order that the memories of the bride and groom of twenty years ago might be refreshed a mock wedding was one event of the evening. Oliver Moore made a most impressive bridegroom and was attired in the conventional black and was attended by Roy Shreves. The bride, Mrs. A. Heskett, looked most lovely in a white dress of lawn trimmed with real imitation lace. Her veil, a priceless lace curtain that had been in the family for years, was softly draped away from her face and fell in graceful folds to the floor, and she carried a bouquet of Oregon fir tied together with a beautiful genuine linen handkerchief in a true lover's knot. J. Semmer gave the bride away and the words that united the happy couple were spoken by J. W. Moore. Mr. and Mrs. Dean were presented with part of a dinner set of Haviland china and both acknowledged it with neat little speeches. They were showered with congratulations and all promised to return when twenty years had again rolled by.

Helpful Suggestions

If troubled with sleeplessness try holding the eyes open instead of keeping them closed. In a short time the lids will droop. Do not allow them to close at once, but hold open until they become tired. Very often sound sleep will come.

Cheesecloth makes one of the best materials to use in mops. It is light in weight, porous, readily picks up the dust, is easily wrung out, easily cleaned and dries so quickly there is small danger of ever having a "sour" mop.

Eggs broken into a buttered dish seasoned and flavored with grated cheese are most appetizing if closely covered and steamed.—From The People's Home Journal for December.
