

Follow-Being.
In that simple and beautiful record of a holy life, the Journal of Joga Woodman, there is a passage of which I have been more than once reminded in my intercourse with my fellow-beings: "Some glances of real beauty may be seen in their faces who dwell in true meekness. There is a divine harmony in the sound of that voice to which divine Love gives utterance." Quite the ugliest face I ever saw was that of a woman whom the world calls beautiful. . . . On the other hand, there are faces which the multitude at the first glance pronounce homely, unattractive, and such as "nature fashions by the gross," which I always recognize with a warm heart-thrill; not for the world would I have one feature changed; they please me as they are; they are hallowed by kind memories; they are beautiful through their associations; nor are they any the less welcome that with my admiration of them "the stranger intermeddled not." —Whittier.

Merely Changed Music.
How hands were once sometimes recruited for the navy is suggested by an old tale of maritime warfare. When the frigate United States captured the British frigate Macedonian, about a hundred years ago, it also captured a band of eight French, German and Italian musicians. The band had first put to sea in a French frigate, which was captured by a Portuguese vessel and brought into Lisbon. There the musicians had been persuaded to enlist on the Macedonian. After their capture by the United States one judges that they played just as cheerfully for American sailors as they had already played for French, Portuguese, and British.

Ask Your Boy

When the fighting was thickest—
When the suffering was greatest—

Where was THE SALVATION ARMY LASSIE?

He'll say:
"She was right on the job"

And now, back home—in the byways and hidden places—where misery always lives, where a mother needs a home, where men, women and children are on the downgrade, she's still "RIGHT ON THE JOB."
