MISTAKEN SCIENTISTS.

Newcomb said the Aeroplane Could Never Be a Success.

Sir Humphry Davy's dogmatic pronouncement against gaslighting is not the only instance of a clever scientist being hopelessly wrong. The early history of submarine cabling furnishes two striking examples.

Consulted on the scientific side of the project, Faraday asserted that the first cables were made too small. Then he said that "the larger the wire the more electricity would be required to charge it," and in this quite incorrect opinion he was supported by other eminent scientists. As a result of this dictum the current was increased until the operation "electrocuted" the wire and the cable broke down.

It was Lord Kelvin who by sending messages through heavy cables with incredibly weak electric currents proved that Faraday was mistaken.

Airy submitted the project to mathematics and arrived at the conclusion that a cable could not be submerged to the necessary depth and that if it could no recognizable signal could ever travel from Ireland to Nova Scotia.

In aviation the late Dr. Newcomb, one of the most distinguished mathematicians the world has ever produced, declared that he had mathematically investigated all the conditions operating against the heavier than air machine and was convinced that the aeroplane would never be any more than a scientific toy, and the possibility of an aeroplane motor being reliable in the reduced atmospheric pressure above 8,000 feet was by several experts said to be out of the question.

No Baby Carriages There.

One's first impression on reaching Tokyo is that it is exceedingly well provided with means of transportation, writes Maynard O. Williams in the Christian Herald. Up through the middle of the city runs the elevated trestle, under which scores of warehouses and shops utilize the covered space, and on this four track trestle electric and steam trains enter and leave in steady streams. The streets are filled with automobiles, motor trucks, bicycles, men drawn carts—every type of vehicle except the baby carriage. The baby carriage of Japan is the mother's back or the daddy's shoulder, and I have no doubt that this closeness of mother and child throughout months and years has much to do with the excellent behavior of the bright little babies.

To Remove Ink From Face.

One young woman who dipped the Irish lace on her sleeves into the ink that she had spilled succeeded in removing the stains by rubbing them gently in a mixture of vinegar and water, hair and half, and then in warm soapsuds alternately until the spots were gone. This treatment she found satisfactory for other white goods as well. Another found that rubbing white goods that had become ink spotted with the yolk of an egg before washing worked very well.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Bride on the Minute.

It was a most ludicrous mistake. She imagined her wedding day was Wednesday, when in truth it wasn't to take place till the day after.

"Just like a woman. And everything went awry, and the bridegroom gnashed his teeth, I suppose?"

"Well, hardly. In fact, everything turned out beautifully. By making the error unconsciously she was dressed in time, and the ceremonies were pulled off according to schedule."—St. Louis Republic.

Woeing Sleep.

To go to sleep get the body and mind comfortable. The body is easier to make comfortable than the mind. A rubdown, a bath and a little bit to eat help bring that about. To compose the mind read some familiar book or poetry. That soothes the mind, for no exertion is necessary to read it. The heaviest sleep generally comes about an hour after sleep begins.—Boston Journal.

Chaucer's Face in a Stone.

In the geological branch of the British museum the visitor is shown a wonderful specimen of natural imitation in a small "ribbon Jasper." This stone, the material of which is not unlike that of other banded agates, has upon its surface a perfect miniature portrait of the poet Chaucer. Every detail is startlingly correct. There are the white face, the pouting lips, the broad, low forehead and even the whites of the slightly upturned eyes. The attendants say that it is utterly impossible to convince even some of the educated visitors that it is not an artificial production.

Final Notice

In the County Court of the state of Oregon for Yamhill county.

In the matter of the estate of F. T. Keyes, deceased.

To all whom it may concern: Notice is hereby given that Laura B. Handwick, administratrix, has filed her final account in said estate, and that pursuant to an order of the County Court, the 30th day of July, 1917, at ten o'clock a. m. is fixed as the time, and the County Court room in the County Court House in McMinnville, Oregon, is fixed as the place for hearing said final account and any objections thereto, and that publication thereof be made in the Newberg Graphic, once a week for four consecutive weeks prior to said time.

The first publication of this notice appears in the issue of said Newberg Graphic dated the 28th day of June, 1917, last issue July 26, 1917.

Laura B. Handwick, Administratrix of the estate of F. T. Keyes, deceased.

THE STORE THAT SELLS THE BEST FOR JUST A LITTLE LESS

SOME FACTS You should know about Shoes

There has been a very great change in the manufacture of footwear the last two seasons, leather has been high and scarce and more and more shoes are being made with substitutes for leather in heels, counters and insoles. Nowadays, when you buy shoes only from "outside appearance" you're apt to be disappointed in their wear quite frequently. The right way to buy them is by their reputation. That's why we are so enthusiastic about "Star Brand" Shoes. They are made as shoes should be—all good leather, from heel to toe—no "paper" or other substitute for leather in any part of them. They are made for Men, Women, Boys and Girls—a shoe for every member of the family—all grades and prices—dress, medium weight and work shoes. You'll be sure to like
