Shave Yourself In the Morning?

Everything Necessary For the Man who Shaves Himself

It is a Pleasure to Serve You

Guess you remember a few mornings ago, when you stood for a couple of minutes trying to make up your mind whether you would shave yourself or not. You hated the idea of starting the day with yesterday's whiskers on your face, but you hated the torture that you were going to suffer if you shaved. What was the reason for this? Was it the soap? Was it the razor? Or, perhaps, it may have been that unpleasant after-effect you had experienced when you shaved yourself. There is no need for this if you have the proper lather. 50 per cent of a good shave is the lather. We very strongly recommend REXALL SHAVING CREAM. It lathers quickly and freely and if well rubbed on to the face, will soften the beard so that shaving becomes not only easy but pleasant. If you prefer stick or powder, we have the same excellent quality in these. The razor is of course important and we would be glad at any time to show and advise the right kind for your beard and skin. For a pleasant feeling after shaving the best thing to use is, Rexall Shaving Lotion, which is an antiseptic and leaves the skin feeling cool and comfortable. A little Talcum—there's a special kind of powder for men, you know—gives a finishing touch and makes your self-shave as enjoyable as any your barber ever gave you.
