

Interest Promotes Growing Savings Accounts

THERE'S two kinds of Interest meant by that. The first, and most important, is the interest YOU take in your own financial welfare. The other is the interest which the U. S. National credits to your Savings Account.

Every man, woman and child should have some kind of bank account, and this is a mighty good place to have one.

DUNDEE

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Harper were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Dearborn.

The Pollyanna girls had a business meeting and luncheon at Sylvan Farm on Saturday.

Mrs. Theodore W. Spencer of Port Stanley, Washington, made a brief visit to Dundee relatives last week.

G. A. Rowden, Northwest agent for the Lyons Glace Fruit Co., of San Francisco, joined Mrs. Rowden at Otterbrook for the week end.

The regular meeting for the Dundee Woman's Club was held at the library on Thursday. The formal program was devoted to the study of famous women. During the social hour Mrs. Wren Reynolds, assisted by Mrs. Joseph Herring and Mrs. John Herring, served refreshments. Famous men of the day will be the next topic for consideration.

The masked ball given by the Dundee Woman's Club on Saturday was a most enjoyable affair, both from the standpoint of the maskers and those who went merely as spectators. Many odd and beautiful costumes were worn, even some of the children surprising the ladies by coming in costume. Little Mildred and May Allene Wilson and Norman Parrett were especially pleasing as they came by in the children's grand march. Miss Bernice Keyes and her brother, Francis, received the prize for the best masked couple. They represented Pierrot and Pierrette. Miss Pauline Powell as the The Rose Maiden had the prettiest costume on the floor although Miss Doris Parrett and Miss Hermina Frankhauser were close seconds. Frank Keyes' mask was the most comical one there, Alfred Harding, representing Harry Lauder, was the best costumed single gentleman.

OREGON'S SOIL TYPES DISCLOSED BY SURVEY

Oregon farmers are rapidly learning the kind of soil they own and the most profitable manner of cultivating, fertilizing, and cropping it. Preliminary soil surveys covering two-fifths of the state's tillable lands have been made by the U. S. bureau of soils and the soils department of the agricultural college experiment station.

Detailed surveys have been made of the soils of Yamhill, Washington, Multnomah and Josephine counties, and almost completed for Benton county. The area of the lands thus revealed to their owners is 2,767,400 acres. More than one-fourth the total tillable area of the state has been given complete, detailed soil surveys.

It was these surveys that showed the lack of adequate sulfur of southern Oregon soils. When this lack was disclosed and reported by the college station chemists, experiments were instituted by the state college and federal extension specialists to ascertain the most feasible means of supplying sulfur.

As a result of these discoveries sulfur was used on 16,400 acres of alfalfa in 1919, increasing the crop by one ton per acre. At prevailing prices—$20 a ton—the gain 16,400 tons was worth $328,000 to the growers.

An equally profitable use of lime was brought about as a result of these soil surveys.

The college and federal government plan to continue these surveys to cover all agricultural lands of the state.

THE BANKER

Politicians are free to make capital by denouncing bankers, and too many of the rest of us have been all too willing to agree with the politician, says the Clovis, New Mexico, Journal.

There is in no community a man who does more for that community and takes as little out of it as the banker. You are in doubt as to the money affairs, may be you stand to lose several thousand dollars in a transaction, and you consult a banker. He sits down with you, and gives you freely of the time that is worth good money to him; he gives you the benefit of counsel that he has been years in learning, and you depart on your way with a mere thank you. And too often you forget before the end of the week that the banker did you a favor.

"The banker has won the respect of his community simply by playing square with the public, and by devoting all the time he can possibly spare to making that community a better and brighter place in which to live.

In his speech from the throne convening British Parliament on the 10th inst., King George is reported to have said: "Experiences during the war showed the clearly injurious effects upon the national efficiency of the excessive consumption of strong drinks and the amelioration, in both health and efficiency, which followed appropriate measures of regulation and control. A bill accordingly will be presented to you providing for the development of a suitable system for the peace-time regulation of the sale and supply of alcoholic liquor."

The importance of this royal pronouncement in the presence of the British law makers can not well be overestimated. The King puts himself squarely in favor of advanced Prohibition legislation. It shows clearly that temperance is making substantial progress in Great Britain. It is not probable that the proposed measure will contain local option features. It will rather aim at shortening hours of sale and decreasing the number of license holders in the Empire.

It will be remembered that early in the war King George, by precept and example, urged his people to the practice of total abstinence for the war.

It augurs well for the future of the English people that their King leads in efforts at human betterment.—American Issue.

Pennsylvania's Blue Laws

Pennsylvania's venerable blue law, enacted April 22, 1794, and entitled "An act for the prevention of vice and immorality and for other good purposes," has survived all the assaults of those who would destroy it. The legislators of 1794 regarded it as being vastly more wicked to shoot a rabbit on Sunday than to drink a hot toddy. One offender was tagged with a fine of $25, the other a shilling and a half. It was impossible under a strict enforcement of that law to operate a canal boat, a railroad train, a street railway car, a cab or sell any commodity from a loaf of bread to a package of chewing gum.

If people would only take care of their stomachs what a lot less trouble there would be in the world.

IF YOU WILL ABUSE YOUR STOMACH,

Let us offer you relief from the unpleasant results.

It will save you untold suffering and misery to try it.
