(Carried over from last week.)

Bruno Homberger was home from Camp Lewis for a Sunday visit.

Prof. and Mrs. Anderson entertained the graduating class, their teachers and parents, and the members of the school board and their wives Wednesday evening.

The graduating exercises on Thursday evening brought out a large audience of parents and friends who were happy in extending congratulations to Louisa Allan, James Allan and Henry Billich on the completion of their four years' work in the high school. The stage was beautifully decorated for the occasion by the high school students and the large tables in front completely hidden with gifts and flowers for the graduates. Miss Selma Holzmeyer and Uel Marr furnished instrumental music. Louisa Allan pleased the audience with her beautiful essay on "Worth While," the class motto. Incidentally she mentioned that the three graduates had entered the primary grade of the Dundee schools together and none of them had ever gone to any other school, a rare occurrence in these days of so much unrest and moving. Henry Billich gave "Our Flag," an essay that told the history of flags in general and of "Old Glory" in particular. James Allan chose for his subject "Some War Figures" and startled his hearers with the immensity of the undertaking we have on hand, bringing down to concrete examples some of the millions in figures to make them more fully realized. Prof. Anderson briefly told of the work the class had accomplished and Prof. Horner, of the department of history in the O. A. C., gave the graduating address. Prof. Horner was intensely interesting to both grown-ups and the children and his review of history in connection with scientific inventions since the establishment of the first high school in Portland in 1865, was a revelation to his hearers. A. A. Parrett, president of the school board, presented the diplomas. Diplomas to the graduates of the eighth grade were also presented. The class comprised Pauline Powell, Harriet Sayles, Ruby Dodd, Isabella Allan, Marvin Eaton, Delmer Livengood, Elsie Hammer, Cyriah Eames and Gleason Johnson. The annual school picnic was held on Friday. That is the one day in the year when the busy fathers forget orchards and gardens that need cultivation and gather to play with the children, enjoy the picnic dinner, and hear a fine program. The usual happy crowd assembled and in the forenoon enjoyed the sports arranged by the high school boys. The contests and the winners are as follows:

Cookie eating contest—John Herring and Paul Turnbow.
Peanut race—Freda Billich and Elsie Livengood.
Three legged race—Owen Owens and Albert Niederberger.
150 yard dash—3rd and 4th grades, Owen Owens.
150 yard dash—5th and 6th grades, Russell Pierson.
200 yard dash—H. S., Henry Billich.
Bicycle race—H. S., Henry Billich.
Pole climbing—H. S., Fredrick Holzmeyer.
High jump—H. S., a draw between Fred Hutchinson and Uel B. Marr.

A noticeable feature of the great feast at noon was the entire absence of white bread and the variety of delicious war breads in sandwiches, also the eliminating of elaborately decorated cakes and the prevalence of toothsome Hoover cakes of a surprising variety. Hot coffee was served by the Parent-Teacher Association. In the afternoon Prof. Powell made a brief address and his singing pupils gave a varied program. Gladys Johnson furnished a reading, and County Superintendent S. S. Duncan gave a stirring patriotic address. Prof. Duncan, always a favorite in Dundee, reached heights of oratory and practical helpfulness that mark his speech as his best effort in Dundee. His topic, "The Call of the Past, the Present, and the Future," brought home to every hearer his or her immediate duty for the upbuilding of a patriotic, sensible, soulful body politic. Mr. Duncan was interrupted with frequent bursts of applause. The exercises of the day closed with the ascension of a paper balloon. Ice cream was sold for the benefit of the Victrola record fund.

"WHITE MAN'S LAW WRONG"
Indians Lodge Emphatic Protest Against Restrictions Imposed Upon Them by the Statutes.

Gould P. Junior, full-blooded Indian, living near Buckeye, Cal., who has been a registered voter for ten years, as he pays taxes on 997 acres of land in Tehama county, protests against the extermination of ground squirrels. The campaign of squirrel eradication opened in this county recently. Junior says he expresses the opinion of his father, Chief Hang 'Em Up Jim, and the majority of his tribe.

"Ground squirrels are an important item of our food," says Junior, "and now the white man proposes to take that staple from us, just as the white man exterminated the buffaloes on the plains. We have squirrel days, and to us Indians they are feast days, with ground squirrels as the main dish. A new law even forbids us killing bears in certain months of the year."

John Lego, another full-blooded Indian, who lives in the Big Bend of the Pit, was released from the county jail, where he has served 30 days for killing a bear out of season. "White man's law is all wrong," says Lego. "Deer, bear, and all game belong to the Indians. They were given to us by the Great Father. White man came and took all our land without paying us for it. Surely we ought to have the bear, squirrels, fish, deer and other game to feed upon when we get hungry."

CELLULOID TO REPAIR NOSE

United States Physician Has Proved Material to Be Ideal for the Purpose, and Employs It.

Repairing a nose that has been deformed by the loss of some of its bone is a not unusual surgical operation, but it has required a piece of cartilage cut from a rib. Now, however, Dr. G. B. New of the Mayo clinic, Rochester, Minn., is using celluloid instead of bone.

In the Journal of the American Medical association he describes how he tried celluloid strips in the nose of a dog and found that they were an ideal implant. Since then he has repaired five human noses with perfect success.

Doctor New cuts from a slab of celluloid pieces of approximately the size and shape needed, soaks them in hot water, trims them with scissors and bores many small holes through them. Then he cuts a pocket in the nose from where the bridge of spectacles would rest down to the tip, slips the strip in and sews up the small wound. The flesh grows into the holes in the celluloid and the nose becomes normally shaped and quite strong.

DRAWING A LINE.

"Did you throw an old shoe after the bride?"

"We think a great deal of her. But you couldn't expect us to toss away anything as expensive as leather."

AN APPROPRIATE ONE.

"Can you suggest a good way to repel raids on henhouses?"

"The best I know is to let their foul assailants hear the cock of a pistol."
