GOV. WITHCOMBE FOR SECOND TERM

Tells Why He Is the Logical
Candidate for the Republican Nomination

If the people of Oregon are of the opinion that I have served them faithfully, I should be pleased to receive a vote of confidence at their hands.

The Governor of the state has the ear of the people. It is therefore in his power to assist in creating and maintaining a healthy public sentiment on the many subjects which make for community welfare. I have been mindful of this fact, have mingled with the people and have done all in my power to promote the development of the state, to bring about the construction of good roads, to emphasize the importance of education and especially to maintain at white heat the devotion of the people to the great cause of liberty and democracy for which this country is fighting. If re-elected, I shall continue to do everything I can to accomplish these ends.

Oregon has given twenty thousand of her sons to the great world war. These men are the flower of our young manhood and we have no clearer duty than that of loyally supporting them, providing for their health and comfort and safeguarding their morals. I shall continue to render them every service in my power.

Under our form of government the conduct of a foreign war devolves on the President of the United States, who is commander-in-chief of the Army and Navy. I shall do everything in my power to assist the President in making the power of this country effective in the great world conflict. I shall particularly exercise every power and authority which I possess to promote a maximum efficiency in our local industries which are related to the war activities. No other duty is so pressing or at this time so important as that of winning the war. No sacrifice is too great if it looks to the triumph of the forces battling for international righteousness.

I shall stand in the future, as in the past, for rigid law enforcement and for a cleaner and greater Oregon.

Oregon is firmly committed to the principles of prohibition and equal suffrage and, while they are no longer issues in this state, I shall continue to give these causes my full support.

Every legitimate phase of state development should be supported, but at this time when our country is engaged in the most terrible war in the world's history the most rigid economy in state expenditure should be observed.

We have state problems of great magnitude to be worked

VALUE OF GRAYFISH BEING RECOGNIZED

Once Were Wasted But U. S.
Bureau of Fisheries Has Found Market for Them

The editor of the Graphic has found it difficult in times past to get his friends of the East to believe some of his fish stories, and doubtless many who will read this article have had the same experience. The accompanying pictures, which recently appeared in the Standard Oil Bulletin, will help to convince the skeptical Easterner, who never saw a fish larger than a twelve-inch "sucker," that we have real fish out here on the Northwest Coast.

The Bulletin says of the Grayfish:

We of the United States are beginning to discover the grayfish; we are awakening to a realization of its possibilities as food. That we did not begin learning this long ago was not due so much to lack of discernment as to the fact that we have so many other excellent food fish with established reputations.

The grayfish are none other than our fishermen's old-time enemy, the dogfish. As dogfish they were despised here in America, though Europe has recognized their food value for centuries. The adult fish are from three to four feet in length, and weigh from five to fifteen pounds, seven pounds being a common weight. They feed on live crabs, lobsters, shrimp and other fish valuable for food. In this exclusive animal diet they are like most other of our important food fishes. However, they have been regarded as pests by fishermen engaged in other fishing, owing to their piratical and destructive habits. Often they travel in large schools and, being attracted by live fish enmeshed in fishermen's nets, they not only destroy the fish in their eagerness to kill, but, in nearly all cases, damage the fishermen's gear with their teeth. This, as well as the fact that the grayfish was, until recently, thrown to the dogs and the hounds when caught with salmon and other food fishes, resulted in the fish being called "dogfish." Naturally under these conditions no name was too bad to call such a destructive fish, but the U. S. Government, in its endeavors to increase the demand for this low priced and excellent food fish, has changed the name to grayfish, believing the name more palatable.

The grayfish was first introduced into the United States as a food fish by the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries in November, 1916. Eastern packers were the first to place it on the market and a considerable demand was created as the result of pamphlets and other educational work done by the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries.

As the grayfish is most plentiful on the Pacific Coast during the winter, just at the idle time for the salmon canneries, there is reason to believe that the Pacific Coast packers will be able to operate the whole year round.

The canning of grayfish is handled in much the same manner as that of salmon, and packers will be able to use the same machinery, with the exception of the "iron chink," which cannot be used on the grayfish because the cleaning must be done by hand in order to save the livers, which are valuable for their oil.

out—for the increase of desirable population; for the encouragement of manufacturing enterprises; for the enlargement of flocks and herds of the best breeds; for the eradication of fruit pests and other destructive agencies in orchard and farm; for the general encouragement of productiveness in all lines of endeavor; for the careful, intelligent handling of the several state institutions and their wards, observing as far as possible the best lines of modern treatment while at the same time securing for these and for every department of state business the closest possible economy.

Domestic tranquility and business confidence are intimately related to the public welfare. I shall do all in my power to promote them. I note with pleasure the growing disposition of employers and employees to consider each others rights and to adjust differences by discussion in a spirit of fairness and equity.

The routine duties of the office will not be neglected by me, but every effort will be put forth to bring each branch of the state service to a condition of maximum usefulness. The efficiency of the service must never be sacrificed for the sake of political advantage.

I shall be mindful of the fact that I am the representative of the whole people and shall welcome suggestions from any citizen to the end that the collective wisdom may be brought to bear on all problems.

If honored by a re-election I shall continue to give the best that is in me to every branch of the public service.

CANDIDATE FOR REPUBLICAN NOMINATION FOR GOVERNOR

DR. J. E. ANDERSON

Dr. Anderson is best known throughout the state as the "Father" of prohibition, as he introduced in the state legislature the prohibition law of 1915 as well as the "bone dry" law of 1917. That he is proud of the title is evidenced by the fact that when he filed notice of his candidacy for Governor he ordered the words "Bone Dry; Win the War; Develop Oregon" printed after his name on the ballot.

He is a native of Illinois, but has resided in Oregon for the past sixteen years, all of the time in The Dalles.

As a member of the Oregon legislature in 1913-1915 and 1917 he has always been actively identified with the constructive measures coming before that body. He was a member of the committee which in 1913 put through the measure taking the state printing out of politics, thus saving thousands of dollars to the Oregon taxpayer. He supported Workmen's Compensation, Permanent Registration, Mother's Pension, State Board of Control, Rural Credits, as well as all Social Hygiene and other moral uplift measures. During the three sessions he served in the House he has supported every measure which promised a relief and protection to the men and women who toil, and in 1917 took the floor in active opposition to the anti-picket bill. The railroad men have appreciated his support and have officially thanked him for his assistance in passing the Electric Headlight bill, the Full Crew bill and like measures in which they were vitally interested.

The reform element elected him Mayor of The Dalles in 1913. He was defeated for re-election in 1914, but was again elected in 1915 and re-elected without opposition in 1916. On January 1, 1916, when the prohibition law went into effect, The Dalles Local of the International Bartenders' League, acknowledging their defeat at his hands, presented Dr. Anderson with their lodge banner and disbanded for ever. This is believed to be the only saloon banner ever surrendered to the opposition, and is prized by him as a memento of a well earned victory.

MEDAL CONTEST AT DUNDEE

The young people's silver medal contest held at Dundee last Saturday evening was listened to by a good sized audience.

The class was composed of Esther Miles, Llewellyn Sanderman, Francis Clark, Eleanor Bassett, Miss Jackson. The contestants rendered their readings and orations, which were well chosen and interesting, in an efficient and pleasing manner.

Miss Esther Miles won the honors, Llewellyn Sanderman winning second place. The solos of Mrs. Babcock and Miss Ethel Morris were much appreciated by the audience.
