." Which of the two classes go to make up the live, wideawake, progressive citizenship of a community? The answer is easy.

Hon. B. F. Mulkey, who was the speaker at one of the biggest and most enthusiastic political demonstrations ever made in Yamhill county, which was a feature of the McKinley campaign in Newberg of twenty years ago, the warmth of the campaign reaching such a degree that a speaker had to give out hot stuff in order to hold his own, fully demonstrated in his Hughes speech Tuesday night his ability to come back. The Graphic will say to the state central committee that if they will furnish the audiences they will do well to keep Mr. Mulkey busy campaigning up to election day. He hits hard and he clinches his arguments against democratic inefficiency by quoting the language of a number of democratic congressmen to prove his contentions.

POSITION WELL TAKEN

The Portland Live Stock Reporter in commenting on the state fair says:

The breeders of the Oregon Pure Bred Livestock Association held their annual meeting and banquet, both being well attended. Many strong resolutions were passed. One in particular meeting approval was that condemning the tendency to sell concessions for "wheels of chance," "duck ponds" and similar fake propositions, carried on for the purpose of getting the money of the people without any adequate thing in return. People are not attracted to a fair by such forms of so-called amusement. Were these concessions not before them they would spend their time looking at exhibits which would be of some profit to them. It is hoped that the state fair officials will not weigh too seriously a few thousand dollars which they receive from these fake concessions as against public opinion. Live stock men all over the country are very much up in arms over this proposition and sooner or later will refuse to show in opposition to such concessions.

CHEVALEN CENTER

Miss Christine Meyer made a trip to Portland the first of the week.

Miss Lila Hodges attended the Round-up in McMinnville last week.

Col. F. L. Harford will be out

Sunday evening and lead the Christian Endeavor meeting.

Harry Crater is home again from Eastern Oregon after having worked in the harvest fields.

Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Johnson have purchased a Bush & Lane piano for their daughter, Miss Nina.

Mr. Vanderbeck and family are moving onto the property belonging to Mr. and Mrs. H. Chase.

The Parent-Teacher Association will hold a meeting at the school house next Monday evening.

Mrs. Elsie Christianson is home from Idaho on a visit to see her father, K. L. Tangen, who is in very poor health.

School opened Monday with a good large attendance. All enjoyed having the new piano and seemed to take special pride with the music.

Monday evening quite a number of the young folks and friends spent the evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Stubbs as they are moving to Newberg. All had a jolly good time and wished them well as they take up their residence in Newberg.

This Friday evening, October 13, Attorney Clarence Butt and G. O. Bassett will address the people, explaining the measures, especially the brewers' amendment and the dry law, to the voters. Everybody come out and hear them. Miss Edna Everett and Miss Hollenbeck will give readings and there will be music by the Misses Staley and Mable Jacobson.

ENLARGING MILK PLANT AT HILLSBORO

The following clipping from the Hillsboro Independent is of interest to the editor of the Graphic from the fact that he and E. A. Stuart, the Carnation Milk man who has built up an immense fortune out of the condensed milk business, studied bookkeeping in the same class in an Indiana Academy when young men:

Work began Wednesday morning upon the addition of another unit to the plant of the Carnation Milk Products company in Hillsboro which when completed will make it one of the largest, if not the largest, on the Pacific coast. The building will replace the wooden structure which contained the plant previous to the completion of the new building which joins it on the south. It will be 100x170 feet, contain two stories and materials used will be concrete and tile. The approximate cost will be $50,000. When completed the plant will not only be one of the largest, but will be probably the most up-to-date in the west, being only rivalled in this respect by a plant belonging to the company in Washington. Construction work is being carried on under the direction of O. Boen, construction foreman of the company, at Seattle.

The enlargement of the Hillsboro plant is the result of the great increase in the demand for the company's product during the past year. Plants have been run at full capacity and it is understood that shipments are only limited by capacity of existing plants and car shortage, which is affecting the company to an extent.

GUN TOTIN'

It was the big gun on the kaiser that started the war; he thought he could win any fight that was started, and he let Austria start it, and here we are. It was the gun-toting from the Mexicans that caused the shooting yesterday. Gun-toting is the cause of nine-tenths of the gun trouble in this world.

The time was in the eighteenth century, when fire-arms were comparatively new in the world, when the "right to bear arms" was an important right of the individual in the civilized world, because the overlord with his cannon and his pistol was aggrandizing on the rights of the individual. But the day is past when "the right to bear arms," guaranteed by our constitution, is conducive to the general welfare; "the right to bear arms" is a menace rather than a benefit to civilization.

The kind of people who tote guns today are exactly the kind who should not "bear arms." The world has whirled around, and what was a good thing 200 years ago, is a bad thing now. There is just as much reason now to prohibit entirely the manufacture and sale of pistols as there is to prohibit the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages. Whiskey and guns are all bad. The country should amend the constitution so that it will be just as hard to get a pistol as to get a drink.

The free sale of pistols to people who should not have them is a bad thing. There is no law against it. That is the crime of the community. But nevertheless the dealers in pistols without law should have been kept enough moral sense to restrict the sale. The way the hardware stores of this town are thronged on pay-day by Mexicans buying guns and knives is wrong. The mere fact that there is no law against it, or that someone else will sell these guns, or that they have no way of knowing what the buyers are going to do with the pistols, is not a good excuse. It is a bad business, even if the profits are high. But the community is as bad as the dealer. The sale of fire-arms should be restricted. The Gazette will do its part. Notice is hereby given that all advertising of pistols is cut out of this paper from now on. This is a civilized country, and there is no reason to encourage it by profiting by it, directly or indirectly. We will take advertisements of shot-guns and rifles and sporting goods, but hereafter pistols don't go. The man who buys a pistol is buying trouble and we shall not help him.—Emporia (Kan.) Gazette.

Any man can hope for the best but it takes an optimist to expect to get it.

The Margin of Safety

Young Hiram was ploughing the field and it was Spring. "It's spring, for sure, father," he said, and added, looking wistfully down toward the brookside, "I bet the trout are biting down there in the hole under the willows."

"Hiram, if you'll just hang on to them reins, and be careful to keep on this side of that there fence," the father replied reassuringly, "they won't bite you."

The man who never does anything until he is told to do it will never be told to do anything important.

PRESERVING SEASON

There's the fragrance of the orient through all the house today, The spicy smell of cinnamon, cloves, nutmeg and bay, And it mingles with the perfume of the peaches and the plums; Do you recognise this fragrance—when preserving season comes?

There are baskets heaped with apples, heaped with damson plums and pears Jelly glasses by the dozen; Mason jars long stored down stairs, Have been washed in boiling water and now stand in gleaming rows And neatly written labels soon their contents will disclose.

Blackberry jams and melon pickles, brandid peaches, apple jelly, Preserved pears (last season's winner) and quince marmalade as well; All the sunshine of the summer for the winter time put by; All the orchard's golden sweetness ripened under azure sky.

Like the squirrels of the forest women folks are full of thrift When Queen Nature in her beauty pours before us gift on gift, And I seem to read a promise in the kettle's frothy foam That the summer time will linger in the heart and in the home.
