MORE ABOUT THE ATTEMPTED BANK ROBBERY

Editor Graphic—Supplementing the story of the bank burglary in 1903, told in last week's Graphic, I recall that the night following the burglary the mare and buggy of A. B. Brown, living near Scholls, eight miles north of Newberg, were stolen, driven twelve miles towards Portland and near a dairy at the foot of Portland Mountain the mare was unhitched from the buggy and turned loose in the barn lot, whence Mr. Brown recovered her a couple of days later.

After leaving Brown's place with the stolen rig the thieves made a long detour, coming back into the Portland road half a mile below Brown's place and meeting some neighbors going home from lodge. One of them, recognizing the mare, said, "Wonder where Brown's rig is going." Raising the lantern and seeing three strange men in the rig he concluded he was mistaken and passed on.

Before taking Brown's mare the same men, apparently, had attempted to get a conveyance of Uncle John Heaton as his buggy was drawn out of the shed and one horse harnessed, but the other horse, being fractious, had so bothered them they left and went to Brown's place, with the success above mentioned.

At the time it was thought that the burglars, after leaving Newberg, had secreted themselves in the timber on Chehalem Mountain during the day and had taken this way of getting back towards Portland.—W. W. Jaquith, of Laurel.

HIGH SCHOOL

Professor Amey has resigned his position as teacher to enlist in the army. He will receive five weeks training at the University of Oregon in the third course of ordnance training before enlistment. His service will deal with munition handling. His position at the high school is instructor in mathematics and director of athletics, and everybody regrets to have him leave.

The class games in basketball were played last week, with the following results: Freshmen 23 vs. sophomore 6; seniors 14 vs. juniors 13; freshmen 24 vs. juniors 7; seniors 23 vs. sophomore 13; sophomores 21 vs. juniors 4; freshmen 25 vs. seniors 17. An admission of five cents was charged in order that a pennant could be purchased for the team getting the highest percentage. The freshmen won the pennant. Fred Yergen, a popular student, is going out for basketball. He is expected to make the team.

Several new students have entered from Sherwood during the last week in order to avoid taking the entrance examinations required by the new school law.

CHURCH SOCIAL A SUCCESS

The social given at the Baptist church last Friday evening was a decided success. Those present entered into the spirit of true sociability from the beginning. The program, as rendered, was interesting. Songs by the World Wide Guild of the young ladies missionary society, were full of life and energy. Miss Ethel Burns explained the object of W. W. G. Planting in the Moon by Helen Perkins was fine. A social, as defined by several, is a gathering of people to promote acquaintance and fellowship, where no unpleasant thoughts or words are indulged in, where all go home happier, having had a jolly good time together. These socials do promote the christian spirit of love for each other developed in no other way.

A good program is being prepared which will add much to the days enjoyment.

BIBLES FOR THE SOLDIER BOYS

Campaign for Funds to be Made on next Sunday and Monday.

Next Sunday and Monday the people of Newberg are to have an opportunity for another bit of real service to American soldier boys by contributing to the $400,000 fund for the putting of a copy of the New Testament into the hands of every American soldier and sailor who will promise to read it.

Newberg's share of this fund is $100, and it is confidently expected that in this as in other things Newberg will far exceed her quota. The campaign will be made in the Sunday schools and churches on Sunday, and Monday a canvass of the town will be made.

It is the united testimony of United States officials, army officers, army chaplains, Y. M. C. A. secretaries and the soldiers themselves, that they need the Bible, that they want it, and that they do read it. With the great temptations that surround them and face to face as they are with the realities of life and death, thousands who have neglected the book in the past are feeling the need of its uplifting and sustaining influence today. Thousands are turning to the Bible as never before, and the old book is being read by many who are getting help from it that they could get from no other source.

Funds for this cause are coming from the churches, Sunday schools, young people's societies, Y. M. C. A.'s, and from many who have no direct connection with the churches, and the fund thus raised, with the full endorsement of the United States officials from the President down, is very carefully, efficiently and economically administered. It goes to the American Bible Society, the greatest Bible distributing agency in America, which supplies the Testaments in million lots at a minimum cost.

The distribution is made without duplication, through the Army Y. M. C. A. and the Army Chaplain. Each soldier who will promise to read it, being given an India paper Testament in strong khaki binding.

It is confidently expected that Newberg will again far exceed its quota for this splendid cause.

PIGS IN THE PARLOR

Herbert Willard, of near Dayton, had about a car load of those famous Poland China hogs on exhibition at the fat stock show in Portland. They were sure some classy hogs for he captured 14 prizes and sold a good share of them, some as high as 23 1/2 cents per pound. It seems to us to be a paying business, this pedigreed hog business.—Dayton Tribune.

SOLDIERS APPRECIATE DISH TOWELS

More are Wanted and Young People's Societies Requested to Continue the Work.

The Young People's Union recently took it upon themselves to send dish towels to the soldier boys, and to say that they appreciate them is putting it mildly.

One hundred and thirty-one towels have so far been sent to the soldiers in care of the Y. M. C. A. at Vancouver, and Mr. Earl Fieke who is engaged in Army Y. M. C. A. service at that point, well known for his active work among the Young People of the State of Oregon, writes that these simple gifts are very much in need and greatly appreciated by the soldier boys. Some of the girls placing their names inside the dish towels also received letters from the soldiers receiving them, expressing their individual appreciation.

The Society from Rex has brought the greatest number of towels with Springbrook a close second, and the Methodist society third. On account of the appreciation shown for this humble service, the War Service Committee of the Union has decided to continue this work indefinitely, and will provide a box at Mr. Crede's Meat Market, where you may leave more towels. Get busy, Newberg societies, and bring more dish towels to headquarters, where they will be taken care of by the Committee.

Do not let our good neighbors outside the city, beat us any more.

Thanks to Mr. Crede for granting us the privilege of using his market for headquarters, and thanks to every individual member of the Union who brought dish towels. Let the good work go on.

War Service Committee.

FERN STAGGERS IN HORSES

Present indications point to a very heavy loss of Western Oregon horses during the next few months from fern poisoning or fern staggers.

On account of scarcity and high price of hay, a great many farmers will use a very poor quality of hay this winter. It is usually true that the fern grows better than does oats or other hay crops during dry weather. This being the case, a great deal of the hay saved the past season contains much fern.

Symptoms of fern poisoning usually come on slowly. Affected animals are unsteady on their feet, hence the name "fern staggers." In a good many instances there is marked constipation. Sometimes the first symptoms noticed may be the constipation. Animals affected may eat and drink well for the first few days. Some may show loss of appetite, while others may eat ravenously seeming to prefer dry straw or dirty bedding to the grain or clean hay. The staggering increases, the animal gradually loses control of the muscles, until it goes down and cannot get up. In some cases animals show great difficulty in swallowing on account of a partial paralysis of the muscles of the throat. In some cases they may be extremely nervous and very hard to manage. The course of the disease may vary from a few days to two or four weeks. A few animals may recover without treatment, if they are taken off the fern hay. A high percentage will die, however, if no treatment is given.

The best treatment that has been found so far consists in thoroughly cleaning out the digestive tract. Very nervous animals are usually given some sedative to quiet them. Since the throat is frequently partially paralyzed, attempts at drenching may be followed by the fluid entering the lungs and causing pneumonia. This type of pneumonia is always a serious trouble, and it usually finally results in the death of the animal. For this reason many veterinarians use hypodermic drugs to a certain extent in treating fern poisoning. Data collected by the college show that a high percentage of these cases can be saved if a veterinarian is called as soon as symptoms appear. If the owner waits several days, however, before calling the veterinarian, the losses are much greater. Many owners refuse to become alarmed as long as the animal eats, and finally call their veterinarians only in time for the autopsy.—Extracts from O. A. C. Bulletin.
