YEARLY MEETING CLOSED TUESDAY

The Attendance Was the Largest It Has Been For Many Years

On account of the agitation throughout the past year by a radical element in the church of a very vital question, the attendance at the annual meeting of the Friends church in the Northwest held here, was the largest it has been for many years.

Last year a proposal came from Salem quarterly meeting to withdraw from the Five Years Meeting, which meets at Richmond, Indiana, and which is made up of a union of the Yearly Meetings in the United States except Ohio and Baltimore, these two never having joined in the union. The matter was laid over for one year and when it came up on Thursday it was decided to make it a special order of business for Friday afternoon. At this time the reports from the different quarterly meetings were read. Two, Salem and Portland, reported in favor of withdrawal and Newberg and Boise Valley, Idaho, in favor of remaining in the Five Years Meeting, the latter with certain reservations. After spending some three hours in discussing the question and after votes had been taken on various propositions, the one made by Idaho was carried by a vote of 155 to 137. It is agreed in the proposition to remain with the larger body at least until 1923, but it carries with it resolutions calling for certain changes in the policies of the latter.

The more radical ones among the contenders have threatened to withdraw and form a new Yearly Meeting, but what they will do remains to be seen.

Before the discussion on this question began, Rev. J. Clarkson Hinshaw, the evangelistic superintendent, made a very comprehensive report in which he showed by a map he had prepared, the territory now occupied in the Northwest by the church and also showing what he thought might be accomplished in the way of church extension by vigorous, co-operative work. Appreciation of the work he has done during the past year was shown by his election to the same position for next year.

The evangelistic services each evening were conducted by Rev. Wm. Kirby, of Des Moines, Iowa, and well attended. Mr. Kirby is a forceful platform speaker and easily holds the attention of an audience.

Emory J. Rees and Austin and Blanche Conover, who are home from South Africa where they spent a number of years in missionary work, always had very attentive hearers when they told of their work. They are taking a needed furlough and expect to return to that field in the course of time. In the interval they are being used by the Board of Foreign Missions in going about, telling of the field and of what is being accomplished, in order to keep up the interest and support among the home people.

Sunday was a full day. President Pennington preached to a packed house at the 11 o'clock service. Mrs. Evangeline Reams, a widely known rescue home worker from Cleveland, Ohio, spoke in the afternoon, followed by the missionaries, and Rev. Kirby spoke at night.

MRS. BASS VISITS DIVINE, HEALER IN PORTLAND

Editor Graphic—I spent the past week in Portland, visiting my son, Ernest R. Bass, and with him attending the John G. Lake divine healing meetings, now in progress at Eleventh and Morrison streets.

While there two notable healings came under my observation, one of a man who had been a sufferer from stomach trouble for a year and unable to eat solid food, and another, a woman, a sufferer for eighteen years from a gitter.

The day following their healing I heard them joyfully testify that God's power was the same, yesterday, today and forever.

Mr. Lake has for the past five years made his home in Spokane, Washington, and during the last two years, through his ministry, God healed 1,299 cases of flu.

COUNTY FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS MEETS

The annual meeting of the Yamhill County Federation of Women's Clubs was held in Sheridan on Friday, June 11, the meeting being a most pleasant, profitable one for those attending. After a short business session, held in the I. O. O. F. hall, lunch was served in the city hall.

During the afternoon reports were made by the various clubs and the following program was given: Address, "Civic Improvement"—Rev. Frank James.

Piano Solo—Esther Jacobson. Vocal Solo—Florence Lamson. Clarinet Solo—Ruth Bradley. Fan Dance—Doris Houser.

After the president's address several changes were made in the constitution and the following officers were re-elected for the ensuing year:

President, Mrs. F. H. Buchanan, McMinnville; vice president, Miss Jennie D. Miller, Newberg; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. E. S. Greer, Dundee.

The Federation is deeply indebted to the women of Sheridan for the many courtesies received, and voted to accept the invitation of the Dundee Woman's Club for next year's meeting.

WILLAMETTE SENIORS BREAKFAST AT S. L. PARRETT HOME

Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Parrett entertained the senior class of Willamette University at their home on East Third street last Monday morning. The occasion was that of the annual breakfast of the senior class. It is customary for this breakfast to be given at the home of one of the members living outside of Salem and this year the class accepted the invitation of Miss Eva Parrett.

The tables were artistically decorated with wild snowballs and margarites. The guests were seated by means of dainty hand painted place cards. Tiny bouquets of margarites were used as favors. A three course breakfast was served.

One of Willamette's traditions is that all engaged persons of the senior class shall announce the fact by running around the table at the senior breakfast. Accordingly six engagements were announced.

Assisting with the serving were Mrs. E. F. Green and the Misses Goldie Everest, Maude Everest and Helene Everest.

The guests included the Misses Bernice Knuths, Velma Baker, Evelyn Gordon, Vera Wise, Rita Hobbs, Blanche Drake, Hazel Bear, Mary Findley, Genevieve Yanneke, Lucille Ross, Myrtle Smith, Evelyn DeLong, Odell Savage, Freda Campbell, Estelle Satchwell, Grace Bagley, Fern Wells, Eva Parrett, and the Messrs. Kenneth Legge, Robert Maulden, Merrill Ohling, Leland Austin, LaVerne Bowersox, Murray Keefer, William Kelly, Paul Doney, Millard Doughton, Francis Cramer, Bayard Findley and Harold Dimick. Mrs. Lamb of Chicago was a special guest.

REGARDING PRUNE PICKERS

In a note from County Superintendent Duncan he says:

"I have been requested by many prune growers of the county to use my influence towards securing the postponement of the opening of the schools of the county this autumn until the first Monday in October so that the prune growers may be able to secure the needed help to care for their crop.

"I might also add that this would also give many of the pupils an opportunity to earn money for the various expenses incident to the school year. The prune growers state that the crop promises to be a bountiful one, and that it will be difficult to secure help enough to care for it, hence they have thought it best to make the above request."

THE HIGH SCHOOL AGRICULTURE NOTES

1. "A husbandman is the master of the earth, turning barrenness into fruitfulness, whereby all commonwealths are maintained and upheld. His labor giveth liberty to all vocations, arts and trades, to follow their several functions with peace and industry."

2. "Fortunately, the boys who leave the farms do not all go to the great cities. While New York's population has been increasing 25 per cent, as have those of all the major cities, the population of cities and towns under 100,000 has increased four times as rapidly. This seems a more wholesome symptom, for the city of 100,000 is not out of touch with the land and the basic industries in the way that the larger cities are."

3. "Each one of the major cities is conscious of the smaller cities and towns upon which it is directly dependent, just as each smaller city or town is conscious of dependence upon the farmers or the miners who turn out the raw material."

4. "If the men who work in the open country stopped turning out raw material the great cities would soon be as sick as Vienna now is."

5. "This is a good lesson for modern nations whose inhabitants have been leaving the raw material industries and running into the middleman occupations. It should teach them that cities are of no value unless they are backed by the country producers, and that civilization, far from centering in the city, actually has its roots and its highest development in the country."

6. "Agriculture is beyond all doubt, the foundation of every other art, business and profession, and it has therefore been the ideal policy of every wise and prudent people to encourage it to the utmost."

7. "Than farming, there is probably no occupation in which experience is more necessary and in which so much time is required to obtain the experience."

8. "Farm work is individual work. Each worker has to take responsibility."

9. "The farm is not the place for the inefficient."

10. "The art of agriculture will never rise higher than the level of the man who manages the land."

Oliver F. Kilham, Director Agriculture Department, Newberg High School.

THE COMPROMISE RESOLUTION AT CHICAGO

Senator Johnson's chance of winning the nomination was distinctly lessened when he and Senator Borah accepted the compromise plank on the peace treaty and proclaimed it as their victory. With those boasts the fear of a possible bolt by the Californian was lifted from the convention. It can now proceed serenely to do its will with his candidacy in full confidence that his guns have been spiked and that he could not accomplish anything with a bolt based on the purely personal grievance of his failure to capture the nomination.

Unfortunately the adopted plank, though accepted by those republican leaders who were for ratification with the senate amendments, will put the party on fighting ground less advantageous than it would have held if the committee had adopted the plank that was opposed by the Johnson coterie. The discarded plank would have put the Wilson administration on the defensive—as having defeated ratification of the peace treaty and the league covenant. It was a frank, definite commendation of the majority of republican senators in their commendable stand for a league of nations with reservations. Its adoption would have enabled the republican party to point to Mr. Wilson as the man who, through those democratic senators who were completely under his control, prevented the admission of the United States into the league of nations by voting against the ratification with reservations.

But the compensating fact remains that Johnson and Borah have "shot their bolt" at Chicago and from this moment forward should receive scant consideration. If the Californian candidate has won a victory, as he is boasting, it will prove a victory that will lead to his undoing. He is an adroit politician, but with all his shrewdness seems blind to the patent fact that the American people are reacting against dictatorial politics. They have had a seven-year surfeit of that at the hands of Mr. Wilson, and are in no mood to elect another president who would take up the whip-cracking methods where Mr. Wilson dropped them by forced retirement.

Of the two men Mr. Wilson is the more adroit bulldozer, for he long masked his autocratic purposes with his skillful rhetoric, while the Californian senator is as blunt as a sledge hammer.

The compromise resolution may be the best solution of a difficult and dangerous situation, but it is regrettable that it leaves the party with a dulled sword to assail the vulnerable position into which Mr. Wilson had stubbornly maneuvered his party.—Spokesman Review.

EXCHANGE COMMENT

A petition is circulating to be presented to the county court asking that the road from the Lewis Corner to McMinnville be paved with concrete. There is no question but this is the most durable road to build, and even if it costs more it is economy in the long run. The greatest opportunity the people of this section have ever had put up to them is whether the construction of this road shall be accomplished this year or carried over until the bond buyers are willing to furnish money equal to the face of the bonds. The county court are firm in their stand that they shall require the full amount of money before they negotiate the sale, and judging by the present state of the money market, the most likely method of securing the full amount of the bonds would be to sell to private individuals who are desirous of completing the road this year. With the well prepared foundation this road already has, it seems as if it would be easily possible to secure a big part of the work of grading by donation. One thing is certain, it furnishes the finest opportunity to show our mettle that we have ever had in road construction and it will determine whether we have the enterprise to build the road, or are willing to put up for another year or two with a rough and muddy surface.—Telephone Register.

Senator McNary made a big political mistake in coming out for Hiram Johnson. When he comes up for re-nomination this will be remembered. It is an act that will not be forgotten. In backing Johnson he practically turned a somersault. The anti-Johnson voters of this state will not forget.—Woodburn Independent.

It is said that people in the country are more general readers on economic questions than those in the cities, and if this is true the city dweller is missing a lot of valuable information in which he is most concerned and the dweller in the country and small town is only being reminded of what he already knows by the series of valuable articles by Forrest Crissey which have appeared in the Saturday Evening Post. Mr. Crissey has made an exhaustive investigation of agricultural conditions and when he says the city man is due to have an unpleasant awakening he knows what he is talking about. He shows the decrease in production on the farm and proves that food is bound to be scarce and costly. The explanation he gives is the flocking to the cities of farm labor, attracted by high pay and short hours. The farmer, he says, is not laying down on his job, but is doing the best he can in the face of adverse circumstances, but that best means planting only what he can harvest himself with the assistance of his younger children and such labor, inefficient at best, as he can secure. The farmer has a friend in Mr. Crissey, for he is perhaps the only writer of wide reputation who has taken the trouble to investigate and he shows that the man on the farm, in an age of profiteering, has not profited as he might. Enhanced cost of farm products is explained, and he says that the sob writers on the city dailies who howl about milk being out of the reach of starving babies may yet find, unless there is more interest in the number of persons who will milk the cows, there may be no milk at any price. Not only has the farmer struggled to meet the labor problem and the agitation of high wages and short hours, but his costs have been enhanced out of proportion to increases in price of what he has to sell. Machinery bought at pre-war prices has worn out and replacing it at present prices is not the least of his costs. But through the whole series of articles runs the outstanding fact that the bulk of the population cannot expect to live indefinitely in the cities, receiving high pay and enjoying the bright lights, while a small per cent sweats on the farms to produce what they eat, and if consumers are out of proportion to production there can be but one end. His conclusion is that not only will food not be cheaper in the immediate future, but we can be lucky if there is food enough to go around.—Hillsboro Independent.

IT IS HARDING AND COOLIDGE

G. O. P. Standard Bearer Now in the Limelight Before the Country

It took ten ballots to reach a decision at the big G. O. P. convention at Chicago, as to who should head the ticket in the presidential campaign that is getting under way, and the honor finally went to Senator Warren G. Harding, of Ohio, with Governor Calvin Coolidge, of Massachusetts, as his running mate.

Harding could hardly be put in the dark horse class for he had been talked of for some time, and it was pretty well understood by those who had watched the trend of affairs that he was the choice of the leading lights in the senate on the republican side.

Governor Coolidge had been seriously considered as a candidate for president and it is no surprise that he was named for vice president.

FEATURES OF HIGH SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT

At the high school auditorium Thursday evening, June 10, the graduating class of the high school gave their class program, opening with the class song, which was followed by the history of the class by Francis Haworth. Don Crow read the class will and Lois Fendall the prophecy. Beatrice Towers, one of the class, gave a violin solo, and after singing another song, a play closed the evening's entertainment.

The next evening, June 11, occurred the commencement exercises at Wood-Mar Hall, D. V. Poling, of Corvallis, giving the address. His subject, "The Grip that Holds," was treated in a forceful and entertaining manner.

The class orators were Burdette Wilson, Francis Haworth and Florence Lee. The music consisted of two vocal solos by Palmer Hayes and a piano solo by Miss Putman.

Diplomas were presented to the following: Vera Panton, Myrtle Haveman, Don Crow, Howard Pettigill, Lois Fendall, Florence Lee, Dorothy Hodson, Warren Jones, Clifford Jones, Burdette Wilson, Mearl Sanders, Beatrice Towers, Marion Martin, Bain Morris, Francis Haworth, Elizabeth Calkins, Ermina Lutz and Vern Howard. The last named was not a member of this year's senior class, but in accordance with a ruling of State Superintendent of Public Instruction, he had, by service in France, been able to secure the credits lacking at the time of his enlistment.

The scholarship awarded by Willamette University was given to Howard Nottage, a member of the February class, and the Conference scholarship, to Francis Haworth. The recipient of the latter may select one of the following colleges, namely, Pacific College, McMinnville College, Pacific University, Albion College, Philomath College.
