

WOMEN VITAL AID IN SPEEDING UP WAR LOAN DRIVES

Oregon Mothers, Sisters, Wives
Back Up Fighting Men by Selling Liberty Bonds

By Mrs. Hazel Pedlar Faulkner
"Where your treasure is,—there will your heart be also."
The truth of that statement, made so many years ago, has been brought home anew as never before.

What mother does not know the force of it? And at the price of what infinite pain and suffering, as well as of pleasure and joy, has she realized the rest, "there will your heart be also."

The hearts of American mothers—countless thousands of them—are overseas. In the trenches along the Aisne, on the battlefields of Flanders and Picardy, the treasure of hundreds of thousands of American mothers is daily being offered up. And to those spots, made sacred by the treasure, go the hearts of a loyal land.

MISER'S HEART DEAD TO LIFE JOYS
There is a legend of a certain man, whose god was gold, and whose passion during his lifetime was the accumulation of the precious metal.

After years of hoarding the man died, but even before his final passing his family and friends were astounded to find all trace of his heart gone.
After his death his treasure box was opened. There, surrounded by his hoarded dollars, lay the heart, secure in the presence of its treasure.

To American mothers no more despicable man could be pictured. For his treasure, stored in the dark places of his possessions, might have saved many days of strife and sorrow. And his heart was dead to all that the best in manhood stands for.

Of far gentler sort was the heart of that little mother, type of thousands of American mothers whose all has been laid on the altar. There will be a legend about those mothers in some remotely future date. And the light will shine around such as she.

"I didn't expect to see any more," said a little, bent old lady, who asked if she might have work to do. "I thought my sewing days were over, for Joe took care of me."
And there her eyes glistened and she straightened back as far as possible the stooped, narrow shoulders.

"But he is a soldier now. Of course, he sends me the money to live on. But I can't buy Liberty Bonds with that," and she smiled with a satisfaction which bespoke decision regarding her next move.
"MY HEART'S OVER THERE NOW"
"You see, I am getting the sewing to do, so I can pay for my bonds. For my boy is fighting over there, and I can't have him need things I can help to buy for him and all those other mothers' boys."

"You see, my heart's over there now."
And her treasure, meagre to the vanishing point almost, is following it loyally and bravely.
Oregon mothers, can you do less? Your hearts are overseas, and your treasures must follow. The Government, through its Fourth Liberty Loan, offers you a special opportunity to send your treasure following in most effective fashion.

Every Liberty Bond we buy means so much of the war paid for and put out of the way. Every dollar we offer to the Government, to put into its war fund, bespeaks an earlier return for our treasure and a brighter day for our land.

Who lends generously and willingly in this fight, gives manifold, for she gives when the need is sorest, and the promised return is great.

"BADGE OF SHAME" AWAITS FOURTH LOAN SLACKER
Those Who Can But Won't Buy Liberty Bonds Are to Feel Weight Public Scorn
The open season for Liberty Bond slackers begins September 28 in Northern California counties and at the recent conference held in San Francisco the best methods of smoking them out into the open were discussed. A few county chairmen were for "strongarm" measures where the cases were flagrant, but the opinion prevailed that there should be no act not in accord with the rights afforded all under the Stars and Stripes.

It was the sense of the meeting that slackers should be called before a judicial committee made up of the leaders of the community and after it had been determined that the defendant was capable of subscribing and still refused his name should be published in the newspapers, creating a "Badge of Shame" for those refusing to perform their duty.

"Jesus did not say 'Blessed are the Peaceful,' but 'Blessed are the Peacemakers,' and I say let's have five million more of them in khaki."—John Willis Baer at the Northern California Liberty Loan Conference.

STARTING A LIFE HABIT

This Poltu, probably a liaison sergeant attached to an American regiment, is about to try, not without evident trepidation, the great American doughnut. Probably future generations of Marie Celestes and Madeleine Fantines will not think of serving up supper without doughnuts.

The scene is in a Red Cross "hut" near the front lines, very likely in imminent danger of a shell upsetting things. Back up the Franco-American courage that jests in the face of death with an over-subscription to the Fourth Liberty Loan.

NO, THIS IS NOT IN TRENCHES

Strange, isn't it, with baths still in use in England that were built by the Romans, that just across in France you can't get a bath once a month in the trenches.

The Yankees shown above are visiting the old Roman plunge at Bath, England, while enjoying the hospitality of our British cousins.
While en route to France, thousands of American soldiers have had their hearts warmed by the cordial entertainment of the English. Make your subscription to the Fourth Liberty Loan as hearty.

General Petain, cheering his troops at the beginning of the fifth year of the war, said:
"Not long ago, I said to you: 'Abnegation, patience; your comrades are arriving.'
"Today I say: 'Tenacity, audacity; you shall have victory.'
American dollars must back up the overwhelming American armies—Buy Fourth Liberty Bonds.

DREAD ELBE HUNGER STONE

While the German armies are getting the licking of their history from Rhelms to Flanders, the Huns at home are shaking their heads over the gloomy prophecy of the Elbe Hunger Stone, left dry by the shrinking waters of the Elbe.

"When you gaze on me, then weep," says the inscription placed upon the stone in 1417. In the 501 years that have followed, the legend says, plague and famine have followed every drouth which revealed the stone. The Fourth Liberty Loan will give Germany something else to worry about.

For Foch and Freedom—Buy Bonds. Idle dollars are pro-German.
Beat the Boche with Bonds. Buy a Bond or be a Boche.
Whip the Kaiser with Cash.
Own bonds or wear them.
Bridge the Rhine with Bonds.
Free Belgium with Bonds.
Lend as they fight.
Arm the Yanks with Bonds.
Bonds will help the Hun retreat.
Make your approving ballot a Fourth Liberty Bond—and make it an emphatic vote.
Down in your pockets or down on your knees—Liberty Bonds.
Shakels for Freedom—Shackles for Serfs—Which?—Liberty Bonds.

OUR SAVED FOOD FED THE ALLIES

Food Administrator Writes President America Conserved 141,000,000 Bushels Wheat.

CREDIT DUE TO WOMEN.

Meat and Fat Shipments Increased by 844,600,000 Pounds.

Conservation measures applied by the American people enabled the United States to ship to the Allied peoples and to our own forces overseas 141,000,000 bushels of wheat and 844,600,000 pounds of meat during the past year, valued in all at $1,400,000,000. This was accomplished in the face of a serious food shortage in this country, bespeaking the wholeheartedness and patriotism with which the American people have met the food crisis abroad.

Food Administrator Hoover, in a letter to President Wilson, explains how the situation was met. The voluntary conservation program fostered by the Food Administration enabled the piling up of the millions of bushels of wheat during 1917-18 and the shipment of meat during 1917-18.

The total value of all food shipments to Allied destinations amounted to $1,400,000,000, all this food being bought through or in collaboration with the Food Administration. These figures are all based on official reports and represent food exports for the harvest year that closed June 30, 1918.

The shipments of meats and fats (including meat products, dairy products, vegetable oils, etc.) to Allied destinations were as follows:
Fiscal year 1916-17...2,166,500,000 lbs.
Fiscal year 1917-18...3,011,100,000 lbs.
Increase 844,600,000 lbs.

Our slaughterable animals at the beginning of the last fiscal year were not appreciably larger than the year before and particularly in hogs; they were probably less. The increase in shipments is due to conservation and the extra weight of animals added by our farmers.

The full effect of these efforts began to bear their best results in the last half of the fiscal year, when the exports to the Allies were 2,133,100,000 pounds, as against 1,266,500,000 pounds in the same period of the year before. This compares with an average of 801,000,000 pounds of total exports for the same half years in the three-year pre-war period.

In cereals and cereal products reduced to terms of cereal bushels our shipments to Allied destinations have been:
Fiscal year 1916-17...259,900,000 bushels
Fiscal year 1917-18...340,800,000 bushels
Increase 80,900,000 bushels

Of these cereals our shipments of the prime breadstuffs in the fiscal year 1917-18 to Allied destinations were: Wheat 131,000,000 bushels and of rye 13,900,000 bushels, a total of 144,900,000 bushels.
The exports to Allied destinations during the fiscal year 1916-17 were: Wheat 135,100,000 bushels and rye 2,300,000 bushels, a total of 137,400,000 bushels. In addition some 10,000,000 bushels of 1917 wheat are now in port for Allied destinations or en route thereto. The total shipments to Allied countries from our last harvest of wheat will be therefore, about 141,000,000 bushels, or a total of 154,900,000 bushels of prime breadstuffs. In addition to this we have shipped some 10,000,000 bushels to neutrals dependent upon us, and we have received some imports from other quarters.

"This accomplishment of our people in this matter stands out even more clearly if we bear in mind that we had available in the fiscal year 1916-17 from net carry-over and as surplus over our normal consumption about 200,000,000 bushels of wheat which we were able to export that year without trenching on our home loaf," Mr. Hoover said. "This last year, however, owing to the large failure of the 1917 wheat crop, we had available from net carry-over and production and imports only just about our normal consumption. Therefore our wheat shipments to Allied destinations represent approximately savings from our own wheat bread."
These figures, however, do not fully convey the volume of the effort and sacrifice made during the past year by the whole American people. Despite the magnificent effort of our agricultural population in planting a much increased acreage in 1917, not only was there a very large failure in wheat, but also the corn failed to mature properly, and our corn is our dominant crop.

"I am sure," Mr. Hoover wrote in concluding his report, "that all the millions of our people, agricultural as well as urban, who have contributed to these results should feel a very definite satisfaction that in a year of universal food shortages in the northern hemisphere all of those people joined together against Germany have come through into sight of the coming harvest not only with wealth and strength fully maintained, but with only temporary periods of hardship."
"It is difficult to distinguish between various sections of our people—the trades, urban or agricultural populations—in assessing credit for these results, but no one will deny the dominant part of the American women."

The Ford automobile engine, illustrated here, like all internal combustion engines, requires an oil that holds its full lubricating qualities at cylinder heat, burns clean in the combustion chambers and goes out with exhaust.

"Zerolene is the Best"

—Say leading motor car distributors, because the records of their service departments show that ZEROLENE, correctly refined from selected California asphalt-base crude, gives perfect lubrication with less wear and less carbon deposit.
Most cars are now lubricated with ZEROLENE because their owners have learned through experience that there is no better oil.
ZEROLENE is the correct oil for all types of automobile engines. It is the correct oil for your automobile. Get our lubrication chart showing the correct consistency for your car.
