$1.50 Per Year in Advance

THURSDAY, JUNE 7, 1917

Roy S. Blodgett has sold the Tualatin Valley News, of Sherwood, to I. V. McAdoo, and says in his leave-taking that he is going to try his hand at farming.

The G. A. R. State Encampment is to be held at Forest Grove this year and the citizens of that little city are already making preparations for the entertainment of the grizzled veterans and their wives.

L. W. Charles, who learned to set type in the Graphic office, has sold the Scio News to T. L. Dugger publisher of the Tribune, who has combined the two papers. A consolidation or starvation was inevitable in this case. Scio has never given one paper any princely support and divided by two the yawning of the boneyard had to be reckoned with sooner or later.

The Graphic tried to do its little part toward creating sentiment for the $6,000,000 road bonds in the recent campaign and we feel quite comfortable over the results. The bonds carried in the state by close to 20,000, in this county by nearly 1200, in Newberg by better than 300, and the precinct in which the writer lives was the banner precinct in Newberg and we think in this county, the vote being 93 for and 11 votes against the bonding act.

Not waiting until the count was completed, the State Highway Commission, as soon as it was seen that the road bonding act had carried, voted to pave at once the Rex-Tigard road, provided Washington county will prepare the road bed. Very good news for the voters in Yamhill county who supported the measure, this being the main thoroughfare leading from this county and all the upper west side of the valley to the metropolis of the state.

The University of Oregon makes the following announcement which is of special interest to the newspaper fraternity of the state:

Publication of Oregon Exchanges, a paper for the newspaper men of this state, will be undertaken as soon as material for the first issue for which a call has already gone out is received. The paper will start small and will grow as the newspaper men make use of it. It is hoped to make the paper a medium for exchange of ideas among journalists of this state, for the publication of news of special interest to newspaper men, such as changes of ownership, personal movements of journalists, big newspaper campaigns and anything else concerning editors, publishers and printers throughout the state. The paper will carry no advertising and will be distributed free to journalists and printers of Oregon. It is hoped through this means to co-operate with the state and Willamette Valley editorial associations in keeping the newspaper men of the state in close touch with one another. All the Oregon newspapers have been invited to exchange with the newspaper and it is the aim of the publishers to make every newspaper man in the state a contributor to the columns of Oregon Exchanges, as well as an interested reader.

The mother of Herbert C. Hoover, the man most talked about by the newspapers and magazines of the United States of to-day, was a minister of the gospel in the Friends church and her heart was so intensely in the work that she sacrificed her life at an early age, doing evangelistic work during the winter season in a rigorous climate. Without any blare of trumpets to proclaim his bravery and heroism Mr. Hoover has emulated the characteristics of his mother in facing dangers seen and unseen in his great task of saving the lives of innocent women and children, victims of the terrible European war, from starvation. In the same quiet, unassuming way he went about his tasks when a young boy-student in the academy here in Newberg, he is now taking up the work of handling the problem of the food situation for the government, and no one doubts his ability to make good. Mr. Hoover is fortunate in having had a good heritage. Although he was left an orphan at an early age, practically without money, he had the stuff in him that impelled him to make the sacrifices necessary to prepare himself for the trying tests of life that were to come. We think the assertion that Hoover is the one great character the war has developed is not far wrong.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY HOLDS SILVER TEA

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. church held its Silver Tea at the home of Mrs. R. W. Thurston Wednesday. Despite the fact that the Parent-Teacher meeting and the Red Cross met at the same hours, there was a fine attendance. The business meeting was crowded through and a delightful social hour followed. Letters from Seoul, Korea and Hia Tang, China, were read, in which Christmas as observed by the Christian workers there were described.

Miss Marie Church appointed by the Oregon Conference as teacher in the former was well qualified, having been a successful high school teacher in Independence, Corvallis and Lakeview. Miss Jennie Jones missionary at the former is to return home for her vacation July 21. She is a niece of Mrs. Zumwalt and a reception was planned for her at Mrs. Zumwalt's when she arrives.

Plans were outlined for preparing the Christmas packages that will be sent early in the fall.

The L. T. L. will hold the closing regular meeting at 3:30 on Mon. at the regular meeting place—the Christian church. They are to take part in the Rose Festival parade and it is imperative that all members attend this meeting. Later the annual picnic will occur and the graduation exercises. Watch for the announcements in the papers.

FARM NOTES BY COUNTY AGENT

Last week we published the honor roll of cows in the Yamhill cow-testing association, viz.: those that made over 40 pounds of butter fat during the month. Nearly every herd in the association has some cows on the honor roll as well as some that produced very much less. The average production for the entire herd is a vital factor in profitable dairying. Following is the average per cow fat produced last month by each grade herd in the association:

Owner	No. cows	Av. lbs. fat
Geo. Fuller	12	48.1
A. Q. Latimer	21	39.5
L. H. Baker	13	38.9
D. L. Gubser	15	37.3
Wm. Donnelly	18	35.0
Foothills Farm	24	34.8
Chester Mulkey	25	34.5
E. M. Alderman	12	32.8
G. W. Day	18	31.7
Broadmead Farm	26	26.5
W. A. Umbanhuar	15	26.5
H. Holmes	10	25.1
L. R. Alderman & Roseman	23	22.6
G. G. Earl	7	21.8

In the above average production the herds are entered with the exception of Geo. Fuller who is milking about 24 cows. W. H. Hubbard, the tester, makes especial mention of the herd of Wm. Donnelly in which there are two cows that have been milked 14 months and several others a year.

M. S. Shrock,
County Agent.
