

WRONG IDEA OF GREATNESS

By No Means Always Achieved by Those Who Have Made a Big Noise in the World.

We make bold to say that there is a general misconception in the minds of people throughout the world as to what really constitutes a great life.

Unless a man or a woman has been in the public view with whatever service was rendered, unless his or her picture has been in newspapers and books, unless, in short, they have "made a noise," we do not consider that the lives they led were great lives.

This is not only a harmful misconception; it is a mistake and its consequences are, from a moral point of view, extremely vicious.

Suppose you are walking in the fields or in the forests and you come across a strange kind of bug or insect. You are curious to know what it is. Well, you can secure a book in almost any public library that will tell you just what you want to know. That book was written and compiled by some man who did nothing his whole life long but study bugs, cataloguing them, learning their tribe and origin and the habits of their existence.

Other men have spent their lives in equally humble capacities, but adding always to the world's sum of knowledge. The drug that soothes your pain, the spectacles by which you renew your worn-out eyes, the fire you cook with and that warms you—these and millions other of your blessings and delights were wrought out of nature's secret storehouses for you by patient students whose names you do not know.

These are the great lives. These are the lives that have blessed the lives of all who followed after them. And the men and women who led such lives were great people though they went down to their graves unhonored and unused.

Antimony in the Transvaal.
A new body of antimony is reported to have been opened near the Komati river, in the district of the Stensdorp gold fields, Transvaal. As the ore is found to be valuable, a mining company is now carrying on smelting operations on the spot. Three shafts have been sunk to a depth of 50 feet, besides open workings. One is continuous throughout. A furnace capable of smelting ten tons of ore per day is in operation and it is stated that there is sufficient ore in sight to keep the furnace working while developments are being made.—Scientific American
