Oregon Historical So... Ex
Public Auditorium

NEWBERG GRAPHIC

VOL. XXXI | NEWBERG, YAMHILL COUNTY, OREGON, THURSDAY, JULY 15, 1920 | No. 41

CHAUTAUQUA PROMISES TO BE BEST EVER

Big Six Day Program Begins Wednesday, July 21st, on Public School Grounds

M. S. Taylor, Ellison-White Chautauqua director for Newberg, is here to look after the organization of the advance work toward making this year's Chautauqua for Newberg the best it can possibly be made.

Mr. Taylor assures us that the talent this ear is being accepted everywhere they go as the best that Ellison-White have ever sent out and we feel that Newberg has a rare treat in store in many of the attractions to be enjoyed during the week. The programs have been delivered from house to house throughout the city and if you have not received one, call at the Graphic office and we will be glad to supply you. These programs are in the form of a small journal descriptive of all the features of the week and showing the pictures of the artists and lecturers as they will appear on our local platform.

One of the big features this year will be the Junior Chautauqua for children. We are fortunate in having as our Junior Supervisor this year Mrs. Fultz, who is chairman of the Children's Story Telling League and Playground Workers of Los Angeles, California. Mrs. Fultz is winning her way into the hearts of Chautauqua people through her wonderful faculty for handling children. She meets her big flock of Chautauqua Juniors every morning (except the morning of the first day) at 9:30 and for the better part of an hour holds them spellbound by the new and interesting stories she tells them. She then takes them onto the play ground and supervises them in an hour's playing of new games which the children love.

In a word, Mrs. Fultz will be a big part of the Chautauqua for the children. The fact that the children's tickets are only $1.10 for the 17 sessions for children, makes the price within the reach of all.

To parents who expect to take the children only a part of the time it may be interesting to know that the season ticket costs less than one-fourth of the price of single admission to all sessions. You will find it a paying investment, this Junior Chautauqua ticket.

Mr. Taylor assures us that the Sunday programs are going to be a rare treat in that they are intensely interesting and at the same time are in entire keeping with the sacredness of the day. Look your program over and assure yourself that the entertainers as well as the lecturers are of a type that will be in attune with the day.

Season tickets this year are the same as last, $2.75 for adults; $1.65 for students and $1.10 for children. This includes the war tax. Tickets are on sale at the drug stores, the banks and the Yamhill Electric Company. Get your tickets early and aid the local committee.

The programs this year will begin in the afternoon at 2:30 and in the evening at 8 o'clock.

YOUNG PEOPLES' UNION ORGANIZED IN NEWBERG

A meeting of the Young Peoples' Christian Associations of Newberg and vicinity was held Tuesday evening, July 6, at the Christian church to complete the organization of a Young Peoples' Union. Halcyon Wiley presided for the evening with Arlouine Johnson as secretary.

A constitution was adopted and the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Elva Jones, Newberg; vice president, Richard Haworth, Springbrook; secretary, Miss Lena Hornibrook, Newberg; treasurer, Homer Parrett, Newberg; pastor advisors, Rev. Jewell, Rev. Lee, Rev. Gibson.

The executive committee, with a duly elected member from each society for the Congress, will transact the business of the Union. The Congress meets once in two months and at least four mass meetings are to be held during the year.

Lloyd R. Carrick, a field secretary for Oregon Christian Endeavor is to be in Newberg August 1. Watch for further announcement.

LEGION CONVENTION AT ASTORIA

The Lester C. Rees Post No. 57 at its meeting Tuesday evening elected delegates and alternates to go to the state convention at Astoria on the last two days of this month. Those elected were:

Delegates, J. S. Rankin, Leonard Gower, C. G. Zumwalt. Alternates, J. R. McDonald, R. L. Parker, and Frank Swart.

This will be the second annual convention of the American Legion and every Legion man that can possibly go should be there. A special train leaves Portland for Astoria Thursday afternoon.

Let's go.

NINETY-SEVENTH BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED

George Randall, who crossed the plains in 1853 and settled in this county, celebrated his ninety-seventh birthday anniversary last Sunday at the home of his son-in-law, Henry Olds, in Portland. In 1861 he located at Tillamook which has since been his home.

NEW YORK CONCERT TRIO

Three Brilliant Artist Musicians Coming to Chautauqua on the Second Day

The New York Concert Trio, which comes to Chautauqua on the second day, occupies a conspicuous place in the splendid list of musical attractions for the week. Every one of the three members of the company is an artist who has won recognition in their particular fields of musical endeavor.

May Elizabeth Rees, violinist, has achieved concert successes both in this country and abroad. She returned to Europe last year again to play for our boys in France and Belgium. She is unquestionably one of the best artists ever presented to western Chautauqua audiences. Ruth Beverly Cumming, soprano, possesses a voice of pure gold. She is considered by eastern critics as having one of the most promising voices among the sopranos of the younger generation. Lowell Patton, pianist, is a brilliant soloist and accompanist.

SENATOR McNARY AT HOME AGAIN

Says Harding Is Popular in Washington and Party Confident of Victory

On passing through Portland last Sunday on his way to his home in Salem Senator McNary was rounded up by an Oregonian reporter who quotes him as follows:

No man more popular with all official Washington and more beloved by those in congress who have worked with him during both war and peace times could have been named as the standard-bearer of the republican party this fall than Senator Harding, according to Senator McNary of Oregon, who pased through Portland last night on his way from Washington to his home at Salem.

Coming direct from the national capital after months of strenuous work in connection with the sugar investigations and other congressional work in connection with reconstruction, Senator McNary stopped only between trains in Portland, arriving here at 7 p. m. and leaving at 8 p. m. for his home.

"The nomination of Senator Harding was received by eastern and middle western republicans with enthusiasm," said Senator McNary last night in discussing the presidential situation. "The Ohio senator, in addition to being known as a capable and hard-working legislator and a man of rare executive ability, is loved by all who have had occasion to work with him, democrats as well as republicans.

"Coming west I found the country looking in excellent condition, activity and prosperity evident and crop conditions good. I found republican leaders everywhere confident of victory in the fall, although prepared to put up a lively campaign for the ticket."

The farm at Salem will look mighty good to the Oregon senator after a most strenuous time at Washington, he declared, and he expressed his intention of remaining there during the summer and in all probability spending the fall in Salem and throughout the state aiding in the campaign.

"I was invited by both Chairman Hayes and Senator Harding to aid in the national campaign and stand ready to do anything I can," he said.

The sugar situation will play an important part in the campaign, the senator said, although he was unwilling to discuss the sugar matter at length because of lack of time. Senator McNary was at the head of a committee of the senate to investigate sugar purchases by the government and has been one of the leaders in the fight against unlimited increases in sugar prices.

OCEAN AIR LINES IN FIVE YEARS

The facilities of the great Ford organization for building a type of light, speedy airships recently were offered the United States Government by Henry Ford. Predicting the future airship, he said: "Transoceanic airship travel, in ships notable for lightness and speed, rather than for lifting power, will be common beyond comment in from three to five years. Berlin and London will be a day from New York, the Pacific will be crossed, and such ease of communication will go far toward breaking down the barriers of racial and national antipathy. It will promote one language one creed."

"The airship, by promoting contact of peoples, would foster prejudice against war. I am ready to do any thing I can to help the government. As in the past, I am ready to build without profit.

"The airship of the future will not be any one standard design but will be a combination of the rigid dirigible with the airplane. Chief attention must be given to the development of a light and powerful motor, gases lighter than air, and the reduction of weight even more than at present."

Mr. Ford has been experimenting with a motor suitable for such an airship.

RAISING THE LUSITANIA

To many the project of raising the Lusitania will be distasteful. The tragedy of her sinking was so poignant that to see her afloat again would recall too many sad memories. Nor has it been generally regarded as practicable to bring her to the surface from the depth of some 250 feet where she lies. Some hundreds of other ships sunk off the British coasts have been salvaged, but most of these lay in shallow water and were of smaller tonnage.

Neverthless, a distinguished French engineer, M. Emile Bertin, believes an attempt to raise the Lusitania would have a good chance of success. His scheme is to construct a floating chamber 300 yards long and 200 yards wide, to be attached at low tide by means of some 800 steel cables, and so manipulated as to raise the hull from the sea bottom as the tide rises. It is not quite plain how all the details of this scheme could be carried out, and M. Bertin admits that success would depend upon the condition of the hull, and that if the ship were brought to the surface there would be great trouble in beaching her. The cost in any case would be enormous.

Perhaps all this will have to be dismissed as one of those ingenious problems with which men of science sometimes like to play. The work of divers at 250 feet under the surface is well nigh impossible, and all kinds of unexpected obstacles would probably be met if the work were undertaken. It may be doubted if the money for such a hazardous experiment could be raised.—New York Tribune.

NEWBERG MAN MARRIES HOOD RIVER WIDOW

The following news note from Hood River appeared in Tuesday's Oregonian:

"John Armstrong, who gave his age as 75 when obtaining a marriage license today, told County Clerk Shoemaker that he had been married three times before. His fiancee, Mrs. Annie Lockwood, of Dee, stated that she had already been twice a widow.

"The couple proceeded immediately from the court house to the study of Rev. Mr. Boddy, pastor of Riverside Community church, who officiated at the marriage ceremony. They will leave tomorrow for Newberg, the bridegroom's old home."

John Armstrong is not well known in Newberg, but the best information the Graphic can get is that he lives across the Willamette in Marion county.

SPECIAL SERVICES AT THE BRETHREN CHURCH

On next Sunday morning during the Sunday school hour and also the time of the preaching service a deputation team of five young people from La Verne College, La Verne, California, will present a missionary and educational program. All are cordially invited to attend.

MIDSUMMER CONCERT AT M. E. CHURCH

On next Sunday evening the volunteer choir of the Methodist church will give its annual midsummer concert.

V. V. Gould, Director,
Miss Mabel Miller, Pianist.

Small pieces of camphor scattered in the cupboards keep away mice.

INSPECTION OF OREGON INDUSTRY

Preliminary Survey Is Made of Ten Oregon Canneries—Work is Under Prof. Wiegand

That the inspection work just started by the National Canners Association will be a great thing, not only for the canning industry in Oregon, but also for the housewives is the opinion of Ernest H. Wiegand, of the horticultural products department of the college, who was recently appointed director of the inspection service of the association, in Oregon.

A preliminary survey of ten Oregon canneries has already been made under the direction of Professor Wiegand—those of Newberg, McMinnville, Springbrook, Gresham, Falls City, Lebanon, Junction City, Eugene Fruit Growers Association, Creswell and Roseburg.

This inspection is entirely voluntary on the part of the canneries which pay a certain fee per case for all cases packed. These canneries agree to live up to the rules and regulations of the inspection service, according to Professor Wiegand.

Eventually daily inspection will be made, adequate force being employed to handle the work. All fruit received at the plant wil be inspected and the entire process of canning observed by the inspectors.

No employee will be allowed to handle fruit who is not fit to do so. Even the machinery will come under inspection. The walls in each plant must be white washed to meet federal and state rules of the asociation. Chester Roche, of Corvallis, a senior in horticulture at the college, specializing in horticultural products, has been made deputy inspector.

This inspection work is the result of an advertising campaign being conducted by the National Canners Association which is attempting to bring before housewives the value of canned goods from the standpoint of healthfulness. The association inspection seal will be fixed to each can of food put out by canneries which have subscribed to inspection service of the association. This seal will assure the purchaser that the product was sound before canning, was handled by cleanly employees under strict sanitary conditions, points out Professor Wiegand.

When the bottom of a cake is badly burned it may be grated off with a nutmeg grater.

Male Quartet Opens Chautauqua

Two Programs on the First Day of Genuine Music and Real Entertainment

Four young men who not only sing well, but who know the art of stage presentation and "put over" their programs with snap and vim, make up the Williams Male Quartet, the musical attraction on the opening day of Chautauqua. Headed by the versatile musical entertainer, Eddie Williams, these talented young singers present a program of male quartet music thoroughly good. They enter upon their work with enthusiasm and good humor, and audiences soon find themselves in accord with the mood of the singers. The program of quartet numbers is interspersed with individual solos, musical readings, instrumental solos, pianologues and costumed selections.

Prominent Entertainer Coming

"Man of a Thousand Laughs" Scheduled for Chautauqua on the Fifth Day in Two Programs

A good laugh is a tonic that everyone needs. It drives away the work-a-day cares and worries. Attend Chautauqua on the fifth day and you get liberal doses of this "easy-to-take medicine." J. Walter Wilson is coming, an entertainer with a thousand laughs wrapped up in his two programs. He is a splendid impersonator and a musician of unusual ability. He sings well, plays the flute, saxophone and most every kind of musical device you can imagine.