ARMISTICE DAY FOOT BALL GAMES

Special Correspondent Tells of the Hair Raising Star Plays on College Field

Business was at a stand still on Tuesday afternoon when three hundred people and more took advantage of the opportunity to witness foot ball as played by local talent and otherwise. As to the former, it might be more properly styled, local effort, as judged by an unsophisticated fan on the side lines. In fact, so much effort was lost that several lines of business have not been able since to return to normal.

The recently organized American Legion was represented by a team selected from its members and was pitted against the greatest all-star aggregation of celebrated wind-jammers the town could produce. The latter composed the Red Cross squad, a few of whom were also ex-service men. All the war time spirit and pep were injected into the initial kick-off, and for some time thereafter both sides displayed a dash and determination which at once is recognized in all good athletes. But alas! the original armistice day happened a long time ago, consequently towards the end of the first quarter signs of disintegration began to appear, it being evident that the players were in need of more time to mix oxygen. From that time on through the game the amusement furnished the spectators was of a rare sort.

Earl Baird, the generalissimo for the American Legion, after many sudden starts and quick returns, finally sent Brandy Elliott on a reconnoitering expedition over the line for the first touch-down of the game. The Red Cross team after much snorting and grunting managed to push Virgil Fendall over for a similar tally which was the signal for mutual felicitations by members of the opposing teams. An armistice was quickly signed and by common consent no further efforts to buck the line were indulged in.

It is not fitting and proper, perhaps to dilate upon the individual excellencies of the players, for they all tried hard to entertain and received bruises enough for it. However, Arlie Evans was the first to get his neck cranked and had to retire. Cliff Spaulding, having lately purchased a brand new foot ball, shut himself in his room nightly to practice punting in his stocking feet in order to please the baby. In this manner he bruised his toes, greatly handicapping him in meeting the demands of the game. Bert Miller was a sure enough trouble maker for the Legion boys and was finally put out of the game when it was observed that Zerolene grease was oozing out all over him, making him hard to hold. Also W. P. Phillips, the 250 pound Valley Canning Co. contribution, had his irritabilities roused at times when the Legion "Kid" continued to "Peck" him even after the ball was down, just because he was "some size."

These are just a few of the many pleasantries of the game as seen from the side lines and here's the hope that our towns may again see similar friendly rivalry among its boys and that America will always be for Americans and their games. The Woodburn and Newberg Hi was a much classier game of foot ball and at the outset the result was in doubt. Woodburn, however, by superior interference and line plunges, succeeded in vanquishing their opponents by the score 6-0. Don Crow was the Newberg star.

The total receipts from the games was $113. The local Red

CLEVER BEGGARS WORK CORVALLIS SAYS THE COURIER

Mrs. Jessie Flint, of 326 South Third street, has called our attention to the fact that there have been several unworthy cash collectors making the rounds of the residence section in the past couple of weeks. One man who made a thorough canvass of the city handed out a card explaining that he was deaf and dumb but half the time he used other cards and then could talk as well as anyone. At some places he would knock and when told to "come in" he would open the door and present his deaf and dumb card. Many people were caught and stung.

Still another was attempting to get enough money together to buy a "peanut roaster" and he was begging for the cash although to all appearances he was big and strong and able to work.

A bunch of young men visited the city securing "votes to send them to college" by selling subscriptions to magazines. While a large number of people bit and paid their fifty cents or thirty-five cents as the occasion suited, they are still waiting for the magazine. There are those asking for help at times who are in need and the man or woman who is kind hearted fears to refuse anyone because of the possibility that they may be in want. Many towns get around this house-to-house begging by having a Charities Association with a president or manager who hears the requests of the needy ones and if their case is one for help they are given it and if it is not they are sent on their way.

The business houses and individuals will direct the ones asking aid to the proper person and won't have to worry about it any more. He funds are usually secured by a membership campaign and by the selling of old clothes which are donated. Corvallis could use a Charities Association for the Red Cross doesn't meet with the individual who is up against it except the service men or their dependents. These associations usually have enough on hand to do a lot of handsome work about Christmas time for those who need it.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT AND CONDOLENCE

At a regular meeting of Shiloh Post, No. 77, Department of Oregon, Grand Army of the Republic, held November 8th, 1919, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, Our Grand Commander in His divine wisdom has taken from our ranks our late Comrade R. B. Linville, who died at his home in Newberg, Oregon, October 23, 1919, and

Whereas, Comrade Linville was a charter member of this post, and one of our most loyal and devoted members, and

Whereas, Shiloh Post, in the death of Comrade Linville, has sustained a loss that is irreparable to them, and the family has lost a kind husband and father. Therefore be it

Resolved, That our post charter be draped in mourning in his honor for the period of sixty days; that a copy of these resolutions be spread on the records of the post, a copy furnished the local paper for publication and a copy be tendered to the bereaved family of our late comrade.

B. F. Pike,
Post Commander.
J. W. Moore,
Post Adjutant.

Cross, of which Mrs. E. C. Baird is chairman, was the recipient of 50 per cent of this amount by the players.

THE PROPOSED MOUNTAIN ROAD

An Earnest Appeal by M. G. Oakley for Help in Building It

We are ready to begin work on the proposed new road on the south side of Chehalem Mountain. We want men to clear the right of way and put in culverts at the wages the county court is willing to pay. A little later we will want teams to make fills. Shacks and stoves will be furnished for men who want to camp on the job.

If we ever get this road through the farmers must furnish a portion of the funds and also furnish help at the wages the court is willing to pay.

I have spent much time in locating and surveying this road; I am giving up 3 or 4 acres of land, mostly cleared and some set in fruit, and am willing to give $1,000 towards its construction and I think it ought to meet with some co-operation on the part of others who also want the road.

I think many would help if they thought it would be completed in a reasonable time.

If the heavy rains hold off a few weeks and the farmers respond as they should there is no reason why we can't do all the grading this winter.

There is a whole township that would be benefited by this road. If built on our present plans it will be a road to be proud of and I will be glad of an opportunity to help build it. M. G. Oakley.

METROPOLITAN SINGERS

The question is often asked, "Why are there so few mixed quartets on the platform?" The answer is easily given. It is not because it is hard to assemble four good voices, but because it is extremely difficult to find four good voices that blend properly and four people who will work together for the success of the whole.

When a company does appear possessing all these requirements their success is instantaneous and continuous. If they fall short on any particular their life is short-lived. A company which has won success and secure place in the affections of music lovers throughout the east and middle west will appear here on the lyceum course—Metropolitan Singers of Chicago—at Wood-Mar Hall Friday night. This organization is composed of four people with concert voices, voices that blend and that show years of training and careful coaching. The Metropolitan Singers were assembled and sponsored by the well known Chicago critic and coach, Elias Day. This is their first western tour and all lovers of good music will regard their coming concert as a red-letter event of the season.

The personnel is as follows: Beulah Hayes, soprano; Madge Miller, contralto; Alfred C. Green, tenor; Leonard S. Aldridge, basso cantante; Mary Glen, pianist and accompanist. Each member is a soloist of rare ability and their ensemble numbers are a real delight.

HIRAM WILL RECOVER

Hiram Johnson ought to begin to recuperate now. He has emptied his system of the melancholy effusion resulting from his personal pique against everything pertaining to the League of Nations. His pet amendment has been killed. Mr. Johnson will recover. Indeed, he didn't take himself as seriously as a great many who so loudly applauded him.—Hood River Glacier.

RECENT SALES OF REAL ESTATE

The W. E. White Realty Co. reports recent sales made as follows: One of the H. M. Williams bungalows on Willamette street between Fifth and Sixth to W. F. Cummins, a nephew of Mrs. Henry L. Hagey, of Dundee, who comes from Troutdale.

The E. L. Eckerson nine acre tract located a mile west of Newberg to J. W. Kelly and wife, of Lewiston, Idaho, who want to retire from heavy farming and bought this neat little place for a home. The consideration was $4,250.

The J. W. Baker bungalow on Chehalem street between Fourth and Fifth to Mrs. Dora Goodrich and husband, recent arrivals from Michigan. This property was sold a short time ago to a gentleman named Foeter, of Hillsdale, who decided to put it on the market again.

The Oldenberg 47 acre tract on the river below town to R. M. Coggin, of Fairview, Montana, who will engage in strawberry growing to some extent. Consideration, $10,000.

The Mainwaring home on the river bank below town, consisting of a little more than 8 acres with good buildings to Nels Nelson who recently sold his farm at Woodburn. From three-quarters of an acre Mr. Mainwaring picked a ton of loganberries, less 190 pounds, this season. The price paid for the place was $5,500. Mr. Nelson got a favorable impression of this section while hauling milk here to the condenser and when he sold it he came here to locate.

The McNay meat market property at 801 First street to Otto Handt, of Portland, who wants to buy out Mr. Coyle who is running a market there, and operate a market of his own.

A man boasted that he had mastered the English language. Whereupon he was challenged to write the following from dictation: "As Hugh Hughes was hewing a yule log from a yew tree, a man dressed in clothes of a dark hue came up to Hugh and said: 'Have you seen my ewes?' 'If you wait until I hew this yew, I will go with you anywhere in Europe to look for your ewes,' said Hugh."

DEADLY WORK OF I. W. W. GANG AT CENTRALIA, WASH.

On Tuesday while a parade was being held in Centralia, Washington, celebrating the signing of the armistice, shots were fired from the I. W. W. hall, killing four former American soldiers, namely, Warren Grimm, Centralia attorney, Ben Casagrande, real estate dealer, Arthur McElfresh, pharmacist, and Dale Hubbard, all overseas veterans. Three other service men were wounded, one perhaps fatally. The crowd charged the I. W. W. hall and set fire to the building after the members had fled.

Britt Smith, the I. W. W. secretary and leader of the gang, was placed in jail but in the evening a mob gathered and after cutting the electric light wires took Smith from the jail and hung him from a bridge at the outskirts of the city. Seventeen suspects were rounded up and held in jail under heavy guard.

NINE THOUSAND MILES IN A FORD TRUCK

Imagine it! Nine thousand miles for $127.37—that's the record of a Ford one-ton truck loaded with touring and camping equipment and carrying Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh and children (our informant doesn't say how many children), also their married daughter, Mrs. Armstrong, and her husband.

On July 7th last, they loaded a Ford truck, not a touring car, with a tent, frying pans, fishing tackle and sundry camping equipment, climbed to their seats, and soon left the city of Ames, Iowa. Their trip led through Sioux City, Rapid City, Wind Cave, Hot Springs, Yellowstone National Park and 296 towns and cities, and consumed approximately three months.

A record of the expenditures for the entire 9,000 mile trip showed that the amount spent for gas, oil and repairs totaled just exactly $127.37. Can you beat it?

GOOD PROFIT IS NETTED

A net cash profit of $76.23 was made by O. L. Dunlap, of Junction City, in 142 days from an average of 60½ hens. The figures given cover a period from May 11 to October 4. The hens laid 5,087 eggs, an average of 36.8 eggs a day or 83.7 eggs a hen which figures out 58.2 per cent production for the entire period.

Mr. Dunlap has one of the O. A. C. demonstration farms. He started with 63 hens and ended with 59. The cash income from these hens was $233.92 and the cash expense $126.21. The net income was $107.71 above the cash expense. After paying for everything that was purchased and everything that was raised on the farm a net cash profit of $76.23 was left. In addition to this cash profit Mr. Dunlap has raised and still has on hand 112 pullets and 13 cockerels. These chickens are of the single comb Ancona breed.

RESOLUTIONS OF CONDOLENCE

Resolved, That Newberg Chapter No. 55, O. E. S., extend deepest sympathy to G. O. Keeney and daughter in their bereavement and loss of a wife and mother, who was a faithful member of said chapter.

May they find comfort and peace in Him "who doeth all things well."

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions appear on the minutes of said chapter, be printed in the local press and be forwarded to the family.

IN UNION THERE IS STRENGTH

Large Growers' Co-operative Body Affiliates with Oregon Growers Co-operative Association

The Umpqua Valley Fruit Union will cease to exist on January 1st, having voted unanimously on Saturday, November 8th, at a stockholders' meeting, to sell their plant and equipment to the Oregon and the Oregon Growers Packing Corporation, which is two bodies handling the fruit of the Oregon Growers Co-operative Association. The Association is a selling body, selling at cost, and the Packing Corporation, which is affiliated with the Association, handles the plants and packs the products at cost.

The plant at Roseburg is one of the very finest in Oregon, being strictly modern in every respect. The lot is ideally located, near the center of the city, along the Southern Pacific railroad. The building is of modern construction, with two full floors equipped with gravity lifts and automatic sizing machinery. The building is capable, when further equipped, of handling a tremendous tonnage of fruit.

J. O. Holt, of the Eugene Association, who will next year be manager of the Oregon Growers Packing Corporation next year, which will operate all the buildings and packing plants handled by the Oregon Growers Co-operative Association, was present at the meeting, and told in some detail the methods used at Eugene, in handling their business, and in building up their enormous plant.

C. I. Lewis, organization manager, was also present, to answer questions asked by various members. With 1,300 acres already on the books and with the members of the Umpqua Valley Fruit Union showing great enthusiasm, the indications are that within the next two weeks a very large increase will be added to the acreage signed up in the Umpqua Valley, on the books of the Oregon Growers Co-operative Association.

The Association, on November 1st, had over 12,000 acres, and it is now growing very rapidly. The Roseburg plant is the first plant to be taken over by the Association, and is probably the first of a dozen plants which will either be built, leased, or bought during the coming year, to handle the huge business of the Association, which may reach the total figure of $5,000,000 this coming year.

UNION THANKSGIVING SERVICE

At a meeting of the Ministerial Association on Monday, arrangements were made for the Union Thanksgiving service Thursday morning, November 27, at 10:30, in the Baptist church, Rev. Chas. E. Gibson, preacher, the music to be provided for by the choir of the Baptist church; the Baptist pastor to preside; the order of service to be drawn up by the committee of the Association, Messrs. Lee and Gibson; and the collection to be taken for Armenian Relief. This notice is to be given in the various churches, by kind request of the association; and it is hoped that a great union Thanksgiving service will be held. "Whoso offereth praise, glorifieth Me."

The next meeting of the Ministerial Association comes regularly on the second Monday of December, December 8. All ministers of Gospel churches in Newberg and vicinity are members by virtue of location, and requested to be present. Usual place, office of Presbyterian church, 10:30 a. m.
