This, the "L"-Head type of automobile engine, like all internal combustion engines, requires an oil that holds its lubricating qualities at cylinder heat. Some class in the combustion chambers and goes out with exhaust. ZEROLENE fills these requirements perfectly. Because it is correctly refined from selected California asphalt-base crude.

"Proven Entirely Satisfactory"

Only perfect satisfaction can account for the use of ZEROLENE by the majority of automobile owners.

Leading coast distributors also testify that it is "a most satisfactory motor oil." They know from the records of their service departments—and we know from exhaustive tests—that ZEROLENE, correctly refined from selected California asphalt-base crude, gives perfect lubrication with least carbon deposit. Get our lubrication chart showing the correct consistency for your car.

HELPED TO "FIND HERSELF"

New United States Employment Service Is Enabled to Render Aid to Woman Who Needs It.

The United States employment service not only helps a woman to find a job, but in many cases the service helps a woman to find herself. The average woman who has never earned a dollar in her life is very often under the impression she is not qualified for any vocation; yet she may have had real training. Here is a case in point. A woman of refinement called at a United States employment office in New York city, said she had no qualifications, had never earned money, and asked for suggestions on what kind of training to take. The examiner in charge questioned the woman very carefully and discovered she had done considerable research work in the last four years on some important law cases for her husband and had also done a great deal of statistical work for him. The examiner found the applicant a place at $100 a month doing statistical work. In a short time the woman was promoted to an $1,800-a-year job. In less than a year this woman qualified so successfully she is now holding down a $3,000 job.

GRAYSHUS—MY CHILD.

Out in Ashland avenue recently a child nurse was telling her shoe-clerk beau how she told the story of Moses to her curly-haired charges.

"And they placed his cradle in the bulrushes," she related.

"Grayshus, that was a dangerous place to hide him," volunteered the beau, "—dangerous, where the bull rushes."—Indianapolis News.

MUSIC BROUGHT JOY.

Yeast—It must have cost a lot of money to give your daughter her musical education.

Crimsonbeak—It certainly did.

"And has it paid you?"

"Indeed, yes. Why, when she sings I can't hear a word her mother says."—Yonkers Statesman.

SOMEWHAT THIN.

Diner—What do you call this stuff?

Waiter—Mock turtle soup, sir.

Diner—Well, tell the chef he has carried his mockery too far.—London Tit-Bits.

THEIR CLASS.

"I wonder what division of the army the baby tanks belonged to?"

"I should think they would put them in the infantry."

CAUSE FOR THANKSGIVING

Mrs. White—Well, Uncle George, for what were you especially thankful this year?

Uncle George—I was thankful that little Evelyn ain't twins and little Clifford ain't triplets!

IRISHMAN'S LUCK.

Private Charles M. Davies of the Canadian army, a Los Angeles man, has his own supply of war jokes.

He tells about the little clusters of white crosses that are always found back of the third line trenches. Each cross is marked "Unknown R. I. P." These initials are susceptible to varying interpretation. The Canadians say they mean "Rest in Pieces," which is sometimes literally true. The Americans have other theories.

"The other day as I was passing one of the little gardens," Davies writes, "I ran into a couple of Yanks giving the R. I. P. crosses the once over. 'By golly,' one of them said, 'the Royal Irish Police must have got a h-l of a licking around here.'"

PREFERENCE FOR IMPROMPTU.

"What would you do with the ex-kaiser?"

"That's one of those cases," said Cactus Joe, "where I don't see any necessity of plannin' ahead. If I was to get a chance at him I'd trust myself to think of something appropriate on the spur of the moment."

A DEVIOUS AFFAIR

"I want to get a drink of straight whiskey."

"Can't be done," answered the bootlegger. "All the liquor around here is crooked."

HER FOOT IN IT

He—Don't you think you made a mistake in getting such a high-heeled shoe?

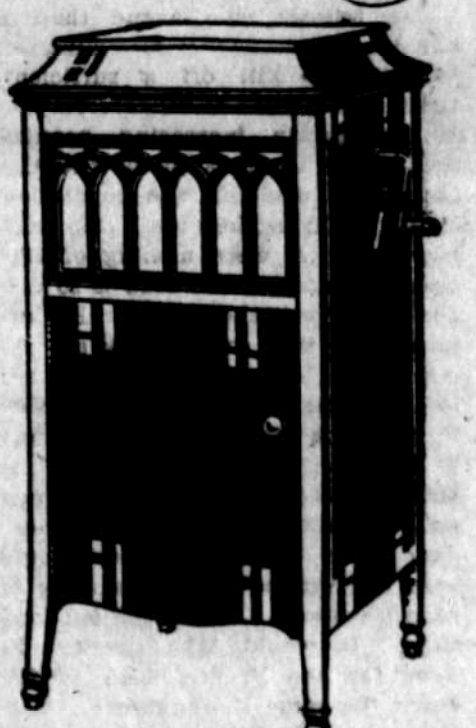

She—Come to think of it, I did put my foot in it.
