BE LOYAL

Be loyal to your country, be loyal to your creed.

Be loyal in your friendships—you'll have friends in time of need.

Be loyal to conviction while striving for the right.

Persist in being loyal and you'll win the hardest fight.

Be loyal to your "home town," and don't let your dollars roam.

They will all do double duty if you spend them here at home.

Keep your $$$$ in the "home town," and the town will thrive and grow.

If the town thrives you will prosper, as a sequence, don't you know?

So, kind friends, I crave attention while the truth is to you I tell.

If you spend your money here at home you'll beat old H. C. L.

For H. C. L. won't tarry long where dollars stay at home.

But he'll roost with you forever if you let those dollars roam.

Then trade with Newberg merchants, and thus build up your town.

For as they increase their business they will cut the prices down.

You will find here in the "home town" each business man a friend.

If disaster overtakes you on his aid you may depend.

If each one will do his duty as he should toward our town,

'Twill be known throughout the country as a place of fair renown.

Where each citizen is loyal to the interests of his home.

And his dollars imbued with civic pride so they will never roam.

—J. C. Akers.

DUNDEE

Rev. George H. Greer left Monday for a business trip to Seattle and California.

Mrs. Ashnah Vedder has rented the place belonging to Thomas Owens, her son-in-law.

Mrs. D. A. Nichols, of Dayton, Washington, is visiting her mother, Mrs. George H. Greer.

V. V. Nicholson, of Des Moines, Iowa, brother-in-law of W. J. Bennett, has been visiting at the Bennett home.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Morecroft are moving to Charles Parrett's house, where Mr. Morecroft will be nearer his work.

Mrs. Ida Flanders and L. C. Bennett, of Eugene, were Sunday guests at the home of Frank Keyes. Mrs. Flanders will be remembered as Miss McElroy. She is attending the University at Eugene.

Edward Billich Sr., has purchased the Morecroft place and is preparing to move. Edward Billich Jr. has purchased his father's property and he and his wife are welcomed as new home makers in Dundee.

John Workman brought guests out from Portland to enjoy the beauty of Sylvanus Springs Farm on the fifth of July. For the recent week end he also had Portland visitors, Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Mulligan and son, Joseph. Mr. Mulligan helped build the railroad to Dundee in 1882 and is much interested in the change in appearance of this whole part of the country.

Work on Charles Trunk's drier has been finished. Four other prune driers are in the course of construction in this vicinity. The heavy crop of prunes which seems to be the promise of the orchards for this year will tax the capacity of the Dundee driers to the utmost. E. G. Shannahan, Frank Keyes, Joseph Herring and E. S. Greer are those putting up new buildings.

HOW CAN INDUSTRIES LIVE?

Those who are responsible for the management of industries have a choice collection of knotty problems to solve.

The American Federation of Labor demands a constantly increasing scale of wages.

The I. W. W. demand constantly shorter hours and reduction of production by sabotage.

The Socialists demand that all employment be by the state and that profits and wages be abolished.

The Communists demand that the workers own and manage the industries without capitalists or bosses.

The Non-Partisan League demands that the state take over and operate all big business for the benefit of farmers.

The Politicians demand more offices and increased taxes and life-long jobs at the expense of the tax payer.

The man at the cash counter end of a pay roll has to stop and do some thinking once in a while.

CUT DOWN OLIVE TREES

How the Turkish depredations on the olive tree groves in the Holy Land were carried on is told by a Red Cross worker who visited the denuded spots and talked with many of the impoverished owners. The industry has suffered considerable hindrance by the Turkish occupation of these localities, and dealers have been forced to give their major attention to the Spanish and Italian markets, although those, too, were cut off during the war.

"During the second year of the war," said the Red Cross worker, "the military railway authorities ran short of fuel and recruits between 40 and 50 years old were allowed to contract for supplies of wood in order to enable the railways to continue hauling of troops and munitions.

"A general order, therefore, was issued that all olive grove owners should allow 25 per cent of their trees to be cut for this purpose.

"Naturally they obeyed with reluctance. They cut and transported the wood at their own expense, receiving a fixed price, the government paying them in Turkish notes which were constantly depreciating."

At Beir Zeit, a village near Jerusalem, there are three oil mills, and all use the primitive process of a blindfolded mule hitched to a shaft which he draws round and round in a circle. The shaft operates a grinder which works in a large vat with a smaller vessel below. The oil and all the residuum of its manufacture—olive pulp and other refuse—falls in to the small vessel. In time the latter is removed and hot water is poured in at one end. The pure, clean oil rises to the top and is drained off. Olive oil was used for fuel during the war when the petroleum shortage became acute.
